One Year After The March

No Sign Of Breakthrough In Low-Cost Housing Here

There is no sign of a breakthrough in housing more than a year since a march for low and moderate-income housing took place in the Northwest suburbs, according to one official who works with Mexican Americans.

Robert Munoz, director of the Illinois Migrant Council, said there has been no change in the status of housing for low and moderate income groups since the march in Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights.

"Things are the same," said Munoz, a resident of Palatine. "The need is still there but the opposition has grown."

The homeowners are much more organized than they were a year ago, he said in reference to the proposal to build low and moderate-income housing on the Victorian property in Arlington Heights.

A former migrant worker who came to the area 11 years ago from Mercedes, Tex., Munoz was interviewed recently and asked to comment on the housing issue since the march last July 12.

"The march was a success in that it helped to bring the need for housing out into the open," he said. "It also demonstrated that we (the Mexican-American) are concerned about housing."

"We realized that we have to stand up for ourselves," he said, noting that much of the support in behalf of low and moderate-income housing had not been by Mexican Americans until a year ago.

Last summer, Munoz was one of 50 persons who participated in the march that started at Queen of the Rosary Catholic Church in Elk Grove Village. By the time the marchers finished the crowd reached 100 at a rally at the Arlington High School football field.

THERE, REP. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, said the Mexican-American population must make its problems visible in order to receive help.

Munoz said Mrs. Chapman was the only elected official who joined in the march and that she is the only representative that has stood up for the rights of the Mexican-American. At times, Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, has said, but not as much.

Local officials have not been responsive to the needs of the Mexican-American, Munoz said, predicting that the chances of low and moderate-income housing being built in the near future in the Northwest suburbs are not good.

The Victorian proposal "doesn't have a chance at all," he said. "Low-income housing will come, he said, but not before a drastic change in local administrations."

Any housing would be for people already in the area, he said. "We're thinking about the people already here," he said.

On the same note, Munoz said there are few real migrant farm workers in the Northwest suburbs anymore. There are some, he said, but that now there are what he termed "industrial migrants" working in factories part of the year.

Mixed in with some of the migrants are illegal immigrants from Mexico, he said, who hurt the migrants from Texas because they are willing to work for low wages.

"They hinder those here legally by taking away wage competition," he said. "Immigrants are transported north of the border by 'coyotes'," Munoz said, describing them as persons who prey on others. Often times immigrants are crowded into trucks under the worst of conditions, he said.

Most of the agricultural migrants who are here legally work on farms and nurseries, he said, but that many of these jobs have moved further north and west as the Northwest suburbs continue to be developed and the farm work becomes more mechanized, he explained.

WITH THE movement of the farm migrant, Munoz said the Illinois Migrant Council has moved its suburban office from Palatine to Crystal Lake.

Many of the migrants still live in sub-standard housing, though little is in the immediate area, he said.

The Northwest suburbs, however, will continue to see the arrival of more Mexican Americans and other races to work in the industrial parks here, he said.

"It's just a matter of time," Munoz said. "You can see it now on the expressways with many of the Anglos going to work in the city and minority groups coming to the suburbs," he said. "Something has got to give."

Munoz said the school systems here also have not met the needs of the Mexican-American. Many of the children don't know English and need assistance, he said, adding there is a need for bilingual teachers especially in the primary grades. He noted that Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 58 does have a program for the Spanish-speaking but that it is one of the few that does.

He said the dropout rate of Mexican-Americans from high school is tremendous and that he plans to request a survey to find out specifics of the problem at Palatine High School.

He also said there is a need for more vocational training for adults who are unskilled. Harper College in Palatine offers adult basic education, he said, but there is a need for more such training.

Pays $150 Fine For Eluding Police

Jose J. San Miguel, 29, of north DuPage County, was fined $150 last week by Associate Judge George Zimmerman in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court after pleading guilty to eluding an Elk Grove Village police officer May 29.

Patrolman Kenneth Krzywicki reported at the time that San Miguel eluded him after he had been instructed to follow him to the police station to post bond after being stopped for speeding on Elmhurst Road.

MICHAEL LOVANWAY, of 692 Middlebury Ln., Elk effort. He caught a 21-inch eight-pound carp in Salt Grove Village, cherishes the benefits of his Labor Day Creek.

Visitors Praise Woodfield's Many Attractions

by LEA TONKIN

A steady stream of seekers and just plain curious people thronged into Schaumburg's Woodfield center yesterday for the official opening ceremonies and most visitors seemed to find what they were looking for.

Mrs. Gary Bieritz of Hoffman Estates talked of the center as of a long lost friend who has finally appeared. "It's really close," she said. "The parking is good, and I have Marshall Field's."

For Judy Fesus of Bloomington, a Harper College student, the center is a great place to look for a job. She came in time to see the opening ceremonies before making job applications.

Standing on their tiptoes to see Vincent Price and Carol Lawrence, several women at the opening ceremonies said they came just to see the celebrities. "She's just beautiful. At least I can say I saw her," said one of Miss Lawrence.

The size of the center and the variety of stores drew praise from many visitors as Mrs. Grace Chien of Palatine, and Woodfieldette Marilyn Miles of Palatine said, "There's any kind of store you could ever ask for here."

THE SEATING provided in the enclosed mall is a definite plus factor according to Mrs. A. Biesack of Racine,

Wis. visiting a niece in Schaumburg. Her husband, Al, said, "The best thing here is the sculpture. It's not just beauty but it shows some knowledge of geometrics as well."

"People are especially interested in toys here," said David Silger, a sales manager of the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store. It has been open a month. "We have a fantastic amount of people coming in here with baby carriages," he noted. They like the wider aisles in the store. He said many people come to see Vincent Price who has a display of artwork in the store.

To Mrs. Fred Feldman of Arlington

Heights the center is a look into the future of retailing. The different levels and carpeting on the ramps in the mall area are an attraction for Mrs. Dale Sloan of Hoffman Estates.

The confusion in getting off Rt. 53 to the center was a criticism of a Chicago visitor who did not want to be identified.

"THE CENTER IS great, but couldn't they make the swimming pool a little deeper?" joked a workman in the mall area, about a fountain pool.

Confronting the expectations of the Woodfield visitors, shopkeepers were busy with customers soon after the opening ceremonies concluded. Ken Soderberg of Rolling Meadows proprietor of the Plum Tree novelty shop appeared stunned at the number of customers.

"It's been a real bustle to get ready for the opening," said Mrs. Joyce Henricks of Des Plaines, saleswoman for the Mirette store on an upper level. She looked at the Fanny May store below. "Yesterday that store wasn't there," she said. "Now they're busy selling candy."

More new stores will open daily for the next several months according to Jerry O'Neil, Woodfield general manager. "It's like one big department store," he said. "There are many boutiques here and the mix of stores is important."

Woodfield Doors Swing Open To Customers

Woodfield opened yesterday morning with grand ceremony watched by thousands of persons who later filed into dozens of stores open for the first time.

The Guardsman, a Drum and Bugle Corps marched and played as did the Conant High School's marching band, including a march called "On The Mall."

Then Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher was introduced as master of ceremonies and told how Woodfield "is a dream come true."

Woodfield, at Ill. Rtes. 53 and 58, is billed as the world's largest enclosed climate controlled retail center and provides two million square feet of shopping facilities.

Yesterday's ceremony was timed with opening of the Marshall Field & Co. store. Sears Roebuck Co. opened its largest store in August and J. C. Penney is to open next month.

Once the retail center is fully occupied, 215 stores will be included.

ATCHER SPOKE of a woman who has thanked him for bringing Woodfield to Schaumburg.

"Every time I go shopping I'll have an extra $7.50 to spend," the woman said. Atcher told the woman he alone is not responsible for Woodfield's coming to Schaumburg and asked her why she'll have the extra money.

"I'll save 60 cents on tolls, $2 on parking, and $5 in gas used to drive back and forth from the city," said the lady.

Atcher added, the saving also will provide increased tax base for the school districts, sales tax rebates for Schaumburg and a $30 million per year payroll northwest suburban residents working at Woodfield will have to spend.

Woodfield will have an effect on the total development of the northwest suburbs, setting a standard everyone else will have to meet, he added.

Woodfield, said Atcher, "will add to our quality of life in the northwest suburbs."

ATCHER'S DREAM come true started in 1964 when Sears Roebuck initiated talk of a retail center, but the scope of Woodfield was not envisioned then, said Atcher.

He did not believe at the time that Sears' largest store would locate in Schaumburg, and when Fields decided to come to Woodfield in 1966 he knew something great was in store.

The developer of Woodfield is Woodfield Associates, a joint venture between Homart Development Co., owned by Sears and The Taubman Co., of Southfield, Mich. Dignitaries from the two firms were on hand along with those from Sears, Fields, Penney's, and Woodfield's management team.

Also on hand were celebrities Carol Lawrence and Vincent Price, who called Woodfield a place of art.

Atcher closed by thanking all the Schaumburg officials who over a 15-year period helped make the village a place Woodfield could call home.

No man could have done it alone, said the mayor.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon has ruled out any extension of his wage-price freeze past Nov. 12, but promised a long-range program of economic stabilization afterward to make sure "America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation." He also announced he would propose major, unspecified tax reforms next year to help create 20 million new jobs in the coming decade and to meet worldwide economic challenges to America's postwar supremacy.

The Army rested its case against Capt. Ernest L. Medina after calling a No detector expert in the Ft. McPherson, Ga., court marshal, who testified that Medina told him he had lost control of his troops at My Lai.

Hurricane Fern has lost power in a rush toward the Texas coast but gales, rain and high tides at its fringes struck ashore. Tornadoes and flash flooding hit during the night.

The California Supreme Court decision outlawing the real estate and personal property tax as a criterion for educational support "clearly should be applicable to the Illinois situation," Lt. Gov. Paul Simon told the Springfield chapter of the American Business Club.

Ambassador William J. Porter took over as chief U.S. negotiator at Vietnam peace talks in Paris and proposed that the four sides engage in secret negotiations. The Communists rejected the idea as they had two months earlier.

MSD Denies Apartment Sewer Permit

The Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) Board of Trustees yesterday rejected a sewer permit application for the Ol' Madrid apartment complex in Palatine.

The rejection was followed by statements by two Palatine residents who said approval of the sewer permits would have compounded flooding problems which now occur in the area.

The development, which would serve between 2,510 and 3,235 persons, is planned on the site of the former Palatine Golf Course located at Northwest Highway and Hicks Road.

MSD officials reported a 24-inch sewer located in the area would be incapable of handling the additional sewage from the new development. A total of 38 projects are handled by the sewer, and the Ol' Madrid application is the 39th, one over the maximum limit.

TOM SMITH, 680 N. Benton, Palatine, said he represented 100 property owners living adjacent to the Ol' Madrid project. He said he and other residents face a severe flooding problem from a combined sanitary and storm water drainage system when it overflows during heavy rains.

Mrs. Ruesen Riemer, 18 S. Hickory, Palatine, said Ol' Madrid and other developments in the area would place a serious overload on the present sewage system. She said the problem has been known for the last five or six years.

Trustee George Thiem then commented the county board, when it permits zoning for such projects, is often working at "cross purposes" with the MSD. He said the MSD often does not have enough sewer capacity for new subdivisions or apartment developments.

The district's systems are still catching up with area growth, especially in the Northwest suburbs, said Dan Szwed, MSD superintendent. He pointed out the district has used small sewage treatment plants in past years to treat sewage; now it is changing its aims to deal with the increasing population.

MSD OFFICIALS reported a new interceptor sewer is being installed in the area to provide relief for the present Palatine system. However, the present 24-inch system along Rohlwing Road won't be able to handle the Ol' Madrid sewage, the board agreed.

In other action, the trustees clashed over whether to pay a negotiated wage increase to iron workers under a contract approved before President Nixon's wage-price freeze was imposed.

The board finally agreed to OK the hike for structural iron workers subject to approval by the federal government. However, it deferred approval of a similar hike for architectural iron workers at the request of Trustee Nicholas Melas.

Kindergarten Means Tears, Wide Eyes

by WANDALYN RICE

The first day of kindergarten means many things.

It means wide eyes, some verging on tears, that follow the teacher around as she explains, "We'll raise our hands and that will do our talking for us today."

It means learning funny songs about wiggling your fingers, toes and nose until you have no wiggles left at all.

It means the sound of dozens of feet practicing a march around the room.

And, for one little boy at Salt Creek School, it meant missing the march while he was washing his hands because he was afraid they were dirty.

For the children in Zoe Anne Reck-nagle's class and for more than 1,000 other children in Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59, the first day of kindergarten meant the beginning of an education that for most will continue until they are more than three times as old as they were Wednesday.

THEY HAD all been in the school before with their mothers and arrived armed with their favorite toys for Show-and-Tell.

Some of them laughed and interrupted when the teacher talked. Some were shy — a little bit afraid.

One boy, his hair cropped into a short crew-cut, was happiest just wandering around the room alone, looking at everything. The teacher put her arm around him and had him sit by her. He smiled because the seat was specially for him.

For Carl, the wait for his turn at Show-and-Tell was agonizing. He had acorns he had collected on his vacation.

But when he finally got his turn he forgot what they were and called them eggshells. Suddenly shy, he told the teacher, "I hafta sit down."

The room was comfortable enough at first, but the day promised to be hot and sticky and the room got warmer and warmer for those who wore their new fall clothes for the first day of school.

"When can we go home?" the little girl with pigtails asked. It was only 10 a.m. and there was an hour and a half left — an eternity if you're five years old. "But we have lots of things to do and it will go fast," the teacher assured her. And it did.

Need Interest In Village Fare

by TOM JACHIMIEC

The Chicago Board of Education Wednesday adopted a policy that has been in effect in Elk Grove Village for several years.

The school board approved a set of guidelines allowing citizens to address the board at its meetings. There are some restrictions. Comments must be limited to items on the board agenda. Citizens must have signed up prior to the meeting, and only 10 persons may comment for a maximum of three minutes.

At Elk Grove Village Board meetings there are few restrictions other than that a citizen be at the meeting at 9 p.m. Tuesday night when the board opens its meetings for comments by residents.

Some of those who have used the allotted time spot to query their elected representatives on a regular basis in the past are Tom King, Jerry Lane, and, of recent years, Robert Guttery.

EXCEPT for a few other residents, few have taken advantage of this provision. No doubt more persons would if there were more people attending village board meetings.

I asked Charles Zettek, village president, if this bothered him.

"I'd like to see a packed house," said Zettek.

"He'd like to see more people address the board as well. If 50 people addressed the village board at each of its three monthly meetings that would be 1,500 in one year, he said. And if each one of those talked to two more persons that would be 5,400 residents who learned something about village government, he said, adding that 5,400 is half the registered voters in the village.

That's one way to get people interested in the every day affairs of local government, he said.

Zettek is right. That's one way to get people interested in government, but what does it mean when few persons attend a village board meeting or have questions about the community in which they live?

COULD IT BE the lack in attendance means the village is well run? Or that most people are too busy and don't have the time?

To be sure, when an issue rubs enough people the wrong way they will attend board meetings to complain. But, in the long run, maybe everybody is satisfied.

Zettek doesn't see it that way, however. Generally speaking he said they are reasonably satisfied but that if he were to speak to every one individually he'd find they have something on their mind they didn't like.

Of more importance, Zettek said he feels people are too inclined to accept mediocrity and not applaud excellence in government.

More people should be concerned with the everyday operation of government, he said.

Here's a belated note of congratulations to Dixie Foster and the Youth Employment Service (YES) for a successful program. More than 170 teens filled 358 jobs this summer through the Community service operated program.

"But it tastes good."

"It's my piano!"

Village Sues Officials To Halt Remap

Secretary of State John W. Lewis, Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, and the Illinois State Electoral Board have all been named as defendants in a suit the Village of Arlington Heights filed in federal court Wednesday in an effort to invalidate a new state legislative redistricting map.

The suit, filed in the name of all village board members and John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights, cites the defendants as being party to a redistricting map which splits the village into four "odd-shaped and gerrymandered districts."

The suit charges the new map "totally ignored" the federal and state constitutional principle of "one-man, one-vote." Before the map was completed by an eight-member reapportionment committee last month, the village was uniformly within the third district, giving Arlington Heights a strong suburban voice in the General Assembly, the suit said.

The new districting plan, however, was created "to effectively diminish the power of the citizens of Arlington Heights to elect representatives of their choice in the General Assembly," the suit claims.

THE SUIT ALSO charges the reapportionment committee was improperly appointed and lacked representation of the independent voter. The committee, the suit states, was composed entirely of members of the Democratic and Republican parties.

Lewis was named in the suit because he received the map from the committee and published it, according to the copy of the suit filed in the U.S. District Court.

The electoral board was cited for their role in certifying the names of all candidates for the state legislature before those names appear on the primary ballot and for the committee's other "diverse duties" in connection with state representatives and senators.

Scott became party to the suit for initiating the redistricting plan and for failing to challenge its validity in the Illinois Supreme Court. He is also a member of the electoral board.

Only A Few Have A 'Healthy Attitude'

Detective: Heroin Victim Didn't Want Help

by ROGER CAPETTINI

A 25 year old Des Plaines man who died of an apparent overdose of heroin last week once told a Des Plaines policeman there was nothing anyone could do to help him.

The policeman, a detective who prefers to remain anonymous, spoke yesterday of Stephen J. Brennan of 625 Howard St., who died Friday morning. His death was blamed on an overdose of heroin.

According to the detective, Brennan could not be helped because he didn't want to be helped. "He didn't want to get off it," the policeman explained.

"You can't help any of them if they don't want help," another detective added.

The detectives said Brennan, who recently spent 45 days in the House of Correction, let it be known while he was imprisoned that the first thing he would do when he got out was seek more heroin.

"HE WAS DRIED OUT," the policeman said, "but all he could think of was getting back on it. He only got out of there a couple of weeks ago and now he's dead."

Another detective was obviously saddened by the death of the young carpenter.

"I really liked that kid," he said. "In spite of his drug problem he was really a good kid. We wanted to help him, but he wouldn't let us."

The attitude of another young Des Plaines man, also thought to have died as a result of an overdose of heroin, was quite unlike Brennan's, police said, however.

"Kevin Schneider had a completely healthy attitude about getting off drugs," one detective said.

SCHNEIDER, 19, of 2074 Locust St., Des Plaines, died Aug. 28. Police said at the time they thought he died from an overdose of heroin. A spoon, hypodermic needle case and a package of white powder reportedly was found under the mattress of the youth's bed.

Since that time, however, a pathologist's report has indicated Schneider died of natural causes.

"Schneider felt he could get off drugs — that he didn't need drugs any more,"

the detective said.

"His family was trying to help him. They were severing all their ties in this area and moving to Phoenix. Kevin said when he moved he was going to cut all his relationships with drug users and start over again in Phoenix without drugs," the policeman explained.

Schneider had a "healthy attitude," they expressed some doubt about anyone's ability to kick the heroin habit permanently.

ALTHOUGH THE policemen said Schneider had a "healthy attitude," they expressed some doubt about anyone's ability to kick the heroin habit permanently.

"In the 18 years I've been a policeman, I've yet to see anyone get off heroin permanently," one detective said.

Another detective agreed. "I don't know of anyone who has ever gotten off it permanently," he said. "We believe it's possible, but just don't know of anyone who has ever done it. Some of the Chicago police say no one has ever done it."

The detective said the heroin problem in Des Plaines, "is like the old iceberg. The only part you know about is the small part that sticks up. It's hard to estimate the size of it below the surface."

Mayor Herbert Behrel said he met with Police Chief Arthur Hintz Tuesday morning to discuss the recent deaths and the drug problem in Des Plaines.

BEHREL SAID Hintz does not feel at this time that more money, programs or increased cooperation between Des Plaines and other police departments is necessary in the fight against drugs.

Apparently the youths were long time users, Hintz reportedly told the mayor. He said the police and the families were "well aware" they were addicts, but added, "It's not that easy" to make arrests.

One of the chief's detectives agreed. "We know these kids are using drugs, but it's difficult to prove in a court of law. We have trouble getting witnesses.

We have few informants. They're too frightened to tell us anything. Would you allow your child to make a heroin buy for the police and testify in court?" he asked.

He said it is also difficult to infiltrate the drug subculture in an effort to increase arrests.

"They only sell to people they know. None of the police can do it — they recognize all of us. They may be breaking the law, but they're not stupid," he said.

He said the parents of drug users are not much help either.

"THE PARENTS either act as if the problem will go away if they ignore it, or try to solve it themselves. It will never go away and they are often not equipped to handle it themselves. They think they're protecting their kids, but they're not helping them in this case."

The detective said he can understand the feelings of the parents, however.

"They're dealing with their most precious possessions," he said. "It's not easy to turn them in to the police, but it's the best thing they can do."

Des Plaines police investigated 24 drug cases in August. Eighteen of those resulted in arrests.

Eight of the arrest followed some kind of drug overdose.

Another overdose resulted in the death of Stephen J. Brennan.

St. Viator Enrollment Up

Departing from the general trend of decreased enrollments in Catholic Schools, St. Viator High School opened its doors to 319 incoming freshmen this month — an increase of 60 students over last year's freshman class.

The Rev. Patrick Rander, C.S.V., acting principal of St. Viator this year, said the enrollment figure shows the school is attracting a larger number of freshmen boys from both public and private schools in the area.

He added the total four-year enrollment in the Arlington Heights school has also increased and that 1,073 boys from throughout the Northwest suburbs are currently attending the school. While most of the students come from nearby — Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Elk Grove Village — the school draws pupils from as far away as Park Ridge and Barrington.

ST. VIATOR STUDENTS, living more than one and one half miles from school, who have received free bus service from High School Dist. 214 for the past year, can now also make arrangements with High School Dist. 211. This month Dist. 211 began busing Viator students from regular stops on the district's bus routes to central drop-off points at Fremd and Palatine high schools. Buses rented by St. Viator take over for the remainder of the trip to the school grounds.

The cooperative arrangement lowers the total transportation cost for students in the Dist. 211 area.

District 214 and St. Viator are also co-operating this year in the area of vocational education. Father Rander said 20 senior boys from the Catholic High school will attend vocationally oriented courses held at Arlington and Prospect high schools during the 1971-72 school year. The courses the pupils will take under the pilot program include power mechanics, mechanical drawing and general metal skills.

Tuition at St. Viator remains at $450 for the current year. When spiraling costs forced a tuition raise last year, school officials pledged to parents that rates would remain the same through the 1971-72 school year.

Hobbies, Local History Fall Courses At Harper

The Continuing Education fall schedule at Harper College in Palatine includes courses ranging from "Genealogy" to "Lingerie Construction."

How to trace family history is taught in the genealogy course. Local history covers Chicago, concentrating on the Northwest suburban area.

Current social topics will be discussed by members of an "America of the '70s" class. These topics include the mass media, politicians, campus unrest and the changing morals.

Hobbies can be pursued in classes such as "Home Movies," "Painting," "Home Landscape Design," "Fashion Workshop" and "Home Construction and Remodeling."

STUDENTS MAY prepare for the future in courses such as "Fundamentals of Investing," "Airline Career Preparation," and the "La Masse Method of Childbirth."

"How and Where to Travel Abroad" offers information for those who are planning a trip. And communication during the trip could be easier for the traveler who has taken conversational German, Spanish, Russian or French.

Seven special workshops for women and 10 college and university extension courses are also scheduled in the fall program. Information on these and other classes in Harper's Continuing Education program may be obtained by telephoning the college at 358-4200, extension 301.

Registration is now being held in Room 213, Building A from 4 to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. Registration may also be made by mail to the Office of Continuing Education at Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine.

Tennis Courts At Harper Extend Hours

Hours for public use of the tennis courts at William Rainey Harper College in Palatine have been extended to include extra hours of daylight and special unscheduled periods.

Until Sept. 12, courts may be reserved by the public from 1 p.m. to dark, Sunday through Saturday.

When Harper classes commence Sept. 13, hours will be 4 p.m. to dark, Monday through Friday; and from 1 p.m. to dark on Saturdays and Sundays.

Other times than those listed might be arranged for individuals or groups upon request if courts are available, according to Harper Director of Athletics, John Geich. Two day advance notice is necessary, he added.

The cost to the public is $1 for two hours of play. The fee goes toward a court attendant's salary. A student activity fund takes care of Harper student fees.

Courts must be reserved in advance by telephoning Harper College, 358-4200, and asking for "tennis reservations." Geich reminds, "Smooth soled tennis shoes are required since courts are finished with a special Lakold surface."

Hours are all subject to change if courts are needed for Harper's athletic program.

Adults: 'Stop Abusing Drugs'

Adults will have to stop abusing drugs themselves if any drug education program is to work successfully for their children, according to Robert Wilford of the post graduate training center at Forest Hospital in Des Plaines.

Wilford spoke last week to Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 teachers as part of an orientation program to the new drug abuse curriculum for all Dist. 21 students this year.

Wilford said in order to influence children successfully not to abuse drugs, the old adage, "Don't do as I do, do as I say," will have to be abandoned.

The mother who takes a tranquilizer to calm her nerves or the father who uses a cocktail to relax him is a powerful influence on a young child, Wilford said.

"It is giving children the idea to use chemistry to deal with life," he told the audience.

Commercials, with such slogans as, "Better living through chemistry," reinforce this idea, he stated.

"If you're going to change someone else's behavior, you will have to look at yourself first," Wilford said.

"CHILDREN HAVE to know that it's OK to emulate adult behavior.

"Drugs are here to stay," the educator said. "Marijuana will someday be legalized. There are all indications that it is well on its way. And then we will probably stop worrying about it. Alcoholism is our biggest drug problem and no one worries about it, because alcohol is legal.

"Now we're on a crusade to save the children, because we don't want them to become dope addicts. Some will tell them how bad drugs are."

"The truth is," said Wilford, "that a drug experience 90 per cent of the time is a good experience. 'Freaking out' is pretty much a myth. The idea that drugs are a bad, terrible thing is, from the standpoint of the user, most of the time not true.

"And so, fear has not worked. It hasn't deterred one bit the increased use of drugs among young people and adults," he said. Wilford said that drug abuse cannot be stopped simply by giving out information on the effects of drugs.

"You can kid yourself by thinking you can teach drug education by showing a filmstrip or giving out information. But if you want to take it seriously, you must realize that drug education involves feelings.

"THE DECISION to take drugs is an emotional decision. It isn't an intellectual one. If it were an intellectual decision, we wouldn't have one person in the United States using alcohol, for alcohol destroys the system."

"Happy, loving, secure children don't use drugs," Wilford said. "The child who does use drugs feels, 'the only way I can feel important and relieve the pain inside me is by turning on or turning off.'"

Educators have to be therapists if a drug education program is to be successful, according to Wilford.

"You have to attempt to help children change their feelings. How do you prepare yourself to teach emotionally? The best answers can be found by looking inside yourself, by understanding yourself as a person."

Dunne Shrugs Off Proposal For Lincoln County

Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne gave the proposal for a new county in the Northwest suburbs only a shrug of his shoulders before a meeting Tuesday night of the Palatine Township Democratic Organization.

"What proposals?" he asked when questioned about his reaction to the proposed Lincoln County. "I thought they only had the name."

The proposal for Lincoln County calls for secession of six Northwest suburban townships from Cook County and the formation of a new county. Palatine trustees Merwin Soper and Wendell Jones, originators of the idea, said the new county would be among the five largest counties in the state.

DUNNE ALSO told the Democratic workers that voter participation must increase in the suburbs if the Democratic party is to gain more electoral strength.

"This increased participation must come primarily from the young voters," he said. "And in asking them to participate, I always remind them if they don't, government will be what other people want it to be."

Rule Death Due To Natural Cause

The death of a 19-year-old Des Plaines man last week, originally thought to have been the result of an overdose of heroin, was classified Wednesday as a result of natural causes.

A spokesman at the Cook County Coroner's office said Kevin R. Schneider, 19, of 3074 Locust St., Des Plaines, died from congestive heart failure and not an overdose of heroin.

Schneider was found unconscious on the floor of his bedroom Aug. 28 by his father, Henry.

He was pronounced dead at 10:45 a.m., at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

Police said they found a spoon, hypodermic needle case and three packages of white powder, believed to be heroin, under the mattress of the youth's bed. Needle marks reportedly were found on Schneider's right arm, stomach and toes.

The spokesman at the county morgue, Jerry Shea, said a pathologist's report indicated only a small amount of narcotics was found in the organs examined, according to Des Plaines police.

Collecting Coins / Beware Of The Counterfeit VI

What appears to be a weakly struck, thin gold mint planchet turns out to be a poorly executed counterfeit $5 gold piece. Unauthorized specimens of both the Quarter-eagle and Half-eagle 1910 and 1911 issues are known to exist, but the workmanship of this particular coin makes it an obvious fake.

According to Cowles Complete Encyclopedia of U. S. Coins, the piece illustrated is U. S. Coin No. 104, A-Type VIII gold Half-eagle, size 14 or 7/8-inch in diameter with a reeded edge and weighing 129 grains.

This piece measures 13/16-inch in diameter with a thickness roughly two-thirds that of the genuine. Valleys between the "readings" on the edge are full of what is commonly referred to as garbage, uneven surfaces with granule eruptions indicative of a cast product.

Any striations or tiny parallel surface marks qualified to appear in the valleys should be transverse to the front and back of the coin. Here, however, groups of short striations run up and down the side of each valley, bearing witness to the fact that the coin was made in a rubber silicon mold with less than usual centrifugal force.

THE INTAGLIO method of engraving gives the effect of relief, although the entire design actually lies below the surface of the coin. On a genuine 2.50 or $5 Indian-head gold piece, these engraving impressions should be sharp and cleanly imbedded, containing only dust or dirt accumulated through circulation. But these latest fakes to hit the market show small nodules or sandlike particles foreign to a legitimate strike.

None of the detail normally associated with the famous Bela Lyons Pratt Indian-head design is present on these counterfeits. The beaded headband is almost smooth and the white, cottonlike gathering between the headband and the feathers resembles a long, irregular weld.

On a genuine issue, the letters in the word LIBERTY all but touch the edge of the coin. On the reproduction, the top of each letter and the bottom of each numeral in the date are either on the edge or completely off altogether.

The planchet of the $2.50 gold coin of this design is noticeably out of round.

Both specimens were purchased by one person on a recent trip to London, England, undeclared at the U. S. point of entry and sold as "mint errors" to a local flea-market merchant.

Unfortunately, the buyer did not request a certificate of authenticity from the returning tourists. Although such a certification from a London dealer would have absolutely no status in an American court, one from the tourist to the local vender would have made someone responsible for the act.

AN AIR FORCE sergeant stationed in Okinawa notified Coin World editors that he had purchased counterfeit U. S. gold $2.50, $5 and $20 coins from a firm in Oyama. Two $2.50 Indian-head pieces of the above design were returned to the dealer for refund, which was promptly made, less a 10 per cent discount.

According to the sergeant, U. S. gold coins can be purchased in practically every watch repair shop in Okinawa and nothing is being done by local authorities to curb the traffic. "I have learned a good lesson," was his only remark. "Do not purchase any gold in the Far East."

I repeat: Don't buy any coin, gold, copper or silver, from any dealer not ready to verify their genuineness with a signed, written statement to that effect.

Painting goes quickly enough when it is just straight painting over large, uncluttered surfaces. What slows you down is the preparation and the puttering about with odds and ends.

If you are planning to paint your house in the fall and are setting aside some time for it, make certain your time is well used by doing some of the small, time-consuming jobs now. There are things you can do in a few hours, some painting that can be moved indoors in bad weather.

Scraping and priming can slow you down later on, so do those things now. Use a wide-blade putty knife or a wire brush and get rid of all loose paint. Since you are not pressed for time right now, feather the edges of the paint with sandpaper around the cleaned spots so they don't show.

If you get down to bare wood, apply a coat of primer paint. These areas will be ready for painting with the rest of the house later on.

Gutters and downspouts can be tackled separately. These also may need going over with a wire brush. Rusted spots should be sanded clean, then primed. Finish painting the gutters ahead of time and that is that much less to do later on.

WHILE YOU CAN caulk while you paint it is another job that will slow you down. New caulking cannot be applied over old so don't try to fill in places where the old caulking is cracked and falling out. Clean out the old and scrape away all loose fragments. Then apply a strip of fresh caulking easiest method is with a caulking gun loaded with a caulk-filled cartridge.

Caulk around doors and window frames where foundation and siding meet and the inside corners of the siding. Fill small cracks and gaps with caulking.

Damaged or rotted siding should be spotted now and replaced. Rust spots may be caused by nail heads under the paint. Sand and spot prime with aluminum paint.

IF THERE IS anything you can remove from the house for painting under shelter do so. Take down awnings, shutters, storm doors. Paint outdoors if the weather is good, otherwise stack these in the garage and make use of a rainy day to paint anyway. Don't forget the storm windows that you have stored for the summer.

Now is the time to get supplies and tools in order. Make certain ladders are sound and in working order. Have enough paint on hand so that you don't have to stop for a shopping trip. Coverage will vary with different types of paint and the condition of your siding. The manufacturer's instructions will help you make an estimate.

If you are using oil paints have turpentine or thinner on hand for cleanups and for cleaning brushes. Latex base paints clean up with soap and water. Have plenty of rags around for wiping spills and drips.

You need a wide brush (3 or 4-inch) for siding, several narrower brushes for trim. Get old brushes in condition with a commercial brush cleaner and keep them that way.

Auto Trip Reveals The Grandness Of America

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO—The russet red of the Golden Gate, over the strait that empties into the Pacific, outlined by the neat cluster of the city that is San Francisco, was the end point of the median. A line of 3,339 miles on the speedometer, split across the belly of the United States. Nine days and eight stopover nights in leisure tempo. A westward caravan in 1971 drag. A getting to know the country again.

The excuse. A relocation, east to west, permanent. The style. An automobile trip that skipped the cavernous antiseptics of airports, the dinginess of train stations, to concentrate on concrete-asphalt strips of road which droned under the humming rubber tires. The whoosh of real summer wind.

We saw. We felt. We tasted. The grandness and grossness of America. The monotony and the evocative excitement. We discovered. How more than 200 million fill the landscape, end to end. There's a difference in traveling the regions of America. Physically, to the eye. Yet there's a sameness. In Americans. The people.

This is no diary of a drive. It's a tableau. Impressions. Minor experiences. An odyssey.

It began with a new set of tires. White-wall radials. Necessary, said the garage man in Leonia, N.J., one mile from George Washington Bridge. So there was a scurry the morning of departure. That meant full wheel balancing and front end alignment, too. Involvements of the gasoline age. Leaving delayed to 1:30 p.m., with a dinner commitment 500 miles away. Out of the question, we realized, as the rolling green of New Jersey blended into Pennsylvania woodland across the crest of the Alleghenies on new, superfast Interstate Highway 80.

WE DID GET to Canton, Ohio, that night, and the home of the Dick Gallaghers, Old friends. He directs Pro Football's Hall of Fame. Which makes it worth doing the tourist bit for one morning. And avoids the impersonality of a motel room for one night. Friends en route are worth detours. Conviviality at the end of an afternoon's driving: a homecooked meal; broad conversation after the confinement of a car. Like with John and Karen Fischetti of Chicago. He's the Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist, and their 12th-floor apartment overlooks Lake Michigan on a muggy summer day.

The fresh, gently swelling Ohio and Indiana countryside bumped abruptly into smog spewed from the steel mills of Gary and Hammond, shading entry into downtown Chicago like a shroud. The city people on a hot morning came down Fullerton Avenue and even out of swank Michigan Boulevard, converging ant-like on the lakefront beaches which survive. Urban tokenism to nature.

Then across Illinois and Iowa, undulating tableland, Route 80 rolls out in parallel bands of adhesive tape. White montage strips stuck on shades of farmer green. It's the "in" transcontinental roadway. Practical tedium, interspersed by Holiday Inns. Reserve ahead. Swimming pools, full, mostly kids, every late afternoon.

In the subdued lighting of the naugahyde restaurant in Princeton, Ill., the menu features Yankee pot roast, $1.85, including vegetable, salad and potatoes. Where's the gravy? "Give him the Ow Juice," barked the waitress to the kitchen. Tightly coiffed blond hair. That's her way with "au jus."

The national menu of America is hamburger, fillet of sole, shrimp salad, steak sandwich. Prices $1.25 to $2.00. Milk shake half a buck.

THE DRESS SHIRT and tie are a relic in transient America. Only the local businessman who wants to get away from the downtown diner wears them.

In West Branch, Iowa, there is a food store on Main Street. In front of the town library a youngster with freckles was hoisting a flag. It was a lazy summer afternoon. "You can go swimming," he said, "for 35 cents." West Branch was Herbert Hoover's birthplace. The Hoover Memorial Library is big business in towns.

In Omaha, Neb., a redhead kid with grease on his nose spun a tire wheel to balance it. Eliminates annoying shimmy of high-speed driving. He said he was from Grand Island. West 145 miles. "Once drove it in an hour and a half. Serve best steaks in the country there. Place called Dreisbach's. Try it." We did. Family trade — men with copper faces, lean cheeks, white shirts, short haircuts. He was right about the steaks.

In Boulder, Colo., where the western plains tilt and abruptly become rocky mountains, a waiting line on a Sunday morning outside a pancake house. And an outside loudspeaker calling in customers from the sidewalk. Up a mountain canyon, alongside Boulder Creek with cascades of water roaring over rock-strewn bottom, the Red Lion with gemutlich sauerbraten. You find the good restaurants by accident.

And in Elko, Nev., where the Basques abound — brought in to herd sheep — the Star on a side street by the railroad track serves meals family style, by the bowl. A $2.50 Italian-Basque dinner: soup, beans, French fries, spaghetti, salad, half a chicken, coffee and ice cream. Further down the road in Winnemucca, a nickel cup of coffee in the corner drug store and a bank of slot machines.

Food interrupts the enervation of driving. So do gas stops. The new national come-on, from Akron to Sterling, Colo., to Sacramento. Free car wash with a gas fill-up. And some places you also save money per gallon by pumping the gas yourself. Bugs on the windshield are a nuisance. The worst are in Nebraska, with Nevada close second. Plastic hood shields help. Also carry a sponge with corrugated cover, and a chamois.

Ecological awareness has come to the west. There's virtually no litter on the roadsides after crossing the Mississippi.

FOR A DIVERSION we branched off the superhighway system in Colorado to snail through Rocky Mountain National Park, throwing snowballs at the highest points, then whisked down and across Route 40 through Steamboat Springs, where we bathed in a pool of natural hot springs at 103 degrees and felt the closeness of a small town. In the morning, Millie, the waitress at El Rancho coffee shop, made toast for 14 prisoners in the jailhouse across the street. "Ever since we got a new sheriff," she said, "business has been good."

Back on 80, into Salt Lake City, the Mormon temple is a magnet for through traffic. You get into every place on the grounds but the main temple. Outsiders haven't been allowed in, an aloof young man in the information booth said, since before the dedication. And when was that? "In the 19th century." In Rome, you can still get into St. Peter's.

The final sights of a trans-continental auto trip blend together like the flickering lights of an Electric Circus. The great, empty Salt Lake the Bonneville speed racing flats, eerie with mirages. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Teacher Hired For Fire Science Unit

Kenneth O. Johnson, assistant professor, is the first full-time coordinator of the Harper College fire science program.

After 11 years as a fireman and 14 years in fire science education, Johnson says, "The vast field of fire science offers a terrific challenge, and the opportunities are tremendous. The image of a checker-playing, tobacco-chewing, axe-wielding fireman is no longer relevant."

According to Johnson, rapid technological progress has brought about extensive changes and has placed far greater demands upon the present day fire service than ever dreamed of 20 years ago.

"The present day fireman must not only have a broad knowledge of fire-fighting, but he must also have a broad technical knowledge in the area of fire science to cope with the vast demands facing the fire service today," Johnson said.

Johnson, 45, comes from the University of Nevada where he was fire science coordinator for four years. He had instructed in fire science for two years at Oklahoma State University and in the State of Maine fire service program for eight years.

JOHNSON WAS born in Portland, Me., and began his career as a member of the fire department at Millinocket, Maine.

He holds an associate degree in fire protection and a bachelor's degree in technical education from Oklahoma State University. He has credits toward a master's degree from the University of Nevada and intends to continue his post-graduate studies at Northern Illinois University.

Johnson and his wife, Marlon live at 221 Valley Ln., Hoffman Estates.

Harper's fire science program offers one-year certificates and two-year associate degrees for currently employed fire protection personnel and students seeking employment in the general field of fire science.

The Harper program began in 1969, with Captain Louis Galante of the Chicago Fire Department teaching two classes. A Harper fire science advisory committee made up of community fire chiefs helped formulate the expanding curriculum.

Larry King, former chairman of Harper's social science division, acted as coordinator of the program during its first two years. More than 200 students have already participated in fire science courses at Harper.

For the fall 1971 semester, all Harper fire science classes will be held at community fire stations. Each class will be held on two evenings, "back to back" to enable firemen of either 24-hour shift to attend.

ELK GROVE Fire Department will host classes for introduction to fire science. Classes in tactics and strategy will be taught at the Rolling Meadows fire station. Arlington Heights fire station No. 4 is the site for fire causes and investigation classes.

Inquiries about the fire science program should be directed to Johnson at Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine 60067, 559-4200, extension 383.

EnvironVan Talks Here

Students at four high schools in the Arlington Heights area will take part in a lecture-presentation on the "Ecology of Lake Michigan" by a team of Beloit College students during the week of Sept. 16.

The area schools are among 85 along the shoreline of Lake Michigan at which the Beloit team will appear.

Known as "EnvironVan," the program is designed to stimulate study of the environment by secondary school students. When possible, the team is also speaking to adult groups.

The local schedule follows: Sept. 16, morning, Palatine High School; Sept. 16, afternoon, Glenbrook North High School; Sept. 17, morning, St. Viator High School; Sept. 17, afternoon, John Hersey High School.

In addition to the formal lecture-presentations to the high school students, the Beloit student environmentalists will conduct a field trip each Saturday of their 14-week journey for students visited during the week.

The 1971 EnvironVan program is principally funded by a grant from the U.S. Office of Education. The team visiting schools along the lakeshore is one of five teams this fall. Other teams are touring the Wisconsin and Rock Rivers, the Grand and Kalamazoo Rivers, the Wabash River, and the Miami River.

More than 160,000 high school students in 350 high schools will be visited by EnvironVan this fall. Last year's pilot program visited more than 24,000 students at 78 high schools in nine states along the Mississippi River.

Making up the EnvironVan team that will visit locally are Don Meagher of Westbury, N.Y., and Joe Strapko of San Bernardino, Calif.

Prior to beginning its extensive trip, the team spent considerable time along the lakeshore viewing possible field trip sites, photographing geologic formations and other landmarks, and coordinating textbook material into a localized program.

The formal EnvironVan programs, which are presented at no charge to host schools and organizations, will be concerned with geographic and geological formations along Lake Michigan, as well as the effect of man on the lakeshore environment.

Covering about 4,000 miles in three and one half months, living in a 20-foot motor home, the EnvironVan team will be doing more than discussing a topic of contemporary interest. It also will be attempting to stimulate interest in the study of science as a career by demonstrating the many positive areas in which science can work to improve and preserve the environment.

Home The Vet — Needing Help

Men returning from Vietnam are learning all too quickly that job security was better in Indochina than in the United States.

They return to this country and face a job market which changed sharply in the past two or three years. In 1968 or 1969, some jobs were available; today, under the gun of a recession and inflation, jobs are not available for the highly qualified — much less the untrained — veteran.

In addition, any man who has served in Vietnam finds himself labeled, in the public's eye. To many persons, the returning veteran is a drug addict, has committed unspeakable war crimes or brings home violent hatred of his native land.

To most veterans, the easy labels don't apply. A minority of men return to the United States hooked on narcotics. Most would simply like to forget about Southeast Asia and get to the business of raising a family and making a living.

But today's veteran is different from the man returning from World War II or Korea. Having seen the useless waste of life in Vietnam, the vet tends to reject simplistic, black-and-white answers about foreign policy. Further, he increasingly wants to lead his own life, away from the pressures and prejudices of "authority."

He returns, too, with the feeling that America owes him something.

Place yourself in the shoes of a soldier who risked death many times while watching his buddies die. It makes sense, then, that America has an obligation beyond the military paycheck and the honorable discharge.

But America does not have the jobs or, occasionally, the open-mindedness to accept the veterans.

Unless American industry and business work aggressively to open up jobs, the veteran faces a long period of cynicism. Likewise, American industry will suffer from the missed potential of the returning men.

However, government and industry have begun to face the problem. For example, the Veterans Administration (VA) launched a program this summer to provide partial funding for on-the-job training for veterans. Officials of the VA stress both the veteran and the employer can benefit from such a program.

Likewise, two weeks ago it was announced that Cook County and municipal jobs, with salaries to be paid by the federal government, would be opened for veterans.

The Jobs for Veterans program, sponsored through the Illinois State Employment Service, is encouraging veterans to come in and talk about jobs. This week that organization, along with the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, is sponsoring the First Chicago Jobs for Veterans Career Conference.

All of these programs tackle a problem which cannot be solved easily. Employers should be encouraged to hire veterans, but a vast number of jobs simply are not available, nor is the money to create them.

A variety of veterans can be helped by job programs. Many men would be unemployable today with or without two years in the armed forces. Job training and placement for them will not only help solve the problem of the returning veteran; it will also permit more men to gain full-time employment.

Such help for the men and for society generally, can't come too soon.

Crack In Berlin Wall

"It was a sunny, warm summer day. Many people were out on picnics or excursions. It was a Sunday, the 13th of August, 1961."

Federal Republic Chancellor Willy Brandt reminisces in the West German magazine "Stern." On August 13, 1961, Brandt was mayor of a place called West Berlin.

"The mind did not want to accept what the eyes beheld," he writes. "A big military task force of the (East German) People's Army was sent into the eastern sector of the city. On the sector boundary, concrete stakes were rammed into the street, spiked chevaux-de-frise were installed, and the whole thing was linked up with barbed wire..."

In the three days between the unrolling of the first stretch of wire and the laying of the first concrete block, the West, in Brandt's opinion, missed a chance to negotiate an agreement with the Soviets on the status of West Berlin and the rights of West Berliners.

Be that as it may, after 10 years of the existence of the Wall and after recurring crises, such an agreement has at last been reached between the four one-time Allied powers of the United States, the U.S.S.R., Britain and France.

"No one should forget those who have died at the Wall," says Brandt. "And no one should forget that there is still shooting at the Wall today. But protest against this should not become a moral alibi for turning one's back on responsibility for the much more difficult task: despite the Wall, of creating conditions through which the firing is ended."

The Wall will not disappear by itself, says Brandt, but only when the division of Europe, of which the Wall is the "absurd and unnatural" symbol, is ended.

The day when that division can end is still far distant, and will be so long as half the population of Europe has no voice in deciding the kind of political system it lives under.

But the four-power accord on West Berlin, if only a small step toward that day, is a major step away from the "threat of war that has hung over Europe for many more than 10 years."

'I Have A Dream'

Why The Saint Shortage?

by REV. DAVID POLING

Ethical standards are taught in the home, formalized in the Sunday School and tried out in the market place. The proving ground for every person is in the living of his convictions, the expression of words into actions.

Yet many people today feel that mass society has made unnecessary a system of personal morality. The giant utility, the massive corporation, the sprawling central government seem immune to either the individual or his ethical practices. The result is seen in shallow performance, corporate lying and personal corruption.

Several airlines I know constantly lie about the arrival and departure times of their flights. And in winter, they lie twice as often. Reason: They would rather have you late than for them to lose a sale by your shift to another flight.

The Post Office has never solved the problem of those employees who do not want to deliver third- and fourth-class mail. A friend in business sent out a new booklet to 18,000 customers. Half of it was lost, "misplaced," destroyed or stolen. Higher rates have yet to yield better performance.

The telephone company has an undeclared war with young people who have developed a system (which we will not describe) by which they make long distance calls, using credit card numbers of unsuspecting neighbors. Result: Millions of dollars of stolen time taken from the Bell System. A kid down the street was nailed, finally, this summer and is paying $80 for calls he made since Easter.

In your town and mine there are a few families who think it is their divine right to push a shopping cart home from the supermarket. Eventually they are lost, broken, restolen. Cost is in excess of $100 per cart and I suspect that my food bill is paying for this suburban stealing. Write to your editor and tell us how to stop this one.

Not long ago, William Anderson, editor of Stereo Review, wrote a long piece on the ethics of taping. He noted that he was having a correspondence battle with many of his readers who disagreed with his stand that private tape recording was as bad as the commercialism of the tape pirates — those who sell unauthorized tapes, cassettes and records.

"The substance of many of the letters that aimed to set me straight might best be couched in the adjustable frame of a popular aphorism: 'If God didn't want us to tape recordings, he wouldn't have given us tape recorders.' Others tried to explain to me how buying a recorder and raw tape somehow pays for the time, effort and expenses of recording by soloists, orchestras and record companies."

Then Anderson made a point not often heard from the market place: "The subject of ethics has been a vexing question ever since Eden, when Adam tried to put the blame on Eve, and most people since have proved to be no better at it than he was. The sue-the-insurance company syndrome and hotel-towel and restaurant-ash tray 'souvenir hunting' are most certainly ethical no-no's (in the Judeo-Christian tradition, at least) but on this level the common man has solved the riddle of universal guilt: 'If everybody does it, it must be all right.'"

I don't know if the readers of Stereo Review realized what a basic course in ethics was being offered, but it struck home to this reader. Closed Anderson:

"My own feeling is that the ethical sense is a talent as rare as any other. It can be developed if you have it; you will remain a bumbling amateur moralist if you haven't. And like all true talents, those who possess it at the level of genius are extremely rare — which accounts for the shortage of saints."

Spraying: A Poor Mosquito Weapon

I was disappointed to read your editorial of Sept. 1, entitled "Again, Who is Getting Stung?", referring to the lawsuit filed by the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NWMAD) against the villages of Palatine and Schaumburg. Unfortunately it was written without thorough knowledge of the subject.

The scoffing of Palatine's experience of fewer mosquitoes this year using the excuse of a dry spring and summer ignores the fact that Palatine's ordinance banning spraying or fogging of pesticides has been in effect two years and there were also fewer mosquitoes last year, the wettest on record.

The statement that taxpayers were paying for services being prohibited indicates there was no review of the ordinances passed by Palatine and Schaumburg which had accompanying resolutions that state the funds formerly used for fogging should be applied to permanent control methods such as eliminating mosquito breeding sites.

Your suggestion that a referendum be held to allow the voters to decide the issue is admirable. However, if the state statutes were researched you would find that under the statute that established mosquito abatement districts a municipality cannot disannex itself.

The negotiation of differences with the NWMAD would be the logical approach except attempts were made and met with failure. The NWMAD board is appointed by a Cook County Circuit Court judge who appoints members to more than 60 boards and commissions. Their tax is the only one on your tax bill that is levied by a board not elected to office and cannot be removed by the voters. Taxation without representation? An attempt was made in the Illinois legislature two years ago to restructure mosquito abatement boards with a bill introduced by Senator John W. Carroll. It passed the Senate but failed in the House along party lines.

It is also interesting that since Palatine passed its ordinance 12 other municipalities have passed similar ordinances after conducting their own studies, interviewing authorities and confirming Palatine's findings. Five more communities are in the process of taking similar action.

At this point I'm sure you will agree that the editorial was written without checking the facts.

Environmentally speaking, there is substantial evidence available that the prolific use of pesticides represents a threat to the health and welfare of the public and fogging or misting is the most ineffective method of combating mosquitoes. I can present pages of testimony on this subject but will only quote a few.

Dr. Thomas H. Milby of the State Department's Bureau of Occupational Health and Environmental Epidemiology at Berkeley, Calif.: "Synthetic organic phosphate pesticides of 'highly toxic' capabilities are coming into use to replace DDT and related organic chlorine pesticides. Organophosphates include parathion, malathion, TEPP and phosdrin. They are capable of causing acute illness when absorbed in sufficient quantities. Small quantities absorbed unnoticed through intact skin can be harmful or even fatal."

D. H. Janzen, Associate Professor of Biology, Department of Biology of the University of Chicago: "If you have been using malathion in your area for some time, the mosquitoes are probably already resistant to it. If they are not already, they probably will be within a few years, and provided that you are dealing with a population which is breeding in the area that is being smogged. In other words, if you were to stop the smogging, probably the level of mosquito incidence in and around the house would not rise at all."

Dr. William R. Horsfall, entomologist at the University of Illinois, consulting entomologist for the World Health Organization and recognized international authority on the mosquito: "Killing adult horries of mosquitoes (by fogging), is almost impossible. You just move them around like when you sweep dust with a broom. The answer is to repel mosquitoes at specific times and specific places." Dr. Horsfall rejects all indiscriminate use of pesticides and area wide fogging from streets.

Dr. Eric Reiss, Chairman of the Department of Medicine at Michael Reese Hospital and Medicine Center, Professor of Medicine at the University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine: "The main arguments against widespread spraying are, 1) dubious long-term effectiveness and 2) potential hazards to the environment. It does not seem warranted to take risks for dubious benefits. . . . It would be foolish to pretend that we understand the full range of toxicity of organophosphates (malathion) in the life cycle."

Dr. Allan A. Filek, Public Health Director of the Evanston-North Shore Health Department: "I have concluded that the use of malathion in the attempt to control the mosquito should be stopped."

University of Massachusetts/U.S. Dept. of Agriculture: "The elimination of breeding is the only way to work toward a permanent reduction of the mosquito problem. Spraying, misting, fogging or dusting, with light applications of insecticides to kill adults, is a temporary measure."

Frank Graham Jr., Field editor of Audubon magazine: "Strong actions as well as strong words, are long overdue. For too long the citizen who claims a clean and healthy environment as his constitutional right has faced a legislative and administrative stone wall."

'Frivolity' Missed Mark

It is interesting to note the frivolity which permeates your editorial, "Again Who is Getting Stung?" on the Mosquito Abatement District's suit against Schaumburg and Palatine. For a newspaper which has consistently showed a real concern in environmental problems, it's nice to know you have a sense of humor. Do you really find it amusing that Schaumburg and Palatine have eliminated a large source of air pollution from their village limits? That seems very odd in light of your pious recommendations to the Arlington Heights environmental control hearings last June.

You seem to be unaware of the toxicity of the pesticide, malathion, not only to beneficial insects and birds but to human beings as well. It is a nerve gas derivative invented during World War II. It depresses enzyme activity in the human body causing muscle spasms, partial paralysis, chest pains and many other afflictions, as reported by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. This was the major concern of the citizens and girl scouts who worked very hard for the passage of these ordinances — the health, SAFETY, and welfare of its citizens.

Your lack of information continues in regard to the overall duties of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District. Mr. Wilbur Mitchell, director of the NWMAD, has a copy of the statutes if you are interested. Mr. Mitchell can also inform you that Palatine and Schaumburg are paying for other services besides spraying. Draining stagnant pools of water, larviciding with oil, and digging up old tiles are some of their other duties. The only trouble is they have been observed taking naps — regularly.

Finally, Mr. Mitchell can tell you that the spraying is only 3 per cent of its entire program — and I assume that is the figure for all of the communities "served" by this particular district. I find it hard to believe that the NWMAD would go to court over 3 per cent of its overall program. But let's take Mr. Mitchell at his word, which leads me to my final conclusion: If the people of Palatine and Schaumburg are swatting mosquitoes and not getting their money's worth, boys, I've got news for you, they've got a lot of company.

Mrs. W. K. Murphy
Schaumburg

Great Program

The Arlington Heights Park District board deserves recognition in its promotion of their swimming program. The boys and girls who were involved proved this sport to be enjoyable whether or not they swam in competition.

Don Anderson and his staff coached a most successful season. Having had the opportunity to observe many of his staff at work, it was most evident to see they were interested and enjoyed their duties. The boys and girls responded with enthusiasm and desire to improve.

Not only was there a desire to do one's best as an individual but also doing one's best as a team member. Anyone present at the weekly city meets could easily observe a spirit to win and an aura of good sportsmanship.

Special tribute should be given to Richard Impey at the Gallery of Homes, Arlington Heights. Through his generosity, the five boys and five girls with the highest number of points earned in competition in city meets were awarded trophies.

With the outstanding talent of Mr. Anderson in directing this program, the youth in the Arlington Heights Park District are afforded the opportunity to participate in one of the greatest sports — a sport they can enjoy as an individual or in the company or others.

Word-A-Day

Business

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — What have horse racing, card games and Shakespearean plays to do with running a big bank?

Nothing, perhaps, but they all have been used in summer seminars at the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Management for selected upper and middle management executives of New York State's big Marine Midland banking group.

The seminar, which runs a month in July and August, is in its third year. Marine Midland, which has banks all over New York State, annually sends 15 of its most promising executives to live on the university campus and take the course.

The stated object of the seminar is "to provide intellectual stimulation and exposures to ideas relevant to business leadership in modern society."

And how do race horses and playing cards sliding over green baize help achieve that?

Prof. H. Martin Weingartner, who teaches management science in banking at the seminar, explained that gambling games are an oblique way of helping the executives to learn how to optimize the possibilities of time-sharing on the computer for guiding decision making.

"So long as executives leave this field up to technical specialists they won't realize the creative possibilities of the interaction of the computer and management science through simulation and other techniques to optimize results," he explained. Betting against the computer on the horses or cards is a way to get into the matter.

Now about Shakespeare's plays. Robert A. Irwin, Jr., executive vice president of Dreyfus-Marine Midland Management Corp. in New York, who attended the 1969 company seminar on the Rochester campus, said: "We had the historical plays of Shakespeare, the Richards and the Henrys in the times of Wars of the Roses, conducted by Prof. Sheran Hawkins. We are fascinated by the parallels found in the attitudes and problems of rulers and ruling in those turbulent days in England and the management problems of modern American business."

Irwin also was stimulated by the course in current social issues. It was conducted this summer by Prof. Constantine Simionides of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Irwin said he learned a great deal that he had not before appreciated about the true nature of the critical racial, social, political economic problems in the United States today.

"The whole thrust of the seminar was to make us realize that handling people properly is vastly more important than anything else in business," he said. "And it's much easier to grasp that on a university campus when you're relieved temporarily from the daily pressures of a job."

The course in the seminar this summer was on the management of human resources, taught by Prof. Abraham Siegel, associate dean of MIT's School of Management.

If you don't know what a "Monroney sticker" is — and how to read it — you'll probably pay more than you need to, next time you buy a new car.

The sticker is the "Suggested List Price" that, by law, must be affixed to every new car offered for sale. It makes fascinating reading... as fiction.

Occasionally, some innocent who's just off the boat will pay the suggested list price. Everybody else understands that new-car prices are subject to haggling. But unless you know a right price when you see one — or hear it — it's a little like trying to catch a black cat in a dark basement. You're haggling in the dark.

Charlie Groves sold cars for many years — used cars, new cars, fleets of cars. He had his own dealership. Now he's turned writer and produced a paperback for car buyers that tells all: what a car costs a dealer, how much profit he has to make, what figures are going through the salesman's head when you're talking price.

J.C. Penney Reaching New Markets

From its Midwest regional headquarters in Rolling Meadows the J. C. Penney Co. is reaching out into new markets.

Much of this effort is directed at the suburbs according to H. L. Wright, heading the office at 5105 Tollview Dr. He cited the new Penneys stores slated to open this fall in the Woodfield center in Schaumburg and Lakehurst center, Waukegan.

"Most of our expansions are into suburban units," he said. "We still maintain urban stores however. We feel there's a place for both because we go where the people are."

"We have two types of stores," Wright said. "The majority of the stores are located in a shopping center but there are free standing units as well." There are some 340 stores in several states of the company's regional operation.

DISTRICT MANAGERS and other personnel based in Rolling Meadows must spend a large share of their time on the roads visiting the Penneys stores. It's a job Wright enjoys. "The business is merchandising and people," he said. "If a person likes both he can be successful in retailing."

Wright believes the company has to keep an eye on consumer buying habits as it follows the population growth into new markets. "This means that our main consideration is on maintaining quality," he said. "The consumer is demanding more from the merchandiser than in the past."

Penneys is guided in its decisions by its survey of changes in the American consumer's habits. The increase in new family formations, greater middle income prosperity, magnified by the expanding use of credit were among the company's considerations.

The 60-year-old company is undergoing the transformation from a soft goods store (clothing etc.) to a chain of full-line stores. Hard lines such as appliances, paint and furniture are being steadily added to the Penneys stores.

SINCE PENNEYS opened its first full line department store in 1963 sales nationwide have increased more than $2 billion. More than 27 million gross square feet of space has been added to its operations during that time.

NEARIN GCOMPLETION at the Woodfield shopping center in Schaumburg, the J. C. Penney store will be the largest of nearly 1,700 Penney stores in the United States when it opens Oct. 6. Architect's rendering shows the dark brick which contrasts with white stucco on the exterior.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My husband is on a lactose-free diet. He suffers from chronic diarrhea. Because of this, he has eliminated all foods with milk and also eats only brown bread. Despite this, he still has the old upset because we are not sure what foods contain lactose. Could you prescribe a diet or could we obtain a list of lactose-free foods? Does powdered milk contain lactose?

Dear Reader — This is a good time to clarify this problem. There are a number of people who cannot digest lactose. Lactose is a type of sugar that is found in milk (formed by lactation). The tissue in the breast forms a double sugar which we call a "disaccharide." This double molecule has to be broken up in the intestine to be absorbed. An enzyme called "lactase" makes this possible. If this enzyme is lacking, taking a small amount of lactose will result in diarrhea, expelling the disaccharide with lactic acid.

Now, I must point out that rarely some people also have an intolerance to other double sugars, like sucrose (common household sugar) and quite rarely maltose. These conditions are caused by lack of an appropriate enzyme in the intestine also. Lactose intolerance is by far the most common defect.

Lactose is a milk product. It is broken down by "fermentation" or the souring of milk. This means that cheese and buttermilk made from soured milk does not contain lactose. Unless the milk has soured, it will contain lactose — thus in answer to your question, powdered milk does contain lactose.

If you stick to cheese (and I usually recommend uncreamed cottage cheese) or soured milk, you should be able to eat anything else (not made of sweet milk or sweet milk products,) provided that lactose intolerance is the only problem. This means you cannot eat bakery products, including brown bread, if they are made with milk. You should be able to eat vegetables, fruit, fish, cereals, but not with any products made from sweet milk.

FOR THOSE RARE individuals who have an intolerance to sucrose, you need to go a bit farther. You can usually substitute honey for household sugar since it is made up of monosaccharides (one molecule sugars, glucose and fructose).

A number of fruits and vegetables contain sucrose which requires an enzyme action for absorption from the intestine. This has given rise to the thought that honey in some way is better than sugar. This appears to be true only for those rare individuals without the appropriate enzyme in the intestine to split common sugar into its two simple molecules.

His Talents Are Many

Personable Vincent Price

by GENIE CAMPBELL

While most people work all their lives to excel in just one area, there are a lucky few who become masters in many. Vincent Price is one.

His interests and knowledge span a broad range of subjects. He is a distinguished actor, an authority on art, a gourmet cook, lecturer, writer and author. And what Price has going for him even more is that, with his credits, he remains still so personable and unassuming.

"I love acting," he said during a recent press conference at his suite in the Arlington Park Hotel. He is in the area to help institute several new home decorating courses being opened by Sears, Roebuck and Co. They will be available at the new Sears store in Woodfield. "But, one must have outside interests, too," he continued.

"Actors can serve in other ways. After all acting is a great art form related to all other art forms."

PRICE WAS STUDYING art when the opportunity to go into acting reared up quite by accident.

Working toward his master's degree in art at the University of London after completing his undergraduate work at Yale University, Price won the role of a Chicago policeman in a London stage production.

Live theater gradually led him into a career of motion pictures and television. "Dr. Phibes," now playing locally, marks his 100th movie. It, like many of his most memorable pictures, is a horror film. Does he resent being frequently cast as a monster? Not at all... only the makeup now and then stings, he complained.

Throughout his acting, however, Price's interest in art has never subsided. When Sears decided to merchandise fine art in 1962, Price was asked to take charge of the program. Permanent galleries were opened, the largest of which is the Sears Vincent Price Gallery in Chicago.

A GREAT ART HISTORIAN, having written and lectured much on the subject, Price admits to no one favorite period of art. "It all depends upon what I'm into at the time," he laughed. "Right now, I'm taken with American contemporary art. It is the art of our time."

"Through posters and lithographs everyone can experience contemporary art without spending a lot of money," he continued. "However, you really can't know what you like until you know something. Money isn't everything. A very expensive furnished house can still be terribly cold," he added.

"Art can define a person. I trust people by their choice of art... what originals or reproductions they choose depending upon what they can afford. Art is much more than a canvas and oil. It has a great deal to do with design and taste," said Price.

"THE REVIVAL OF handicrafts is marvelous. Our educational system is a bore. It doesn't teach us how to live," he continued. "We need more education in training us how to utilize our leisure time. Handicrafts is all a part of this."

Price was an adviser to Mrs. Jackie Kennedy Onassis when she worked to historically restore the White House. As chairman of the Indian Arts and Crafts Board of the U.S. Department of Interior, he was contacted by the former Mrs. Kennedy about Indian art she wanted hung in the White House. Price has been genuinely concerned with getting Indian art significantly recognized.

Price has a great heritage of his own, descendants on his father's side having come over on the Mayflower.

"MY ONLY REGRET is that no one in my family ever married an Indian," he said. "I would love to be half Pottawatomi."

Price has one other love, the kitchen. A gourmet cook, he with his wife, has written a number of cook books.

"I learned to cook from my mother," he said. "She was of French extraction and an excellent cook. It was a great privilege for us kids to take turns cooking for the family. I guess it was good we all had iron stomachs," he smiled.

Vincent Price lives in Los Angeles with his wife, Mary, and nine-year-old daughter. He also has a son, 31. He too, once in a while catches his old flicks on TV.

"I was watching one film until I realized everyone in it but me was dead now. I turned it off, had three scotches and went to bed."

AN AUTHORITY ON ALMOST every facet of the arts, Vincent Price feels that young couples today should have a knowledge of what kind of art and furnishings they like before making large decisions.

Beat Changes But Goes On

Rock Music Enters A New Phase

by TONY VELLELA

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The closing of the Electric Circus, on the heels of the Fillmore East and West shutdowns, points up the continuing state of change now present in the rock music world.

"The sole incentive of too many groups has simply become money," stated Bill Graham, in ending the era of the Fillmore. Graham who opened the San Francisco Fillmore Auditorium in 1965, and the New York version three years later, has retired himself from the music scene.

Outdoor rock festivals have also been noticeably absent from the lineup of entertainment this summer, with only the ill-fated Southern Festival of Life even attempted. That event ended in three deaths, and a cancellation.

Money — the desire to make lots of it and the unwillingness to spend it — are the basic reasons behind the failure of the once-flourishing live rock entertainment scene. "They can't do it unless they spend the money," explained Lillian Roxon, author of The Rock Encyclopedia. "And they won't spend it. I think the result will be smaller, more local festivals."

ONE-NIGHT INDOOR festivals are indeed part of the new emergence. Arenas like Madison Square Garden are regularly filled for once-only performances, most recently for Stephen Stills and for the star-studded extravaganza with George Harrison, Ravi Shankar, Ringo Starr and Bob Dylan, all for the East Pakistani Bengla Desh Relief Fund.

But these events, with rare exception, are no match for the small-auditorium concerts that were their predecessors. Sound quality and sightlines are diminished as the hall grows in size. Graham commented: "I deplore the exploitation of the gigantic hall concerts."

The Fillmore East staff often was praised for its efficiency, professionalism and creativity. The light show — a Fillmore innovation — was encouraged by Graham, and Joshua White, founder of the theater's original Joshua Light Show, openly acknowledged Graham's patronage as one of the reasons the new art form flourished as it did.

THE ELECTRIC CIRCUS, the other East Village music spot, was noted more for its environment than its music, although many major acts appeared in the three-story building, painted alternately black and in day-glo murals. Financial troubles were also cited as its main reason for shutting down.

But the end of the rock palace as a showcase for music does not signal the end of rock. In fact, says Jeff Samuels, former rock critic for Variety, and now on the staff of Warner Bros. Records, "Business is as good as ever, if not better."

"Even though financially things are bad in the country, people still like to spend money on entertainment. The present situation hits the live entertainment field much harder, because they've got a staff to pay and a place to maintain, along with high salaries for the groups to contend with. At a record company, you have a continuing operation where one good-selling album covers the cost of other slow ones."

THE NEED TO HEAR music will be satisfied, at home through an album or in a mass-audience one-night festival.

"There'll always be music," says Miss Roxon, reflecting at the Fillmore East closing night party. "Of course, the music scene is going through changes. But it always has, and it always will, as long as someone wants to play music and someone wants to hear it."

Burt Reynolds' Other Side

He's Really A Funny Man

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Burt Reynolds is a man on the move. His recent explosion of popularity that has giggly-faced girls and mature women, too, in flirtatious lines seeking his autograph is the byproduct of a natural combination of good looks and wit.

Reynolds' numerous television roles have succeeded in giving him a name. But his personal and talk show appearances have given him his identity. Burt Reynolds is naturally funny, and it must be nice for an actor to know he is liked for what he is and not whom he plays on TV.

"I know this is a fair weather thing," said the celebrity, currently starring at Arlington Park Theatre in "The Tender Trap."

"IT COULD BE over tomorrow. I know that too. But I'm still flattered. I really like people and I think it's terrific," he continued about his stage door followings. "It's nice to know it's because of you being you and not the parts you play."

"I used to do a play a summer, but I haven't been on live stage in the last seven years," he said. "I've been able to get back into the right comedy timing through my appearances on the talk shows."

Reynolds is quick in giving credit to the talk shows for the "show biz" doors that are now opening to him.

"This is the first time that I am being submitted to exciting things," he said. "No one knew I could even do comedy at all. It's usually a shock to people that I can come on so funny. They think they have discovered me after 13 years in the business. But the truth is, that I used to do a lot of comedy."

REYNOLDS WILL BE hosting the Johnny Carson Show for the second time Monday evening.

"Hosting the show was the longest 90 minutes of my life," he said looking back at his first time. "Why I'm doing it again, I don't know," he laughed. "I said 'yes' before I even thought about it."

Having appeared on almost all the shows as a guest, Reynolds enjoys working with Carson the most.

"Carson is marvelous," he said. "He picks on me a little bit and then I'm ready to nail him. He couldn't anticipate more what I want to do when I want to do it. As far as I'm concerned, he's the greatest guy in the world."

Yet his compliments do not extend to Dick Cavett. "Picking on him is like picking on one of the seven dwarfs. The audience sits there and boos."

A GRADUATE OF Florida State College where he was a star halfback, Reynolds originally started out to play professional football, having signed with the Baltimore Colts. However, a serious automobile accident prevented him from ever playing.

He studied acting for a time, did local live theater and landed a number of small parts in motion pictures and television.

"I entered show business as a stunt man," said Reynolds. "I've done really everything... one liners, two liners, rolling down stairs. I didn't think I would go into acting seriously until the series 'Hawk' opened."

Reynolds is best remembered now for his title role in the television series, "Dan August." Immediately before opening here, he finished up the picture, "Deliverance," in which he stars with Jon Voight.

WHAT ARE HIS future aspirations? "I would like to get in a position to handle movie scripts that don't have the fingerprints of either Donald Southerland, Steve McQueen or Robert Redford all over them," he laughed. "Redford is locked into movies for the next three years," he continued. "He only picks the best."

Reynolds' home in Jupiter, Fla., a 180-acre ranch, is a retreat to which he tries to return after every engagement or commitment. When at home, he undergoes a rigid physical workout.

"I have a very strange physical program," he said. "Before working on a movie I'll undergo a crash program like training for the Olympics. I'll run three or four miles a day and work out in the gym at my house. I'll be in tremendous shape to begin a movie, but by the end of shooting it, I'm in terrible shape."

FOLLOWING NO SPECIAL diet, Reynolds admits to sometimes starving himself several days only to go wild and eat everything in sight over the weekend. "It usually balances out," he smiled.

But contrary to usual practice, there will be no time for Reynolds to shape up following his run at Arlington Park Theatre. Upon the completion of "The Tender Trap," Reynolds, after a guest appearance on "Laugh-In" and a couple weeks with "Hollywood Squares," will begin working on his next picture, "Fuzz," with Raquel Welch and Yul Brynner.

But, before Reynolds gets away, you have to ask him what kind of women he finds attractive, because that, probably above all else, is what female fans are most interested in anyhow.

"I LOOK FOR A sense of humor first in a woman," said Reynolds. "That really attracts me. I like a professional woman who is sure of herself but not sure of me... who looks like a lady but is not totally a lady in all departments."

What about women's liberation? "I just don't think about it at all. Women are underpaid and I totally agree that they should receive the same amount of money for the same amount of work. But while I believe in causes, I'm not much for marching up and down. I'm not sure what it even accomplishes. It's more a token attempt at grandstand play."

Van Johnson Next At Arlington

Van Johnson will star in Arlington Park Theatre's fourth production, "There's A Girl In My Soup," by Terence Frisby and co-starring Peter Pagan. Also being directed by Peter Pagan, the comedy will open Thursday, Sept. 23, and run four weeks through Sunday, Oct. 17.

"There's A Girl In My Soup" is a comedy about a newspaper food-and-wine connoisseur who dabbles in female delectations as well.

Following this comedy, Donald O'Connor will star in "The Seven Year

Itch," a play by George Axelrod. It deals with a man whose seven-year marriage is put to the true test when his wife spends a summer in the country and he finds himself living a bachelor existence in New York.

William Tregoe will direct "The Seven Year Itch." He is returning for his second time at the theater, having recently directed Ann Sothern and Ray Rayner in "Personal Appearance." The comedy will open Oct. 21 and play through Sunday, Nov. 14.

"The Tender Trap" with Burt Reynolds will continue through Sept. 19.

BURT REYNOLDS AND James Hampton discover an unexpected house guest, Joe Greco, following a wild party in a scene from "The Tender Trap," currently playing at Arlington Park Theatre. Reynolds stars in a comedy role in contrast to his recent part as Dan August.

Pair To Live In The East

The plans of Victoria Ann Finch and Thomas F. Irwin, July 31 newlyweds, are beginning to take shape. They spent the month of August honeymooning in New Jersey where they plan to make their home. Tom is now job hunting there and Vicki will be practicing teaching at Barrington High School, Barrington, until November when she rejoins her bridegroom.

Both the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Finch, 820 E. Oakton, Arlington Heights, and the groom, son of the Thomas R. Irwins of Union, N. J., are '69 graduates of Northern Illinois University and until this last June were graduate assistants at the university.

Vicki, a '65 graduate of Arlington High School, earned her degree in fashion merchandising and was an assistant in home economics. She will receive her master's degree in education next January. Tom received his B.S. degree in marketing and his master's degree in business administration. He was a graduate assistant in business.

THEIR MARRIAGE took place at 6 p.m. in St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights, with Fr. Raymond P. Devereux officiating at the double ring service.

White satin trimmed in lace and beads was Vicki's choice in wedding gown. The long train of the gown was also trimmed in lace, and her long veil was held by a headpiece of pearls. She carried two large gladiolus with orchid colored streamers and was given in marriage by her father.

Her sister, Mrs. E. L. Ballance of Carrollton, Va., was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were another sister, Miss Roberta L. Finch of Arlington Heights, Mrs. David Nelson of Itasca and Miss Patricia L. Hale of Speedway, Ind.

Their empire gowns were in a print of orchid and peach crepe with long, puffed sleeves. Their bouquets were kissing balls of orchid pompons with orchid streamers.

GREGORY J. IRWIN of Elizabeth, N. J., was best man to his brother, and Gregory P. Giloth of Wheaton, the bride's brother John E. Finch Jr. of Arlington Heights, and John C. Dengel of DeKalb were ushers.

The reception with sit-down dinner for 100 guests, was held at the Maitre 'd Restaurant in Elk Grove Village. Mrs. Finch received in a pink dress with lace bodice and crepe skirt and Mrs. Irwin in a baby blue crepe and lace dress. Both mothers had corsages of white orchids.

Bonnie Marks Weds In Germany

It was a completely different kind of wedding for the Fredric Marks family of 538 S. Newbury Place, Arlington Heights, when they saw daughter Bonnie Linda married in Göttingen, West Germany, on July 31. The bride has been working as a computer programmer at Maxplanck Computer Research Institute in Göttingen and met her husband in the city.

She and Bernhard Kemper, son of Herr and Frau Max Kemper, exchanged vows and rings in an 11:30 a.m. ceremony, but the rings were placed on the right hand instead of the left. The groom escorted the bride into Godehardkirche, followed by their families and friends. Bernhard's brother Norbit played the organ for the wedding service, which was spoken in German.

IT IS NOT THE custom in Germany to have bridesmaids, but the bride's sister Peggy and the groom's sister Elisabeth were her attendants. The groom's brother Wilfried escorted Norbit's wife Heidi down the aisle for the nuptials.

Bonnie chose a white satin gown overlaid with chiffon. The high neckline, long sleeves, Empire waist and train were all edged with lace and ruching. A white satin rose topped the bride's shoulder-length veil which she had borrowed from Heidi Kemper. Red roses composed the bridal bouquet.

Peggy Marks was attired in a floor-length dark brown knit printed with pink roses and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Elisabeth Kemper chose a long dress in yellow rose print and carried yellow roses.

Fiona Green, 9, of England was flower girl. She was attired in white lace and carried a basket of rose petals.

AS THE NEWLYWEDS left the church they entered a bridal limousine decorated with pine boughs and wreaths of orchids and gladioli. They then greeted their wedding guests at a dinner and dancing reception at Hotel Kehr in Göttingen.

Mrs. Marks wore an apricot taffeta dress and Frau Kemper a navy blue crepe for the wedding and reception.

Bonnie and Bernhard spent a two-week honeymoon in the Harz and Fruehling Mountains and are now back in Göttingen. Bernhard attends Göttingen Teachers College. He previously studied at the University of Newcastle in England.

Bonnie is a '67 graduate of Arlington High School and attended Purdue University.

Dear Dorothy: Is there any way to get stamps apart after they have gotten wet and are stuck together? —Imogene Brewer.

Stamps stuck together are one of life's minor frustrations. You can get them apart, but the stickum is gone and you have to use a dab of glue or cement. Anyway, just pour some boiling water into a clean coffee can, then spill it out so that the can is dry but hot. Put the stamps in and very swiftly you can separate them with no effort. Some readers have written to say that putting stuck-together stamps in the freezer will separate them. There must be something else to the trick. It hasn't worked for me.

It was the funniest thing. I suppose I have washed and polished it a thousand times, for it was a bridal shower gift over 25 years ago, and since Swedish coffee is served many times a day at Chas. Dahlberg, it has seen a lot of service.

It isn't anything too unusual — just a small, clear crystal cream and sugar set on a tray, with a design of hotmail on the handle. It was a nice size for our family, and I used it rather carelessly, keeping it in the cupboard with the "everyday" dishes. Luckily, it hadn't got chipped or broken.

Last week, for the thousand-and-first time, I washed the set and just happened to look at the bottom of the pieces as I was drying them. There, clear as anything (with my new granny glasses), I saw a mark, the Diamond H of the Heisey Glass, a common sight at antique shows and shops today, in vogue as one of the new collectibles.

TO THE LAND OF Legend, Newark, Ohio (so named for the historic Indian Mounds located within the city), Augustus H. Heisey came in 1866. He was a German immigrant, had served in the Civil War and had learned his glassmakers' trade working 25 years for the George Duncan and Sons Glass Co.

Augustus, with his sons George, Edgar and Thomas, formed the A. H. Heisey and Co. glass manufactory, and George developed the famous Heisey signature (an H within a diamond,) and convinced his father that all Heisey glass should be so marked.

George was somewhat of a visionary who believed in his work and expected it to take its place among the other giants of the glassmaking industry. Much antique glassware of other companies is not marked, for those early makers were businessmen and craftsmen, not concerned with future "antiquers."

GEORGE HEISEY CAN be thanked for his long view of the situation. He must have been the brain of the family, for he campaigned for Teddy Roosevelt, took an active part in local politics and was postmaster in Newark. He was a graduate of Lehigh University and started to work at the Heisey factory in 1886. He never married, and died in Newark in 1943 at the age of 73.

Edgar, the second son, took a great interest in glass, too, and became the company's second president. He was responsible for the increased variety of cuttings and etchings, and for developing several good colors which had popular appeal. He called them such romantic, self descriptive names as Flamingo, Marigold, Moon Glean, Sahara, Alexandrite, Tangerine and Cobalt.

Heisey quality is consistently high. The crystal is heavy and brilliant, and the etchings are intricate. Little deep cut glass was made, but much shallow cutting and engraving was done. Heisey is famous, too, for its figurines of animals and birds, over 50 varieties, some of which are found in color. These are late production, principally from 1944 to 1957.

IN 1957 THE PLANT was closed when sales began to fall off. The buildings were in need of repair, the molds were obsolete and profits were not sufficient to maintain the business. In April, 1958, all the remaining usable molds and equipment were sold to the Imperial Glass Corp. of Bellaire, Ohio. The old smokestacks were demolished in Newark (probably improving the air), and some of the best glass ever made in this country was no more.

For several years Imperial continued to make glass in the old molds, complete with the signature, and this has confused the situation with collectors. So far, Imperial has not produced any of Heisey's colors, but it is difficult to say whether the clear glass with the small Diamond H mark is really Heisey or Imperial. The latter company also makes a fine quality glass.

All former Heisey molds owned by Imperial are signed with the smaller mark, about one quarter inch in length. The larger one half inch mark used by Heisey from about 1901 to 1922 was not reproduced by Imperial. If you have a piece of Heisey with the larger mark, you may be sure it is genuine.

Questions? Write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Paddock Publications, Suburban Living, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Art Fair

Those who become members of Countryside tonight are eligible for a free caricature drawing. Further information is available through 253-3005.

Auditions For 'Period Of Adjustment'

Open auditions for "Period of Adjustment," the second production of the Schaumburg Festival Theatre, will be held this Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. each night, at the Schaumburg Township Library, 32 W. Library Lane in Schaumburg.

The play, a serious comedy by Tennessee Williams, has roles for four men and five women.

The action centers around two marriages at points of acute crisis. One couple has just broken up after five years of living together. The other couple has not been able to come to terms in just one day of wedlock. As both couples struggle through a period of adjustment, the sources of their crises are revealed in a humorous, compassionate way.

Directed by Michael Woids, "Period of Adjustment" will be performed on Oct. 29 and 30 and Nov. 6 and 7.

Information: 894-2380.

The sunflower population is growing. At least 10 area gardeners have called The Potting Shed claiming the local championship. Their babies range from seven to 11 feet.

Sunflower-growers will have to do better, the local record is 13 feet.

Several callers in the last few days have been concerned with brown recluse spiders. While our staff appreciates the fact that people do turn to their newspaper for help, we are not qualified to make determinations on poisonous or non-poisonous spiders.

If you have spider problems and believe they may be recluse, send the spiders to Dr. J. D. Unzicker, Room 93, Natural Resources Building, Urbana, Ill. 61801, for identification. He is making a study for the Illinois Natural History Survey to pinpoint where the brown recluse can be found in Illinois.

A ONE-POUND tomato, 15 inches in girth, is the top contender for "The Biggest Tomato Contest." The grower is Joe Mazzoni, 2101 Jody Court, Mount Prospect, who plans to use it as a seed tomato.

If you have a garden at Prairie Park and can locate a tomato bigger than Joe's, bring it over to Paddock Publications for a step on the scale. Remember, it doesn't have to be beautiful, just big.

Poison ivy has hogged the spotlight, but chrysanthemums, daisies, feverfew, philodendrons, nettles and buttercups can be equally irritating, says Dr. Albert

H. Stepan, a dermatologist. He calls these plants "bad actors" — botanical irritants which provoke skin and eye reactions in sensitized people.

THE IRRITATING chemicals in the plant may be in the leaf, tuber, stem, and the poison capacity depends upon the weather, the season, the terrain and the stage of development. Worst of all, once a person develops a sensitivity to one plant, he's likely to become sensitive to other irritant plants as well.

I'm that way with roses and dahlias. One sniff and I'm laid up for a week.

Speaking of dahlias, the 40th annual Central States Dahlia Society Show is set for next Saturday and Sunday (Sept. 18-19) at the Garfield Park Conservatory, Central Park Boulevard and Lake Street, Chicago. Full show details are available from show chairman Dick Mundt, 1485 Lincoln, Des Plaines. Mrs. Emil Fick, 918 S. We-GO Trail, Mount Prospect, is in charge of the artistic designs. The show is free, and for people like me, the beauty is in the looking — not the sniffing.

Youth Orchestra Holds Auditions

The North Suburban Youth Symphony Orchestra will hold auditions for new members this Wednesday, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., at Old Orchard Junior High School, 9306 N. Kenton, Skokie. There are openings in all sections.

String, wind and percussion players will be auditioned. Any high school student who plays an instrument and is interested in orchestral performance is invited.

Plans are underway for two concerts to be held during the year. Regular rehearsals are every Monday, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., at Old Orchard Junior High. Further information is available through Dr. Alvin F. Mistak, director, 482-3890, during school hours on 692-2154, evenings.

Registration Now Open For Countryside Classes

Registration is now open for art classes being offered by Countryside Art Center to begin the week of Sept. 27.

Charlotte Pollari will teach beginning painting, Tuesdays, 9 a.m. to noon, at Hasbrook Park beginning Sept. 28. The class offers an introduction to painting through the exploration of various media.

Intermediate painting with instructor George Buehr begins Thursday, Sept. 30, 1-4 p.m. at Camelot Park. For students with some painting experience, the class will experiment with various media and approaches.

Through discussion the student will learn to assess his work and the work of others in a critique class being taught by Barbara Housekeeper, Thursdays, 7-10 p.m., at Hasbrook Park. Classes begin Sept. 30.

JEROME WALKER will teach etching, Mondays, 1-4 p.m. beginning Sept. 27, at the Gallery, 407 N. Vail, Arlington Heights.

Also at the Gallery, a course in photography by Madeline Dugas will be offered Tuesdays, 7-10 p.m. Lab techniques of developing and enlarging, with emphasis on exploring the photographic process as an art form, will be covered in the course.

Judy McKee will be the instructor for a beginning art course for children (no age limit) Saturdays, at Pioneer Park, 9-11 a.m. It begins Oct. 2. The class is intended for children who have had some experience with basic materials. Activities will be directed toward individual creative awareness.

IN ADDITION to the schedule of classes being offered through the cooperation of the Arlington Heights Park District, Countryside Art Center is also sponsoring a series of daytime programs which will include trips to the Art Institute and the Museum of Contemporary Art. Bus transportation will be provided by the park district.

Registration for both the classes and special field trips may be made at the Countryside Gallery, 253-3005, or at Olympic Park.

Ruthie's Hotpants Noncommittal

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a new book called "Figleafing Through History," clothing is classified as an important medium of communication.

According to its thesis, the way people dress tells you more about them than you could learn from seeing them naked.

Well, sure. Everybody knows nudity is unrevealing. Hardly anything is more uninformative than an expanse of blank skin. This is the reason so many summer vacations end up on the rocks.

A good example is Sidney Barnowl, a bachelor friend of mine who took up with a girl named Ruthie while vacationing at the beach this summer.

"I'm in love with her," Sidney told me upon his return.

"DON'T BE silly, Sidney," I replied. "You don't know anything about the girl. You've only seen her in a bikini."

But Sidney was badly smitten and during his first week at home he took Ruthie out on a couple of dates. Both times she wore hot pants, which are pretty non-committal.

"I have a feeling that Ruthie is keeping something from me," Sidney said when I asked how the affair was going. "There seems to be a wall of secrecy between us. However, this gives her an aura of mystery that is both intriguing and challenging."

On their third date, when Ruthie again wore hot pants, Sidney remarked that he bet she would look good in slacks.

"I like you, Sidney," Ruthie said, "but I don't feel secure enough in our relationship to go out with you in slacks. We aren't ready to communicate on such intimate terms."

ON THEIR fourth date, however, Ruthie wore a mini-skirt, so Sidney figured he was making progress.

"That mini-skirt tells me she is on the verge of getting personal," Sidney confided.

On their fifth date dinner at her apartment, Ruthie met Sidney at the door in a flimsy negligee. But after one glass of champagne, she said "Pardon me while I slip into something more communicative."

Presently she emerged in a Mother Hubbard. "Now you know the real me," she said. Later that evening they agreed not to see each other again. Sidney said he happened to look inside her clothes closet and discovered that they had a serious personality clash.

One of the insoluble problems for those who use forcing single jump raises is how to handle the jump from one to three in a minor suit. If the user is a writer he says the raise is forcing but is careful to avoid giving any example or specifying whether the bid is a one-round force or a game force.

It is so much easier to use the single jump as a strong invitation and let the opener decide whether to go on.

South opens one club in line with the recognized principle that with 4-3-3-3 distribution you should open one club rather than one spade. North gives a limit jump raise to three clubs.

With 15 high-card points South feels justified in trying three no-trump. He knows that no guarantee goes with that contract but if you wait for guarantees you won't do well in bridge.

South wins the diamond lead in his own hand and has no trouble collecting nine tricks. In fact he will probably come up with 10.

If North and South are using forcing raises, North has no way to respond to the club opening. Two clubs is an underbid — a forcing three clubs an overbid. If he takes the high road and does bid three clubs he gets to the right spot. If he just bids two clubs a game has been thrown out the window.

Phone Drive Seeks Hunger Hike Funds

A large-scale telephone campaign has been started by those who worked on last spring's "Hike for the Hungry" in the Northwest suburbs to encourage the hikers to turn in the money they raised.

To date, $15,800 has been collected from the hikers, but about half of those who marched have not turned in the money they raised through pledges by sponsors, according to Rena Trevor of Rolling Meadows, chairman of the fund raising campaign for the Northwest Opportunity Center and the northwest suburban Head Start program.

Half the funds raised from the hike will benefit Head Start and the center. The remainder will go to national and international projects sponsored by the Walther League of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod. The Walther League sponsored last spring's hike.

MRS. TREVOR said that many of those who marched may have been out of town or have forgotten to turn in their money. The money is being accepted at the opportunity center, 3411 Kirchoff Rd., Rolling Meadows.

She added that members of the two suburban and poverty groups are planning speaking engagements before area ministerial associations in an effort to obtain donations.

The center and Head Start are seeking to raise $60,000 between them to help fund their two programs in the coming year.

Moonlight may be romantic, but it isn't very revealing.

There's a lot to be said for moonlight—but your yard shouldn't have to depend on it. It's too easy to overlook the half-concealed tricycle on the edge of the front walk. Or the unexpected step in your backyard path. An electric pole lamp, controlled by a photoelectric cell, will light up automatically at dusk and bathe your sidewalk and drive in gentle but revealing light. Lighting at the curb or along the garden path can warn you of that unexpected step or unreelied hose. And an electric yard lamp controlled from both the house and the garage will illuminate the garage and outdoor storage area.

Make the outside of your home as safe and as cheerful as the inside—with electric yard lighting.

Motorcycle Spectacular Revving At Arlington Park

by JIM COOK

Wednesday was just a dry run with only four or five machines running in gear and down "fast-lane" fashion. Tonight will be different. With $15,000 at stake, nothing will be held back.

The scene will be Arlington Park as it adjusts from a horse bettor's paradise to a motorcycle bonanza in a unique feature of nine power-packed, dirt-expelling races.

The program will get underway at 8 p.m. and will include the featured Yamaha Gold Cup with a $4,000 first-prize price tag, the dramatic cycle-jumping exhibitions of Iowa's Steve Droste, the American Motorcycle Association's 1970 Grand National Champion, Gene Romero and the famed Medina Precision Motorcycle Drill Team.

Wednesday's preliminary display by a handful of eager competitors revealed exactly what kind of entertainment will be on hand tonight. The young daredevils covered the one and one-eighth mile sand-clay track with cruising speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

The only protection and self-assurance the riders have from being covered by a 400-pound iron blanket is a thin steel plate attached to their boot which steadies them through the finely graded banked turns at the culmination of both straightaways.

Once through the turns, the "Iron Horse Derby" jockeys unleash the throttles and bend prone against the handle bars to insure maximum speed against wind resistance.

Having completed the oval excursion a couple of times, Palatine entrant John Lemme drew these conclusions:

"It's a good course with a tricky dip going into the third turn. I believe they'll have to water the track down quite frequently to settle some of the dust. You can go into the turns wide open, but with the loose traction, you don't go anywhere until you straighten up again. I still have to find tires that will grip properly, maybe something cut or with spikes."

All the bikes are modified with frame and engine conversions almost a necessity. The mile-plus circuit will accommodate 750 cc bikes and speeds up to 130 miles per hour. Street machines wouldn't stand a chance.

The starting of each race may supply the most spectacular highlights of the evening. Traditionally, the races are lined up handlebar-to-handlebar, awaiting the green flag. Tonight, however, for probably the first time in the history of the sport, the riders will pop their clutches from inside the confines of the standard starting gates used by the thoroughbreds.

Not only will it be hard to anticipate each other's moves, but occasionally, the front wheel lifts completely off the ground during initial acceleration as the potent engines begin delivering their awesome power.

A frequent spill can almost be expected, especially when a near-ton of steel converges at the slick first turn. Drivers are somewhat protected from surface scrapes by their leather head-to-toe suits and a mandatory helmet with safety shield to protect the face. It's also an instant steam bath during the heat of the action as pounds literally melt away.

The night-racing aspect offers another challenge for the touring riders who are generally accustomed to racing under Mother Nature's lights. No problems are foreseen, however, as Arlington's night racers will illuminate the entire track and pit area.

The one-night spectacular promises to introduce a new breed of sport into the Northwest suburbs. The trials and thrills of blaring, exploding engines coupled with the skill and precision control by the outstanding riders is a sight to see—a very, very fast sight to see.

Tickets are still available at all Chicago area Ticketron outlets, Sears stores and the Arlington Park Towers Hotel neighboring the track.

"WE'RE NO. 1. We're No. 1."

Yes, it's that time again. I know you've heard that chant before. You'll hear it again starting this Saturday.

The colleges get into the act first with one of their earliest opening dates in history.

We've just gotten past Labor Day, and now 14 of last year's top 20 teams in college football will take the field tomorrow in season curtain-raisers.

I'm not complaining. I think it's great. New everybody can start the fun again of picking a No. 1 team in the nation.

Remember New Year's Day, 1971, when intercollegiate football revived the Alphonse and Gaston (I got it—You take it—I got it) act to decide the national championship?

It started out with Texas and Ohio State battling for the championship and wound up late at night with Nebraska gaining most of the recognition as the nation's No. 1 team, somewhat by a process of elimination.

Texas, the defending national champ (except in Pennsylvania) with a 30-game winning streak, was the first to fall, as Notre Dame frustrated the Longhorns with a 24-11 upset in the Cotton Bowl.

Texas was losing when Ohio State took the turf in the Rose Bowl against Stanford. No way Woody Hayes was going to lose this one. Woody lost this one.

That left the championship up for grabs in the Orange Bowl, where unseaten, but once-tied Nebraska met defensive-minded Louisiana State. The Cornhuskers pulled out a 17-12 verdict and gained the national championship recognition accorded by the Associated Press and the Football Writers Association of America.

Texas had been voted No. 1 in the United Press International poll at the end of the regular season, and Ohio State had been named co-champion by the National Football Foundation.

This No. 1 game gets more enjoyable every year. President Nixon picked his No. 1 team for the 1969 season and antagonized the entire community of University Park, Pa., home of Penn State.

Back in those days when college football players wore those snappy one-piece leather uniforms, it was no problem picking a No. 1 team.

You simply looked through the magazine that picked such things to see if they had selected Yale, Harvard or Princeton. If you didn't agree, it really didn't make much difference. It wasn't the talk of the campus.

You told your friend that your school was No. 1 in those days and all he said was, "Gee, that's great. But I'm busy. I've got to go out and invent the airplane."

Things have changed — dramatically. Today there is hardly any crusade in sport which can equal the quest of the fan, coach or player for No. 1.

Remember that dramatic confrontation between Notre Dame and Michigan State in 1960? You know the one. Ara won for a tie, and they've been talking about it, and arguing about it, ever since.

Notre Dame was the nation's No. 1 team at the time. Michigan State was No. 2, the score was tied at 10-10, the Irish had a first down with plenty of timeouts left, momentum going and ample room on the clock for passing. But they ran into the line, settling for a tie.

When the game was over, Ara Paraghiian still claimed No. 1 for his team (Notre Dame did in fact win most of the popularity polls), saying, "When you're Number One and you only get tied, you can't lose it."

Michigan State's Duffy Daugherty said, "We ought to be Number One and Notre Dame ought to be Number One A."

Alabama also claimed a No. 1 ranking and when all the polls were in at the end of the season, the loyal friends of Bear Bryant went out and put license plates on their automobiles which said: TO HELL WITH AP AND UPI, ALABAMA IS NO. 1.

That was quite a year for the No. 1 hassle. Actually, every year is quite a year. Don't believe any coach who says he doesn't look at the papers or the rankings. That's like Leo Durecher saying he doesn't read the papers and then refusing this summer to talk to a Chicago sports editor who was blasting him regularly in columns.

A coach may say he doesn't look at the ratings, or care about them, but tell him he's No. 2, and he'll say, "Number nine! Who's number eight, or seven? I don't believe it."

Johann McKay of the University of Southern California says, "All I know is that John McKay reads them, my kids read them, and everyone I know reads them. They must create a little interest."

When I worked for the Daily Illini as a University of Illinois student, I researched the story of the football poll. It actually started on the Illinois campus in the mid-1920s.

A teacher of economics at Illinois named Frank Dickinson was a football fan who privately enjoyed rating all of the teams in the country by his own mathematical formula. He happened to mention this in his classroom one day and a student in the back row who was sports editor of the Daily Illini wrote a story about it.

The story came to the attention of a Chicago clothing manufacturer, another football fan, who decided he would like to use these ratings to select the top team in the Big Nine (later Big Ten) each year — they didn't all play each other — so he could present a trophy to the winner.

When Knute Rockne at Notre Dame heard about this, he invited both the professor and the Chicago businessman to South Bend and said, "Why not make it a national trophy? Then Notre Dame will have a chance to win it."

So they did. When Rockne spoke, you listened.

Others got into this business of football polls and by 1928 the syndicated experts came in with the emergence of Dick Dunkel's "power index." Sportswriters and broadcasters soon voted for the AP and a board of coaches selected the No. 1 team for UPI.

No. 1 is always going to be out there somewhere, just a bit out of reach for most, but there's always that beautiful dream.

"When you're playing for a national championship, it's not a matter of life and death," Michigan state's Daugherty once said.

MSL Grid Action This Weekend

Sneak Preview For Fans

Football fans of Mid-Suburban League schools will get a sneak preview of what might be coming when conference schools hold intra-squad games at various times this weekend between junior varsity and varsity teams.

It will be the first time for many fans to watch boys in game conditions and make their own appraisals.

Coaches, of course, already have a good idea of who can do what from scrimmages in practice. Still, the weekend's intra-squad action will give them another chance to see their troops in combat and to help make decisions on who will be regulars at certain positions.

In many cases, three different scrimmages will be held — on the freshman, sophomore and varsity levels. Some schools are charging admission in order to raise needed funds for athletic programs.

MSL defending champion Arlington will take the field Friday evening at 7:45 in a controlled scrimmage, sponsored by the Cardinal Booster Club. All students carrying identification cards will be admitted free, as will Booster members and their families. Those in Arlington Heights Boys Football program will also be admitted free if they wear their game jerseys. Others will pay a charge of 50 cents.

At 7:30, the frosh will have a mini-scrimmage, as will the sophs during half-time of the varsity action.

"We're trying to get more people out," says Arlington coach Bob Walther of tonight's scrimmages. "At least, basically, we're in pretty good physical shape right now. Tuesday was the first day we've had everyone there."

Prospect, last year's MSL runner-up, will wait until Saturday night for its preview. There will be a meeting in the fieldhouse at 7 p.m. for rules interpretation by an official, followed by introduction of coaches and players and a speech by the Booster Club President.

Then everyone will move outside at about 8:00 for a varsity-JV scrimmage with game conditions and officials. There will be no admission charge.

Hersey, under new head coach Joe Gliwa, will have its three intra-squad clashes tonight starting at 6 p.m. In case of rain, the affair will be postponed 24 hours.

Admission to the Hersey scrimmage will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students. Huskies Booster Club members will be admitted free.

The Hersey marching band will perform at halftime. Booster Club members will be on hand to accept membership fees and applications.

The Hersey freshman will play one half, the sophs will also play a half and the varsity and JV will go four full quarters in that order.

At Wheeling, the festivities will also get underway at 6 p.m. tonight when the sophs will play half a game. At about 7:30 the varsity and JV will engage each other for four quarters.

Wildcat coach Jack Liljeberg reports: "Progress has been slow but steady. Little by little we're putting all the things into our drills and scrimmages and the kids have been accepting it well."

WHAT CAN BE DONE?

Dear Sirs:

Everyone says that the Cubs have to make changes to be a contender next year. But after looking over their roster, who are the Cubs going to trade and what can they get in return?

It seems that any trade that the Cubs could make would hurt them in some positions and help them in others. What good would that be?

Stan Church

Buffalo Grove

Dear Sirs:

You guys seem to have all the answers. All you've done is knock the Cubs. Now, how about some constructive words.

If the Cubs are going to help themselves only by trades like you say, what do you have in mind? If you're so smart, you make a pennant winner.

Name Withheld By Request

Elk Grove

Dear Sirs:

It would hardly be the same with players like Santo, Kessinger, Hundley, Williams and others gone from Wrigley Field.

But since it looks like the Cubs are not going to win a pennant, anyway, I guess the trades have to be made. I'd rather see the Cubs try to win the pennant with new faces rather than trying to stay out

Sneak Preview Of MSL Gridders This Weekend

"We already know which of them are ready to go. We're looking for others and there have been a few surprises along with some disappointments."

Palatine will hold its annual Red-White intra-squad game tonight starting at 6:30. Each squad on each level will be split into two units and will play controlled scrimmages. The frosh will start at 6:30, the sophs at 7:00 and the varsity at 7:45.

Prior to the varsity clash, at about 7:30, there will be a rules explanation session.

Tickets will be available at the gate for a dollar for adults and 50 cents for students. Proceeds will go to Very Interested Parents (VIP) of the High School. Much of the intake will go toward paying for the field's lights which were installed last fall. Proceeds will also be used for other school activities.

At Fremd, the Viking Booster Club will sponsor an intra-squad clash Friday. Controlled scrimmages will begin at 7:30 with freshmen, followed by sophomores and varsity candidates... as well as the Viking marching band.

An advance ticket sale has been conducted by Booster Club members. Proceeds will fulfill commitments made to encourage and foster extra-curricular activities at Fremd.

"We've had some good, spirited scrimmages already," says coach Al Ratcliff. "I hope to platoon a lot and give plenty of boys a chance Friday to show what they can do."

Elk Grove's intra-squad game will also be Friday beginning at 6:30 with a contest between the freshman A and B teams. The sophomores will go against the junior varsity at 7 p.m. and the varsity will knock heads under game conditions starting at 8 p.m.

Grenadier fans will get a chance to see the wishbone formation at work, which head coach Don Schmale hopes to employ. Elk Grove is considered a top contender for the league's South Division title.

Conant will stage three separate scrimmages Saturday evening. The freshman A and B teams will compete from 5:30 to 6:15, the sophomores from 6:15 to 7:00 and the varsity and JV from 7:45 to 9:00. Before the varsity contest will be a cross country exhibition at about 7:15.

Admission charge at Conant will be $1 per person, which includes refreshments. Proceeds will be used for paying for new lights which went up at the football field last year.

Forest View's scrimmages begin at 6:30 Friday and work up, level by level, to the varsity intra-squad game at 8 p.m.

"We seem to be in pretty good shape," says Falcon coach Paul Jordan. "That's one thing we learned from our scrimmage (last Saturday). 'We've got to work on things like quickness and a little better timing in plays. But we're pretty pleased."

"I think we're way ahead of what we have been in years past as far as our preparation for the first game. Our offense looks pretty good. It's getting better all the time."

Schaumburg, starting its first year of varsity play, does not have a lot of numbers and no junior varsity squad to scrimmage against. So coach Bob Ferguson will run his first offensive team against the second-string defense and vice-versa Friday after school.

The Saxons are temporarily without a field, since it was recently sodded and cannot be used until mid-season, so action will be on the practice field at about 3:30.

Training has been proceeding about on schedule and the Saxons are reportedly eager.

Rosemary Baer Eagles 11th Hole

In the Swingers Golf League at Old Orchard Rosemary Baer had an eagle on the par 4 11th hole.

Rosemary's drive on the 213-yard hole went one foot past the hole and she dropped the putt.

Gals collecting birdies were Marion Gargill on the 11th of the back nine; Evelyn Karkula, also on the 11th; Addie Miller on the second hole of the sporty nine; and Mary McKillip on the seventh hole of the sporty nine.

Low putts for the weekly event were picked up by Mickey Newhouse on A flight (17 putts), Rose Podlesak on B flight (18 putts), Donna Douglas on C flight (18 putts), and Peg Hendricks on D flight (15 putts).

Low gross and net honors went to Annette Young in A flight (48-13-33), Rose Podlesak in B flight (48-14-34), Addie Miller in C flight (49-24-25), and Rita Schrock in D flight (61-29-32).

Mustang coaches will be introduced by Tom O'Driscoll, athletic director, and parents will be able to meet them after each scrimmage. Action will be held at the east end of the school since the game field is still being worked on.

A Mustang Booster Club table will be set up near the field to sell new membership.

Rolling Meadows Hosts Playoffs

The First Annual Rolling Meadows Tournament of Champions 16-Inch Softball Playoffs will begin tonight at 7 p.m. at Kimball Hill Park in Rolling Meadows.

A top-notch field of 12 teams from Wisconsin, Indiana and Illinois will compete in the single elimination tourney. The Rolling Meadows Bruins will join Dana's Tap from Pelic, Wis., Gary Sportsman's from Gary, Ind. and Carlucci's Team, among others.

Two games will be played tonight and four Saturday with the playoffs and championship on Sunday. Trophies will be awarded to the top four teams.

Paddock Women's Classic Opens At Rolling Meadows

If you're looking for the name of the defending champion, you won't find it. If you're looking for another tense, action-packed season of high-average bowling competition, you will find it in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League.

The game move into action Saturday evening at Rolling Meadows Bowl, and the sponsor of the defending champion is missing.

Lastest Chevrolet, 1970-71 grand champion, is not picking up a sponsorship for the new season, and captain Donna Reinhardt of that championship outfit is recovering from knee surgery, but there's a cast of eight sponsors, and eight captains anxious to bag that 1971-72 crown.

The field of sponsors features Arlington Park Towers, Franklin-Weber Pontiac, Morton Pontiac, Thunderbird Country Club, L-Tran Engineering, Des Plaines Lanes, Doyle's Pro Shop-Striking Lanes, and Kollo Office Supplies.

Captains for 1971-72 are Peggy Wales (Towers), Marge Lindenberg (Franklin-Weber), Jan Broderick (Morton Pontiac), Jean Ladd (Thunderbird Country Club), Lorrie Koch (L-Tran), Delores Harris (Des Plaines), Eunice Whitmore (Doyle's-Striking, last year's runnerup), and Peggy Harris (Kollo Office Supplies).

The girls will take team averages that range from 862 to 882 into the opening night of competition.

In Case You Missed It . . .

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, Wednesday, Aug. 18, 1971

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite President Nixon's order raising import duties, the price of a foreign car is expected to decline slightly, according to an explanation issued Tuesday by the Treasury.

Mr. Nixon announced Sunday that a 10-per cent tariff would be applied to all imported products not exempt by law from duties or covered by statutory quota restrictions.

But since a 3.5-per cent duty already was being charged on foreign cars, the actual increase will be only 6.5 per cent, the Treasury said.

Moreover, Congress is expected to approve Mr. Nixon's request to repeal the 7-per cent excise tax on all cars.

This leaves a difference of one-half of 1 per cent in theoretical savings for the buyer of a foreign car, but the retail dealer is expected to take some of that for an added profit.

Fine 1-2 Punch In Palatine CC

by LARRY EVERHART

Joe Johnson, Palatine's cross country coach, was talking about things to come this fall and it led him to reflecting on the past regarding the Pirates' harrier program.

"It's been a while since we won the conference title," noted Johnson. "We haven't done it since we were in the old North Suburban League about eight years ago."

It will be very difficult to end that spell this year with cross-town state power Fremd in the league, but Palatine could post one of its highest finishes in the sport in some time.

The reason for that kind of thinking is a very strong two-man nucleus plus a promising supporting cast. Put together, this gives Johnson lettermen filling his top five spots — which are the scoring positions.

For now, though, seniors Fred Miller and Brian Barnett are an excellent start toward a successful season.

Johnson is not sure which of these two is his best at the moment, but they seem sure to be high on the Mid-Suburban League's final harrier list. Last season, Miller was sixth and Barnett ninth among all varsity runners in the league for the season. They led Palatine to a 5-4 dual meet record for a tie for fifth in the MSL. Miller was an honorable mention all-conference choice.

Both are also accomplished in spring track, each holding a school record. Miller's is in the 800-yard run (1:55) and Barnett's in the mile (4:17).

Other promising runners are junior letterman Scott Williams, a good miler and two-miler in track; Steve Peterson, another junior letterman; and senior Mark Johnson, who was third behind Miller and Barnett last year before he was injured.

Sixth and seventh men will be junior Jim Simonik and sophomore Paul Kearns, who set the freshman record in the mile last year with a 4:34 time.

"We're not in real good shape yet because we haven't been working that long," says Johnson. "We only started when school started (10 days ago). We don't run in the summer as much as some teams."

"But there is good potential. It's just a matter of rounding them into shape."

"I don't look for us to be real tough

At Beverly

The Gutwein team took over the Parkway League lead by snatching five points from Bic in the second week of competition. Mills was elevated to second by swiping five from Meyer. Al Rose had a 500 series including a 210 game while teammate Al Karsten led off with a 203 on route to a 578 series. Vern Schroeder nailed down a 500 series and Jim Shaw registered a 202 game.

early in the season, but we might be later on."

The Pirates got an early start on their schedule when they go to the home of perennial state power York tomorrow for a triangular. Then they have a 10-day rest until Sept. 21 when the conference season starts.

of fourth place with the same players we have now even though many of them are my favorites.

Patty Berglund
Des Plaines

The first move, as we have mentioned countless times on these pages, is that Lee Durocher has to go.

Everyone says that the Cubs have little talent in Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League yet Tacoma manager Whitey Lockman has the club in first place. Therefore, Whitey Lockman must be a fine manager. We suggest dumping Lee in favor of Lockman for manager.

Though many of the Cubs are heroes to many, changes have to be made and the familiar faces have to be traded — but not without much in return. We suggest:

Trade One — Ken Holtzman for Pittsburgh's Dave Cash. The Pirates do not need both Cash and Rene Seanez at second base and could easily part with one of them. Holtzman, who has had his problems in Chicago, could find new life in Pittsburgh.

Trade Two: Ron Santo for San Diego's Dave Roberts and Rich Severinsen. Roberts, a lefty, has a 2.04 ERA and Severinsen has been an able relief pitcher. Santo could become expendable because Dave Cash can play third base while Glen Beckert remains at second.

Trade Three — Jim Hickman and Joe Decker and/or Jim Colborn for Boston's Billy Conigliaro. Conigliaro dislikes the Sox management and vice versa. He is a very able outfielder who can hit .299 and 20 homers. Hickman could hit 30 homers in a suitable park like Fenway. Decker and Colborn would help a depleted Boston mound staff.

Trade Four: Bill Hands, Johnny Callison, Juan Pizarro and Chris Canizarro for Los Angeles' Bill Singer and Duke Sims. Hands and Singer both need new beginnings in new places. Sims would help the Cubs if Randy Hundley cannot come back. The Dodgers are just a couple of players from a pennant and could use a veteran outfielder such as Callison and a veteran pitcher such as Pizarro. Canizarro would be a throw-in as a backup catcher for the Dodgers.

If these trades were made the Cubs would have Pophone at first base, Beckert at second, Kessinger at short, Cash at third, Williams in left, Conigliaro in center, James and Davis platooned in right and Sims and Hundley behind the plate.

For a pitching staff there would be Jenkins, Roberts, Singer, Pappas and Burt Hooker for starters and Severinsen, Newman (if used properly — as Lockman would) and Regan in the bullpen.

A lineup could have Davis or James leading off, Cash batting second, Beckert third (where he should have been all of 1971), Williams fourth, Pophone fifth, Conigliaro sixth, Sims or Hundley seventh, Kessinger eighth and the pitcher ninth.

Moves such as these could pull the Cubs closer than a dozen games out of first place as they are these days.

your column concerning your second of the two-part series on Little League Baseball.

I have been involved in Little League Baseball for four years now and have found both good and bad in that time. I feel, however, that the good far outweighs the bad and the bad is not the fault of Little League Baseball per se.

Your article points out "over-emphasis" on winning, the growing drill sergeant coach, the irate father storming the bench and the blindness of parents who say what's good for Johnny down the street is good for my son. I think it is significant that all of the above faults are pointed to the adults and not to the boys. Is it the fault of the program or the fault of adults in the program?

I am convinced, after four years as a coach, a league official and as president of a Little League Baseball program that the wrong lies with the adult "volunteer" and not with the program itself. Moreover, I feel the apathy shown by the great majority of uninterested, too busy parent contributes more to the weakness of the program than any other mentioned in your article or for that matter any article I have ever read concerning Little League Baseball or any similar program.

Little League Baseball, like Pop Warner Football, Park District Basketball, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and many other programs are only as good as those who administer the program and those who take the time and make the effort to contribute to them.

I firmly believe that if more parents spent more leisure time with their children in these types of programs there would be fewer wrongs in the programs and far less children in the wrong.

I wholeheartedly agree with your viewpoints. Thanks for writing.

Milton Richman

NEW YORK UPI — Dan Devine had no illusions. He didn't expect the job to be a picnic. He knew what he was getting into before he got it.

Good thing he did.

The first thing that happened after he left the warm secure confines of the University of Missouri to become head coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers was that Bart Starr had to go in for surgery on his throwing arm.

Look ma, no quarterback!

Now Dan Devine has lost nearly three-quarters of his other players.

The Packers still aren't sure whether it was that crabmeat on the plane coming back from Cincinnati or something else they ate. All they're sure of is they've got themselves a beautiful case of food poisoning. So bad that three of them had to go into the hospital. So bad that even the team physician is feeling blah.

To make it worse, the wobbly Packers are 1-4 in pre-season play and have a game coming up in Buffalo with the Bills Friday night. Bad as they feel, though, they'll be there. You can count on it.

"I think I coach better when things are going like this," says Devine, whose 16-year total of 120 wins, 40 losses and 8 ties at Missouri and Arizona State made him one of the most successful college coaches in the nation.

Some people wondered how pros like the Packers would take to a "collegian" like Devine. That's exactly the way they took to him. Like pros.

"I couldn't possibly ask for more," says Devine. "Maybe it sounds corny but it's true I didn't expect quite as fine a group of young men as our players have turned out to be. You ask whether they've accepted me. I can't speak for them and I don't know what they think, but I certainly feel they have. I'll say this much — in all the years I've coached, at Missouri, at Arizona State and in high school, I've never had any better attention from my players. Nor have I ever received any more cooperation. It has been 100 per cent from their end."

Possibly even a bit more.

There is something in ballplayers, particularly professionals, that makes them want to put out a little extra when a coach or manager is brand new. Maybe it's because they want to make that good first impression.

Anyway, a couple of the Packers already have come to Devine privately and told him they hadn't meant to let him down. They were referring to the pre-season losses which really don't mean a whole lot.

Devine's roughest job so far has been letting some of his players go. He had to do the same thing at Missouri and Arizona State but with Green Bay it's different. These men are pros and football isn't merely a game with them, it's their bread and butter.

"It was much tougher than I thought it would be," says Devine. "Unfortunately coaches get to know players as individuals who are much more than employees. As a consequence, when the time came to make a cut, I cut them more abruptly than I wanted to. I did that so as not to let my emotions get in the way."

One of the Packers who was cut was Jim Grabowski. The 26-year-old fullback wasn't just one of the Packers, he was a six-year man who originally had been given $400,000 to sign with Green Bay.

Grabowski has a bad knee and after last season, all the Green Bay coaches, almost to a man, voted not to bring him back. But he was given another chance. Finally, it was John "Red" Cochran, the Packers' offensive backfield coach, who gave him the bad news. The Chicago Bears picked up Grabowski and he looked exceptionally good in his first shot with them.

"I'm delighted for him," Devine says, "and I couldn't mean that more. I have tremendous respect for Jim Grabowski. He was on a local TV station 20 minutes after he found out he wouldn't be with us anymore and he handled himself with great dignity and poise. If there is ever anything I can ever do for Jim Grabowski, I will."

Maybe you've noticed that a number of other pro coaches with a couple of quarterbacks competing for the regular job have declined from naming their No. 1 choice so far. The Packers also have a few candidates like 4-foot-7 Frank Patrick, good looking rookie Scott Hunter and 38-year-old Zeke Bratkowski.

With Bart Starr out, Dan Devine could make a guessing game out of who his starting quarterback will be. He doesn't, though.

"It'll be Bratkowski," he says.

Has Outstanding Tourney

Cambell's All-American

Bob Campbell of Buffalo Grove landed a berth on the All-America Team at the World 16-inch Softball Tournament in Florissant, a suburb of St. Louis, on Labor Day.

Campbell, playing for the Continental Bank team of Chicago, was picked to the elite team of 14 players for some outstanding play in the double elimination tourney. He helped lead his team to a 3-2 record — the only two losses coming at the hands of the first and second place teams in the tourney.

Playing left field in all but one game when he caught, Campbell pounded out one homer, one triple, four doubles and three singles for a lofty .692 average. He just missed the batting title award which went to a player with a brilliant .710 average.

Continental Bank emerged as the best industrial team in the tourney and with it the first-place trophy for its division. The Bobcats won the open championship, the sixth time in 10 years that this fine Chicago team has been the world champion. So-Becs, winner of the title the other four times, finished second. This team is also from Chicago.

Besides earning a handsome trophy for his batting skills, Campbell also made some stellar plays in key situations which enabled his team to go as far as it did.

Continental Bank went into the tourney with a perfect record and emerged with a 29-2 mark.

Campbell, who once played with the Bobcats and was on the team when it placed second to So-Becs in 1968, is the manager of the Bruins. His team, always a perennial power in the suburbs, carries an outstanding 55-3 record into the Tournament of Champions at Rolling Meadows this weekend.

Hersey High Boosters Plan 1971-72 Season

The Hersey Huskies Boosters Club has outlined its activity schedule for the 1971-72 sports season.

The Boosters Club's new officers for the 1971-72 season are President, Joe Lesiak; Vice President, Eric Nelson; Secretary, Mrs. Floyd Pierson; and Treasurer, Rollo Kuebler. They are preparing for a banner booster season, hopefully attaining a membership of over 500 plus families. The membership chairman is John Pancratz.

Three sports award dinners are planned for the season, including the fall, winter, and spring banquets.

As in the past the membership fee is $5.00 for which each family will receive two three-inch round brown identification buttons, plus a free admission to the inter-squad game.

This year the Booster Club will have identification baseball caps in bright orange color with the letter H identifying the school in front. These caps can be purchased for $1.50 each at all games. In addition where a member donates $10.00 or more, they will receive one free cap.

Athletic director Dick Kinneman and head football coach Joe Gliwa announced that an inter-squad game will be held at 6:00 p.m., Friday, Sept. 10. In case of rain the game will be carried over to the following day at 6:00 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 11.

The admission to the game will be: Adults 50 cents each and students and children 25 cents each with the booster members free.

Food and soft drinks will be available at the concession stand during the game under the supervision of Mrs. Donna Ver-cruyssee. The championship Hersey High School "marching band" will perform at halftime.

Booster Club members will be on hand to accept membership fees and applications during the inter-squad game.

College Season Begins

by THE HARMON STAFF

Never in the history of football have so many collegiate powers moved into high gear so early in the season.

Fourteen of last year's top 20 battle Saturday in season openers.

Orange Bowl champ, Associated Press National Champion, and our No. 2 team from 1970 (we conclude our ratings before the bowl "season") — loaded Nebraska — takes on one of the West Coast's pre-season favorites, the Oregon Ducks. We rated Oregon 27th in our final rankings. Until they prove otherwise, they're 25-point underdogs to the C-huskies.

Graduation took its toll from 3rd-ranked Ohio State, but Woody Hayes has a way of pulling replacements out from under his rolled-up shirt sleeves. The Big Ten opens conference play the earliest in its history, and in this early one, the Buckeyes are favored over the Iowa Hawks by 20 points.

Top attraction in the Big Ten has to be the game between the two pre-season favorites Michigan and Northwestern. The Wolverines were 7th in our final ratings for '70, the Wildcats, 18th. The first rose goes to Michigan... they'll win by 14.

Sonny Sixkiller, 13th-rated Washington's key to a climb to the top of the Pacific Coast Conference, leads the Huskies against Santa Barbara in their 1971 opener. If there is a one-sided game on the schedule, this could be it... Washington by "many."

Friday night, Alabama travels to Southern Cal to officially open the major college football season. The Tide was 14th in '70... the Trojans, 21st. Graduation hit Southern Cal harder than it has in many years. Alabama will win by 3 points.

Two more West Coast football powers rumble into action Saturday: Rose Bowl champ Stanford, rated 11th last fall, tangles with Missouri, and 18th-rated UCLA meets Pitt. The Plunkett-less Indians may have trouble... they're favored by also... but the Bruins should whip the Panthers by 21.

Cardinal Harriers To Run In Crystal Lake Invitational

Arlington will compete in its first major meet of the season on Saturday at the 10th annual Crystal Lake Invitational Cross Country Meet.

The Cardinals of Coach Bruce Sammons, fourth-place finishers a year ago, will be hoping to better their showing this time.

Although defending champion Evanston cannot attend because of state regulations against competing before five school or institutional days, there will be a fine field. Leading the list is Proviso West.

"This team is probably one of the top 10 in the state," says Richard Kloepper, head track coach at the hosting school. Kloepper adds that the favorites will be paced by Jim Hurt, possibly the second best harrier in the state next to Craig Virgin Lehamon.

Another top contender in the meet will be Maine West, second-place team last year. Kloepper said he thought both the Warriors and the Cardinals would be tough again.

Others in the seven-team affair will be Rockford, Guilford, Antioch, Grant and Crystal Lake.

The varsity and the sophomores will be running on "probably the most rugged three-mile course in the state," according to Kloepper. It is the same course as last year's except it is a quarter mile longer with a lot of hills.

The freshmen, which will run on a 1 1/4-mile course, will start things off at 9:30 a.m. The sophomores will start right after them. Then the varsity runners will follow.

JOYCE ALBRECHT, winner of the women's singles title, makes contact in the title match against Gloria Hugué. Joyce was one of 12 first-place champions in the 12th Annual Padlock Publications Tennis Tournament.

BUDDY EDMUNDSON prepares to make contact with a John Paczkowski serve during finals play in the 11th Annual Padlock Publications Tennis Tournament on Labor Day. Edmundson finished second in the three-day tourney losing to Paczkowski by a pair of 6-2 scores. Nearly 500 entered the 12 division meet.

ARE YOU IN THE MARKET FOR A HARDTOP?

Every Volvo has six steel pillars supporting the roof. Each one is strong enough to hold up the weight of the entire car.

Of course, this kind of strength isn't built into a Volvo just so it will hold up a lot of cars.

The Volvos we sell are built strong so they'll hold up a lot of years.

Exactly how many we can't guarantee. But we do know that in Sweden Volvos are driven an average of eleven years.

So come in, look at our Volvos and decide if you're honestly in the market for a hardtop. Or if what you really want is a hard top.

WE SELL THE VOLVO HARD TOP.

Another 'First' Slated

Santa Fe Speedway hosts another "first" this Friday night, Sept. 10, when the super-modifieds of the Interstate Racing Association compete on the half-mile clay oval in a 40-lap feature.

Although the IRA super-mods have competed at numerous tracks in both Wisconsin and Illinois, the high-speed autos have never run on a half-mile oval. Therefore an evening of speed is expected when the closed-cockpit nitro-fuel injected autos battle on Santa Fe Speedway half-mile clay oval. Starting time is 8:30 p.m.; time trials will start at 7:30 p.m.

Leading IRA pilots who will compete at Santa Fe include Johnny Reimer from Caldonia, Wis., Whitey Harris of Lake Villa; Al Schill from Franksville, Wisc.; and Jim Sullivan out of Fox Lake.

Also included on the program are sportsman stock races. A 25-lap feature is the topper with heats and a trophy dash also on the docket.

Santa Fe Speedway hosts stock car races every Saturday and Sunday night throughout the month of September. The climax of the season at the "busiest racing oval in Chicagoland" will be on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 26, when the National Clay Track Championship "200" will be held for late models.

Sportsman champion for 1971 Jay Johnson of Justice leads a field of at least 35 drivers this Saturday and Sunday as Santa Fe hosts another weekend of high-flying stock car action. Twenty-five lappers for both sportsman and late models are scheduled for both nights.

Saturday's show starts at 8:30 p.m. with Sunday's fare set for one-half hour earlier.

Exciting unpredictable "spectator races" where off-the-street autos race for trophies and ego-inflation will also be held on both nights.

Johnson, whose monopoly of the winner's circle made the sportsman division quite one-sided, has passed the 500 point mark in his smooth-riding 1967 Chevy. Other top sportsman drivers include Buzz Collins of Justice, Lee Byers of Chicago, Ron Fisher from Westmont and Jim Kubik out of Lyons.

Santa Fe Speedway is located at 91st and Wolf Road approximately 20 minutes from downtown Chicago via the Stevenson Expressway.

Jamboree At Elk Grove

Elk Grove will have its share of action and colorful uniforms Saturday when an estimated 1800 players from the Junior Boys Football program converge at the high school stadium for the season opening jamboree.

The all-day affair will begin at 10 a.m. with seventh graders stealing the spotlight. Eighth graders will take over the ceremonies at about 1 p.m. Saturday's jamboree will kickoff the nine-game regular season schedule set to open Sunday. Admission is $1.

Much More Than An Apartment

One of the best reasons people move to suburban apartments is to share the delights of the country style of life. But they seldom get the country charm. Instead they live more or less like city apartment tenants in closely packed buildings arranged in barracks like rows surrounded by commercial and industrial sprawl.

We wanted something better. At Countryside there isn't an industrial building or noisy super-highway in sight. You'll live at the very edge of an untouched forest preserve.

Our buildings have a contemporary rustic look which complements this naturally beautiful setting. When you sit on your balcony or terrace, there is the green landscape instead of your neighbor's living room windows. We tucked garages into hill-sides, eliminating the usual ugly sea of cars.

Countryside promises a great deal more than swimming pools and recreation clubs. Winter will bring tobogganing and ice skating. There will be one of America's finest YMCA facilities immediately adjoining.

With all this attention paid to facilities outside the apartments, you can imagine what we've done inside. All the most desired features are here: individual heating and air conditioning controls, special sound-proofing treatment and remarkably large closets and storage areas.

Come, see our one and two-bedroom furnished model apartments (available with either one or two baths). You won't believe they rent from $210 to $285. Furnished model apartments open every day from 10 A.M. to sunset.

Now, Woodfield Will Speak For Itself

Celebrities mixed among every day people and everyone seemed excited as Woodfield, the world's largest enclosed retail center held its grand opening yesterday.

A garden of stores is set around a mall filled with sculptures, water fountains, falls and plantlife. The architecture is distinctive. The spacious center has carpeted ramps going every which way, providing quick, easy access from one area to another.

Yesterday was a time for speeches. Dignitaries responsible for Woodfield were recognized and many offered words of their own, but Woodfield will finally speak for itself.

Schaumburg police estimated 75,000 persons would visit Woodfield yesterday, but in the early hours traffic in and out of the center flowed easily.

200 Volunteers Respond To Help Clean The Creek

More than 200 persons have responded to a campaign organized last week by The Herald, volunteering to work this weekend and next in a Clean the Creeks project in Schaumburg.

The total of volunteers just passes the goal of 200 persons set by The Herald and the Schaumburg Clean Environment Committee. Also aiding the campaign are members of the village public works department, the Civil Defense organization and several developers with construction projects in the area. These include Morwell Builders, the Laneer Building Corporation, Campanelli and Levitt Builders.

As of Wednesday afternoon, the total of volunteers stood only at 90. By Thursday afternoon, lists from the two high schools in Schaumburg Township and several community groups had been submitted. They took the ranks of workers over the top of the goal.

Also joining the campaign was a 10-year-old Schaumburg boy, Kevin Seacock, 133 Lela Ln.

Girl Scout Junior Troop No. 966 will be represented by three mothers and 12 girls. Working will be Mrs. Margaret Koss, troop leader, and her daughter Donna, 504 Slingerland Dr.; Mrs. Sandra Adkins and her daughter Kathy, 2 S. Dartmouth Ln.

Other troop members who have volunteered are Suzanne Lemar, 917 Capital Court; Aileen Ward, 337 Slingerland Dr.; Julie Grady, 1 S. Wareham Ln.; Georgeanne and Cindy Pape, 1539 Kingston Ln.; Pam and Michelle Fisher, 1801 Crandon Ln.; and Kathy and Karen Nowotarski, 1920 Kingston Ln., all of Schaumburg.

CONANT HIGH SCHOOL will have 20 representatives at a minimum, and others are expected to attend but did not wish to have their names printed. Registrants are Joan Culbertson, Ken Millan, Mary Newby, Scott Klapsman, Gene Kulik, Dave Peterson, Debbie Mynek, Marlee Norton, Tom Citrano, Cathy Thelan, Rich Collette, Michele Buchenot, Jim Netter, Demitra John, Mike Balinski, Gary Stachelski, David Elderkin, Steve Faynor, Joan Tortorici and Joni Pugh. Miss Culbertson also is recruiting more volunteers from her Girl Scout troop.

The Schaumburg Jaycees have guaranteed 40 volunteers, although the names of individuals were not yet submitted yesterday.

Among Schaumburg Civil Defense recruits are Bob Ciner, director, and Bud Napier, Hy Yeorgia, Jerry Walker, Frank Gourley, Chuck Carberry, John Providence, Ken Borkowicz and Lou Meran.

FOUR TEACHERS from Schaumburg High School notified officials they hoped to participate, but did not register. Five students added their names to the list of 17 who volunteered earlier. These are Cheryl Gayer, Tammy Miner, Cathy Eggbeer, Saverio Martiradonna and Bruce Mandel.

Also participating from Schaumburg High School will be 13 members of the pompon squad, who requested their names not be listed.

Each group had its own recruit chairman, who kept track of registrants. Serving in that capacity for the organizations were John Short, Jaycees; Don Fletcher, Conant High School; Dennis Garber, Schaumburg High School; Ken Dopp, Civil Defense, and Mrs. Kossin for Troop No. 966 and others.

THE CONANT HIGH School marching band participated in Grand Opening ceremonies at Woodfield in Schaumburg Thursday. See additional pictures Section 4, Page 10.

Visitors Praise Woodfield's Many Attractions

by LEA TONKIN

A steady stream of seekers and just plain curious people thronged into Schaumburg's Woodfield center yesterday for the official opening ceremonies and most visitors seemed to find what they were looking for.

Mrs. Gary Bieritz of Hoffman Estates talked of the center as of a long lost friend who has finally appeared. "It's really close," she said. "The parking is good, and I have Marshall Field's."

For Judy Pesus of Bloomington, a Harper College student, the center is a great place to look for a job. She came in time to see the opening ceremonies before making job applications.

Standing on their tiptoes to see Vincent Price and Carol Lawrence, several women at the opening ceremonies said they came just to see the celebrities. "She's just beautiful. At least I can say I saw her," said one of Miss Lawrence.

The size of the center and the variety of stores drew praise from many visitors as Mrs. Grace Chien of Palatine, and Woodfieldette Marilyn Miles of Palatine said, "There's any kind of store you could ever ask for here."

THE SEATING provided in the enclosed mall is a definite plus factor according to Mrs. A. Biesack of Racine,

Wis. visiting a niece in Schaumburg. Her husband, Al, said, "The best thing here is the sculpture. Its not just beauty but it shows some knowledge of geometrics as well."

"People are especially interested in toys here," said David Silger, a sales manager of the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store. It has been open a month. "We have a fantastic amount of people coming in here with baby carriages," he noted. They like the wider aisles in the store. He said many people come to see Vincent Price who has a display of artwork in the store.

To Mrs. Fred Feldman of Arlington

Heights the center is a look into the future of retailing. The different levels and carpeting on the ramps in the mall area are an attraction for Mrs. Dale Sloan of Hoffman Estates.

The confusion in getting off Rt. 53 to the center was a criticism of a Chicago visitor who did not want to be identified.

"THE CENTER is great, but couldn't they make the swimming pool a little deeper?" joked a workman in the mall area, about a fountain pool.

Confronting the expectations of the Woodfield visitors, shopkeepers were busy with customers soon after the opening ceremonies concluded. Ken Soderberg of Rolling Meadows proprietor of the Plum Tree novelty shop appeared stunned at the number of customers.

"It's been a real hustle to get ready for the opening," said Mrs. Joyce Henricks of Des Plaines, saleswoman for the Mirette store on an upper level. She looked at the Fanny May store below. "Yesterday that store wasn't there," she said. "Now they're busy selling candy."

More new stores will open daily for the next several months according to Jerry O'Neil, Woodfield general manager. "It's like one big department store," he said. "There are many boutiques here and the mix of stores is important."

Underwater Recovery Team Seminar Slated

Schaumburg Civil Defense will host a seminar on Search and Recovery Procedures for the Cook County Civil Defense Underwater Recovery Team. It will be held at 10 a.m., Sept. 19 in Robert O. Atcher Pool, 730 Springinguth Rd., Schaumburg.

Seminars for the team are held twice each year. A volunteer organization of underwater divers, the team aids the Cook County Sheriff's Department and other police and fire departments in the county to locate and recover drowning victims, submerged automobiles, and physical evidence related to crimes.

The group now needs more divers to fill its ranks. Any certified diver who wishes to join is invited to the seminar. A particular need for divers exists in the Northwest suburbs, said Jerry L. Walker, assistant director of the Schaumburg group.

Woodfield opened yesterday morning with grand ceremony watched by thousands of persons who later filed into dozens of stores open for the first time.

The Guardsman, a Drum and Bugle Corps marched and played as did the Conant High School's marching band, including a march called "On The Mall."

Then Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher was introduced as master of ceremonies and told how Woodfield "is a dream come true."

Woodfield, at Ill. Rtes. 53 and 58, is billed as the world's largest enclosed climate controlled retail center and provides two million square feet of shopping facilities.

Yesterday's ceremony was timed with opening of the Marshall Field & Co. store. Sears Roebuck Co. opened its largest store in August and J. C. Penney is to open next month.

Once the retail center is fully occupied, 215 stores will be included.

ATCHER SPOKE of a woman who has thanked him for bringing Woodfield to Schaumburg.

"Every time I go shopping I'll have an extra $7.60 to spend," the woman said.

Atcher told the woman he alone is not responsible for Woodfield's coming to Schaumburg and asked her why she'll have the extra money.

"I'll save 60 cents on tolls, $2 on parking, and $5 in gas used to drive back and forth from the city," said the lady.

Atcher added, the saving also will provide increased tax base for the school districts, sales tax rebates for Schaumburg and a $30 million per year payroll northwest suburban residents working at Woodfield will have to spend.

Woodfield will have an effect on the total development of the northwest suburbs, setting a standard everyone else will have to meet, he added.

Woodfield, said Atcher, "will add to our quality of life in the northwest suburbs."

ATCHER'S DREAM came true started in 1964 when Sears Roebuck initiated talk of a retail center, but the scope of Woodfield was not envisioned then, said Atcher.

He did not believe at the time that Sears' largest store would locate in Schaumburg, and when Fields decided to come to Woodfield in 1965 he knew something great was in store.

The developer of Woodfield is Woodfield Associates, a joint venture between Homart Development Co., owned by Sears and The Taubman Co., of Southfield, Mich. Dignitaries from the two firms were on hand along with those from Sears, Fields, Penney's, and Woodfield's management team.

Also on hand were celebrities Carol Lawrence and Vincent Price, who called Woodfield a place of art.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon has ruled out any extension of his wage-price freeze past Nov. 12, but promised a long-range program of economic stabilization afterward to make sure "America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation." He also announced he would propose major, unspecified tax reforms next year to help create 20 million new jobs in the coming decade and to meet worldwide economic challenges to America's postwar supremacy.

The Army rooted its case against Capt. Ernest L. Medina after calling a lie detector expert in the Ft. McPherson, Ga., court marshal, who testified that Medina told him he had lost control of his troops at My Lai.

rush toward the Texas coast but gales, rain and high tides at its fringes struck ashore. Tornadoes and flash flooding hit during the night.

The War

South Vietnamese forces have struck the first Communist resistance in their five-day-old push into the country's jungle-strewn northwestern corner. Machine gunners forced down a U.S. helicopter carrying South Vietnamese infantry.

The State

Illinois Secretary of State John Lewis, in an angry statement, has defended but has not explained, his daughter's ownership of stock in a land trust which owns Cahokia Downs Race track. He also threatened to "clean the plov" of a reporter who investigated and revealed the matter. Paul Powell and other persons with state government ties also held stock in the trust.

The California Supreme Court decision outlawing the real estate and personal property tax as a criterion for educational support "clearly should be applicable to the Illinois situation," Lt. Gov. Paul Simon told the Springfield chapter of the American Business Club.

The Illinois Board of Regents, governing body for Illinois State University, Normal, and Sangamon State University, Springfield, has approved a $29.50 per semester tuition increase and a 4.1 per cent faculty and administrative pay hike.

The World

A British army explosives expert was killed when he triggered a booby trap bomb in Belfast, Northern Ireland. In London, Prime Minister Edward Heath summoned the British Parliament into special session later this month to deal with the province's troubles.

Ambassador William J. Porter took over as chief U.S. negotiator at Vietnam peace talks in Paris and proposed that the four sides engage in secret negotiations. The Communists rejected the idea as they had two months earlier.

No New Vote Set By Teachers Unit

Last week's rejection of a contract between teachers and School Dist. 54 officials was discussed, but no new vote proposed at Wednesday's meeting of the Schaumburg Teachers Association.

Mrs. Felicia Cichy, president of the association and chairman of the teachers' negotiation team to a Sept. 22 meeting the Adams Junior High School was "packed with teachers."

"We did not gather for a vote but for information; it was readily available and the meeting was orderly and interesting," said Mrs. Cichy.

Mrs. Cichy said teachers were there to question what their next move should be. That decision was to send the teachers negotiation team to a Sept. 22 meeting "to negotiate."

The president said the good attendance proves teachers in the district are being thoughtful about the issue and are willing to discuss the contract. Mrs. Cichy did not discuss points of the contract but said many teachers asked questions and apparently found the answers.

Both the teachers and school district officials maintain talks are still friendly.

When the contract was first put up for a vote a 142 to 98 vote defeated the proposal. Approximately half of the 411 teachers who are eligible to vote took part in that vote. Previous to the rejection both Mrs. Cichy and the school board had expected a quick decision and the rejection appeared to be a surprise to both negotiating teams.

Details of the contract are being withheld but unofficial sources provide the information that the contract would have provided for a 3.3 per cent increase in base pay.

Proclaim September Lung Disease Month

Hoffman Estates' Mayor Frederick Downey has proclaimed September as Children's Lung Disease month in the village and next week as a special week for citizens "to join with the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation in its humanitarian task."

Downey's declaration was made because respiratory diseases represent almost half the chronic illnesses of children, affecting more than 5 million children in the United States.

Cystic fibrosis, an inherited disorder, occurs in between 3,500 and 4,000 babies annually, and there is no control of the disease, despite advancements in treatment.

The National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation supports research in centers around the country to find a control for the disease and care for children with similar respiratory disorders.

Neighbors Complain About 'Mismanaged Zoo'

by PAT GERLACH

A nuisance complaint dealing with what some consider an excessive amount of pets appears difficult if not impossible for Hoffman Estates officials to deal with.

At least a dozen neighbors in the Kingman-Maywood Lane area are objecting to single family ownership of four dogs and what they term "numerous cats allowed to roam promiscuously" through the neighborhood.

Neighborhood representatives on May 24 took their problem to the village board.

Today, over three months later, the animal situation remains status quo and apparently little has been done by the village to even investigate matters.

THOMAS WATTS, 246 Kingman Ln., feels that his animals are "in complete and absolute control at all times."

Before moving to the village a year ago, Watts says he investigated village ordinances and feels he is acting in accord with local laws in maintaining his pets.

"There is no limit on cats and the city ordinance says that before a kennel license is necessary, you must have five dogs," Watts commented.

His family owns "Alice, Ralph and their two daughters," all of whom are confined to the Watts rear yard.

They also own a female cat and two neutered male cats, "which are the only ones permitted outdoors." The kittens are confined to the house.

Neighbors contend, "as many as 20 cats" come out of the Watts household and are creating problems on their block as well as Maywood Lane.

Watts is aware of the formal complaint in May, but also said he has never been contacted by anyone.

SOME OF THE neighbors feel no action has been taken against Watts because he is a feature writer with a Chicago daily newspaper.

"Ridiculous," says Watts.

"I have not been contacted by anyone simply because I am not doing anything to create a health hazard, and furthermore, I am surprised my neighbors even know what I do for a living because we've never discussed it," he added.

Trustee Virginia Hayter is aware of the May complaint and said the matter had been turned over to Stan Zawicki, a sanitation consultant employed by the village.

Village offices asked for information contained in Zawicki's file on the complaint.

The information would be obtained within 24-hours, a secretary said, but the following day she said the Watts file had been turned over to the police department for handling.

THE MATERIAL, she explained, would be released when it came back to the village hall from Police Chief John O'Connell.

Five days later, information in the village report was still unavailable.

Village Atty. Norman Samelson suggested that village ordinances be researched to determine the number of dogs allowed without a kennel license.

The research has been in progress for the past month, said Mrs. Hayter, but the appropriate ordinance has not been discovered.

Some village officials remember a law setting the number of dogs at three animals under six months of age in order to protect a litter of pups.

No limit to the number of pets that can be owned by an individual without a health hazard has been established by the Cook County Department of Public Health.

"IF NOT PROPERLY maintained, one pet can create a health hazard of serious proportion," said R. J. Wollschlaeger, of the county health department.

Experience, however, shows that the number of pets accumulated by a single owner does govern the problem somewhat, Wollschlaeger said.

"It has been noted that older people tend to acquire larger numbers of animals, but usually when risks are pointed out to them they do cooperate," he added, stressing that animal maintenance is the key to the entire matter.

In the meantime, Watts is certain the situation is under control, while neighbors are fuming over property destruction and what they feel is a danger to small children.

"I AM TIRED OF buying pellets, dried blood and other preparations to keep these cats away from my flower beds," said a neighbor.

"It is not that I do not like animals, but this is a very mismanaged zoo and you get absolutely nowhere attempting to talk to these people," said another.

Another neighbor, who lives across the street from the Watts, is concerned because she plans to put their home up for sale due to her husband's transfer.

She feels the animal problem may cause difficulty in selling the house and is frank in her confusion about how to explain the problem to prospective buyers.

"Yes, I am going to be leaving this neighborhood and I have been friendly with the Watts, but I am still very concerned about the health hazard being created here in addition to the tremendous nuisance," she said.

MRS. NANCY McMANUS, who lives next door to the Watts, has been unhappy about the problem for the past year.

"My daughter cannot open her bedroom windows because of the stench coming from the west side of our property and we are just not going to be able to take it much longer," Mrs. McManus said.

Watts said the odor problem neighbors suffer is caused by people who walk their pets in the empty lot next to his house. Claiming he picks up after his animals once a day, Watts added there'd be no problem if neighbors cleaned up in the empty lot as he does in his yard.

Official inquiries began last October when another neighbor, unable to locate anyone in Hoffman Estates health department, contacted county officials in Des Plaines, said Mrs. McManus.

"I know that none of us want trouble but I think that we are entitled to more than the brush off that has been given us by this village," she added.

Residents See Red Over Area Traffic Control

Traffic control at two Hoffman Estates intersections became a bone for contention by residents at this week's village board meeting.

Mrs. Jack Armfield expressed anger at the delay in controlling traffic at Clarendon Street and Berkley Lane.

Henry Netter expressed ire at the lack of traffic control where Flagstaff Lane and Arizona Boulevard meet at Roselle Road.

Mrs. Armfield's husband was at a recent village board meeting requesting a four-way stop sign be posted at the Clarendon-Berkley intersection. An accident in mid-August sent a car up on his lawn near his house. The Armfields and other neighbors fear for the safety of children who play near the intersection.

Police Chief John O'Connell said a traffic survey, needed before signs are posted, would be futile while construction is going on at the Higgins-Roselle roads intersection.

Extra traffic now is funneling down Berkley Lane to avoid the traffic back-up at Roselle and Higgins roads.

Any temporary signs posted would be useless unless there is enforcement and the manpower is not available now.

Without enforcement people don't obey them, he added.

POSTING SIGNS at unenforceable locations also breeds disregard for other signs in the village, said O'Connell. If it is determined after a survey the Clarendon-Berkley intersection should receive priority over other intersections, signs will then be posted, he said.

A survey will be taken in about two months when construction at the Roselle-Higgins intersection should be completed.

Netter said the intersection of Flagstaff-Arizona-Roselle is a major hazard particularly when Conant High School students are driving to and from school and during peak shopping and rush hours.

Netter, fearing someone will be killed there, said the number of accidents reported at the Arizona-Roselle-Flagstaff area is insignificant compared with the number of "screeches" neighbors hear constantly, representing near-collisions between vehicles.

HE SUGGESTED a police officer be located there to control traffic at key times and the village board provide O'Connell with the personnel to handle the task.

O'Connell said Roselle Road is a state controlled road, adding efforts will continue to have the speed limit lowered there.

Hoffman Estates' police department has four cars to patrol 23 square miles, said O'Connell. Police will be deployed to the two intersections whenever possible until more concrete solutions can be resolved, he said.

Clean Environment Committee Acts

Group Seeks To Save Sarah's Grove

A majority of Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee members went on record late Wednesday in support of growing efforts to preserve Sarah's Grove.

Sarah's Grove is a wooded area the committee members want preserved in the face of a 57 acre planned development proposed there: north of Schaumburg Road between Roselle Road and Illinois Boulevard. The development plan includes 20 acres for a proposed hospital, recently turned down by Schaumburg's village officials, and up for reconsideration Tuesday night.

"We felt it ridiculous for the committee not to publicly endorse preservation of a natural wooded area such as this," said Mrs. Jane Murphy, majority spokesman.

After making the decision, committee members were unable to reach Trustee Jack Larsen, chairman of the group. But they believe his involvement, as a trustee, in the poll would not be entirely ethical.

LARSEN IS ONE of four trustees who voted against the approval of a planned unit development which would cause a loss of century-old oak trees along the north side of Schaumburg Road.

ONLY KEN DOPP could not be reached to vote on the support issue, said Mrs. Murphy.

Don Fletcher, a Conant High School faculty member who serves on the committee, abstained from voting since he is a Palatine resident.

Clean environment members explain they have taken their position to let the developer, J. Emil Anderson and Sons, know they disapprove of the plan.

The committee includes Sandy Etchingham, Diane Luciani, Terry Glynn, Jane Murphy, and Denis Ledgerwood, in addition to DOPP, Fletcher and Larsen.

They stated they are concerned disturbing land within 100 feet of any area of the grove would prove fatal to the shallow root system of the oaks.

The Schaumburg Township area was first settled by about 20 immigrant farm families from England in the early 1840's.

It is believed this group of settlers named Sarah's Grove, although exact reasons for the name are not documented.

Poll 'Was Not Official Action'

The poll taken of the Schaumburg Clean Environment Committee indicating trees in Sarah's Grove should be saved "was not an official action," Trustee Jack Larsen, committee chairman, said yesterday.

He said, Mrs. Jane Murphy who took the poll did not contact all members of the committee. "I wish she had come to me rather than gone to the newspapers," said Larsen.

"I assure you if anything can be done, I'll say let's save those trees. I'll relay a statement to that effect (at Tuesday's village board meeting)," he added.

Larsen's objection is that Mrs. Murphy did not contact all members on the committee, an advisory group to the village board.

If the poll is stated to represent the committee it's not true, Larsen said, adding, he and members Denis Ledgerwood and Ken DOPP were not consulted.

Action, like the poll Mrs. Murphy took, should be brought to the chairman, said Larsen, adding, "I should have been advised. If she had come to me first about taking a poll, I would have said fine, go ahead."

Sunday School Set

Sunday School classes in Christ Church United Presbyterian, 6800 Pine Tree St., Hanover Park, will resume Sunday.

A nursery school for children up to 4 years old will be held during church services, 10-11 a.m. Children up to 2 years old may attend nursery school after church services, while children 3 and above attend Sunday School, from 11 a.m. to noon.

The church welcomes new members to the congregation.

Name 4 Ecology-Minded Residents To Committee

Four Hoffman Estates residents concerned about pollution and ecology were appointed this week to the village's Environmental Committee.

They are Mrs. Virginia Hocker, Darrell Little, Daniel Majka and Maurice R. Vick.

Mrs. Hocker has lived in the village six years and is of the Hoffman Estates Woman's Club Beautification Committee. Her other activities are the woman's club YMCA committee, McArthur School PTA, the Alexian Brothers Medical Center Auxiliary, and Church of the Cross. She and her husband, Arthur, live at 117 Fairfield Ln. with their daughter, Beth, 16.

Little, 108 Fairfield Ln., is principal at Twinbrook School in Hoffman Estates. He chairs Dist. 54's Environmental Education Committee and helped develop an environmental education guide used in the district.

Little also is working on the development of a 10-acre nature study area behind Froot Junior High School. He and his wife, Eileen, have three daughters.

Majka is a chemistry teacher at Elk Grove High School and is taking graduate courses at Northeastern Illinois University's college of chemistry. He is past president of the school's Chemistry and Ecology Society and has given numerous lectures on chemical pollution.

Majka is a member of the American Chemical Society, International Oceanographic Foundation and National Education Association. He and his wife, Chris, live at 2093 W. Sutherland with their son.

Vick is a landscape architect for Novak, Carlson and Associates, Rolling Meadows. He has done site planning with emphasis on ecological and environmental considerations. Vick also was involved in the successful movement to save the controversial Allerton Park.

A University of Illinois graduate, Vick is an associate member of the American Society of Landscape Architects. He and his wife, Linda, have one son and live at 2101 W. Sutherland.

Village Sues Officials In Move To Halt Remap

Secretary of State John W. Lewis, Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, and the Illinois State Electoral Board have all been named as defendants in a suit the Village of Arlington Heights filed in federal court Wednesday in an effort to invalidate a new state legislative redistricting map.

The suit, filed in the name of all village board members and John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights, cites the defendants as being party to a redistricting map which splits the village into four "odd-shaped and gerrymandered districts."

The suit charges the new map "totally ignored" the federal and state constitutional principal of "one-man, one-vote."

Before the map was completed by an eight-member reapportionment committee last month, the village was uniformly within the third district, giving Arlington Heights a strong suburban voice in the General Assembly, the suit said.

The new districting plan, however, was created "to effectively diminish the power of the citizens of Arlington Heights to elect representatives of their choice in the General Assembly," the suit claims.

THE SUIT ALSO charges the reapportionment committee was improperly appointed and lacked representation of the independent voter. The committee, the suit states, was composed entirely of members of the Democratic and Republican parties.

Lewis was named in the suit because he received the map from the committee and published it, according to the copy of the suit filed in the U.S. District Court.

The electoral board was cited for their role in certifying the names of all candidates for the state legislature before those names appear on the primary ballot and for the committee's other "diverse duties" in connection with state representatives and senators.

Scott became party to the suit for initiating the redistricting plan and for failing to challenge its validity in the Illinois Supreme Court. He is also a member of the electoral board.

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel said yesterday the next step in the legal proceedings is for the three defendants to file a response to the charges. He did not indicate how soon this will be.

United Fund Unit Sets $15,000 Goal

Attempting to reach a $15,000 collection goal, volunteers in the Schaumburg Township Hanover Park United Fund have started an intensive mail out campaign this week.

Ivo Mersmann president of the Schaumburg Township United Fund said a business campaign is being held throughout September and October.

Mersmann said plans for the door-to-door collection campaign are being finalized this weekend and the workers will be making a concentrated effort to reach the $15,000 goal.

The 16 participating agencies aided by the United Fund have expressed a need for a total of $52,000. Mersmann said the $15,000 collected locally will be a part of what the agencies could receive. Residents of Schaumburg Township who work in other areas and sign up for payroll deductions also help, he said.

Part of that deduction returns to the Schaumburg Township United Fund, he added.

Wheeling Legion To Name Post To Honor Dead Hero

Last April President Nixon awarded a Medal of Honor to Michael R. Blanchfield, a Wheeling soldier who was killed protecting his fellow soldiers and Vietnam civilians.

Wheeling's American Legion post Saturday will take its turn at honoring the local soldier by renaming its post after him.

The new name, Michael R. Blanchfield Post 1988 American Legion, will be formalized at an installation ceremony Saturday at which the legion will present an award to Mrs. Jeanette Blanchfield, mother of the Wheeling soldier.

Legion member Gene Sackett explained that the new name for the post who will participate in the installation ceremonies are State Commander Edward Shaik and District Commander Ralph Cody.

Blanchfield received his Medal of Honor last spring for an act of "extraordinary courage and gallantry," which ended in his death on July 3, 1969 at the age of 19. A specialist fourth class, he joined the Army in 1967.

He was killed while on duty on a combat patrol in Binh Dinh province with other members of a unit of the 173rd Airborne.

While searching a village for Viet Cong suspects, Blanchfield saw a man run from a house toward the forest, Blanchfield shouted at the man to stop, and when he did not, opened fire.

The man threw a grenade and the explosion wounded Blanchfield.

Although wounded, Blanchfield chased the man. A second grenade was thrown, this time toward a group of soldiers and villagers.

Blanchfield threw himself on the grenade and was killed by the explosion. His action saved the lives of four other soldiers and a number of civilians.

Mrs. Blanchfield, a waitress at Wheeling Manor restaurant, lives at 309 Renee Ter. Wheeling.

School, Park Board Members May Join Plan Commission

The Village of Buffalo Grove is considering appointing school and park board members to the plan commission in an effort to establish closer communications between the boards.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, who proposed the idea, will meet with Plan Commission Chmn. Merrill Hoyt and Trustee Randall Rathjen this week to discuss filling three positions on the commission.

A decision is expected at next Monday's village board meeting.

The plan commission reviews plans for new developments, hears annexation requests and is instrumental in securing land for schools and parks.

ARMSTRONG'S proposal would give school and park board members a vote in deciding the fate of new developments and in obtaining future school and park sites.

At last week's meeting, Hoyt recommended that John Yost and Evan Fader be reappointed to the commission for another year. He also recommended that Burt Harris be appointed to fill a vacancy on the 11-member commission.

However Armstrong delayed the appointments and said he wanted to explore the possibility of putting school or park board members on the plan commission instead.

The question of a possible conflict of interest then, arose concerning individuals who would serve on two boards.

Armstrong feels that there would be no conflict of interest and sees nothing wrong with a citizen serving on two boards.

Hoyt is "not certain" whether a conflict would exist, but he did express concern about the amount of time a person could devote to the jobs.

"I AM NOT sure it would be (a conflict of interest) on its face or that one would develop," Hoyt said yesterday.

"I am concerned about the amount of time one would have to spend. I wouldn't have time to serve on a school board and still have enough time to serve on the plan commission also."

Continuing, Hoyt added, "the school board boundaries extend beyond the village and if a school board member were on the plan commission, he would be representing people living beyond the village (boundaries)."

Enrollment Gain Under Prediction

Enrollment grew only slightly in Dist. 21 schools during the past year, according to preliminary enrollment figures compiled by Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill.

Enrollment in the district's 15 schools as of the first day of school Tuesday was 8,156 students, up about 200 students over the sixth-day enrollment figure of 7,954 last fall.

Gill said the enrollment fell below Dist. 21 projections. Estimates were that at least 8,350 students would be attending classes in the district this fall.

"Our projections were accurate in the new areas of the district, but we lost students in the more stable areas," Gill said.

A complete analysis of enrollment in the district will be made in the next few weeks, Gill said.

A BIT OF GERMANY — in the form of Oktoberfest — has come to Hans Bavarian Lodge on Milwaukee Avenue. The festival was staged early this year to take advantage of September's weather. Wounded Vietnam veterans have been special guests in the huge tent which is the scene of the traditional festivities.

Promote 'Unity Of Mankind'

Promoting the unity of mankind is the goal of a small, recently-formed Wheeling group.

In the fledgling group are members of the Baha'i faith, a religious group started in 19th century Persia now numbering nearly four million members throughout the world.

Helene Finn, 341 Highland, Wheeling, is secretary of the Wheeling Baha'i group, which according to Baha'i faith, includes no clergymen.

A recent graduate of Northern Illinois University, Miss Finn became a member of the Baha'i faith last year after attending "firesides," informal discussions conducted by members of the faith.

"I was attracted to the faith because it seemed so intellectual. And it's been the greatest thing that's ever happened to me. For 23 years I thought that God was only a crutch for people. Now I know it's simply not so," she said.

CURRENTLY THE Wheeling Baha'is meet only on "feast days," which come every 19 days according to the Baha'i calendar.

At their gatherings the Baha'is read writings by their prophet and founder, Baha'u'llah, a 19th century Persian who the Baha'is believe is a prophet of God, as Christ was a prophet of God in His time.

They also read other sacred writings including the works of Abdul-Baha, eldest son of Baha'u'llah, have discussion sessions and a social period at their meetings.

"Baha'is believe that the old world is over and a new world is starting—the Age of Fulfillment, the kingdom of God on earth," Miss Finn said.

"Baha'is believe in a common foundation of all religions, in universal peace upheld by a world government, in compulsory education and one universal language, elimination of all prejudice and equality of men and women," she said.

THE WHEELING group plans to form a local spiritual assembly to regulate the group's affairs, as soon as nine adults join the group, Miss Finn stated. When that is done, the group will meet every one or two weeks.

Delegates from the local assemblies meet annually at the national headquarters, the Baha'i Temple at Wilmette.

"All Baha'is feel an obligation to inform others of our faith, although we don't wish to force ourselves on people," she said.

As part of their teaching activities, the Wheeling group of Baha'is will join the Des Plaines group tomorrow to distribute literature about their faith in the Des Plaines area.

A movie about the Baha'i faith will also be shown at 7 p.m. tomorrow at South Park in Des Plaines.

The number of Baha'is in the Northwest suburban area is only a tiny minority of the population, Miss Finn said. About 10 are members in Des Plaines, and 25 or 35 in Arlington Heights, she said.

"In the southern part of the United States, the number is much higher. They seem to join in droves down there."

"Baha'is are such a loving people. We have been able to eliminate all forms of prejudice among us. To be able to do this, there has to be something there with us," Miss Finn stated.

Bike Enthusiasts Prepare For Ride

Bicycle enthusiasts will set off at 6:30 a.m. Sunday on the "Wheeling One Hundred," a 100-mile ride through northern Illinois.

For the less adventuresome, rides of 25 and 50 miles have also been scheduled by the Wheeling Wheelmen bicycle club.

The rides, open to the public, will start at the Carl Sandburg School on Schoenbeck Road, Wheeling, and will take riders through Algonquin, McHenry and Hebron and back to Wheeling.

There is a 25 cent registration fee for the shorter rides and a 75 cent fee, which includes the cost of a clothing patch, for the "Wheeling One Hundred." A registration fee of $1 will be charged riders who wish to receive a patch and certificate for the National League of American Wheelmen "Century" ride.

Wheeling Park District To Kickoff Football Season

The Wheeling Park District kicks off its fall season tomorrow with tackle football games, a park dedication, an ice cream social and a swimming pool full of rainbow trout.

The district's fall program begins at 9:15 a.m. tomorrow when the Lions battle the Packers at Heritage Park. At 10:30 a.m. the Steelers play the Cardinals at the park.

The games are the first of the season for junior high school boys in the district's tackle football program.

At 5 p.m. tomorrow, park officials will dedicate the Chamber of Commerce Park by planting four oak trees. The planting is part of the district's program to develop the park with trees, walks, flowers and shrubbery.

The ice cream social will be held in the old Community Church building in Chamber of Commerce Park on North Wolf Road from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. tomorrow and Sunday.

The outdoor pool at the park will be stocked with 250 trout during the ice cream social and visitors who prefer fish to ice cream will be able to try their luck.

Bruce Coleman, district recreation director, said adults must pay 50 cents to fish in the pool for 15 minutes. Children under 12 will pay 25 cents. Coleman said the fish will weigh about one pound each.

Prospective fishermen must bring their own poles, hooks and bait, Coleman said.

Teachers Still Without Contract

A wage agreement between the School Dist. 21 teachers and the school board and administration still has not been reached.

A meeting between the school board administration negotiating team and the Dist. 21 faculty council to discuss a contract settlement, scheduled for Wednesday, was not held.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said that the meeting was postponed because a representative from the Illinois Education Association, who is advising the teachers in the negotiations, could not attend.

Gill said the meeting will be rescheduled next week.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon has ruled out any extension of his wage-price freeze past Nov. 12, but promised a long-range program of economic stabilization afterward to make sure "America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation." He also announced he would propose major, unspecified tax reforms next year to help create 20 million new jobs in the coming decade and to meet worldwide economic challenges to America's postwar supremacy.

The Army rested its case against Capt. Ernest L. Medina after calling a lie detector expert in the Ft. McPherson, Ga., court marshal, who testified that Medina told him he had lost control of his troops at My Lai.

Hurricane Fern has lost power in a rush toward the Texas coast but gales, rain and high tides at its fringes struck ashore. Tornadoes and flash flooding hit during the night.

The War

South Vietnamese forces have struck the first Communist resistance in their five-day-old push into the country's jungle-steamy northeastern corner. Machine gunners forced down a U.S. helicopter carrying South Vietnamese infantry.

The State

Illinois Secretary of State John Lewis, in an angry statement, has defended but has not explained, his daughter's ownership of stock in a land trust which owns Cahokia Downs Race track. He also threatened to "clean the plow" of a reporter who investigated and revealed the matter. Paul Powell and other persons with state government ties also held stock in the trust.

The California Supreme Court decision outlawing the real estate and personal property tax as a criterion for educational support "clearly should be applicable to the Illinois situation," Lt. Gov. Paul Simon told the Springfield chapter of the American Business Club.

The Illinois Board of Regents, governing body for Illinois State University, Normal, and Sangamon State University, Springfield, has approved a $29.50 per semester tuition increase and a 4.1 per cent faculty and administrative pay hike.

The World

A British army explosives expert was killed when he triggered a booby trap bomb in Belfast, Northern Ireland. In London, Prime Minister Edward Heath summoned the British Parliament into special session later this month to deal with the province's troubles.

Ambassador William J. Porter took over as chief U.S. negotiator at Vietnam peace talks in Paris and proposed that the four sides engage in secret negotiations. The Communists rejected the idea as they had two months earlier.

One Year After The March

No Low-Cost Housing Breakthrough

There is no sign of a breakthrough in housing more than a year since a march for low and moderate-income housing took place in the Northwest suburbs, according to one official who works with Mexican Americans.

Robert Munoz, director of the Illinois Migrant Council, said there has been no change in the status of housing for low and moderate income groups since the march in Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights.

"Things are the same," said Munoz, a resident of Palatine. "The need is still there but the opposition has grown."

The homeowners are much more organized than they were a year ago, he said in reference to the proposal to build low and moderate-income housing on the Viatorian property in Arlington Heights.

A former migrant worker who came to the area 11 years ago from Mercedes, Tex., Munoz was interviewed recently and asked to comment on the housing issue since the march last July 12.

"The march was a success in that it helped to bring the need for housing out into the open," he said. "It also demonstrated that we (the Mexican-American) are concerned about housing."

"We realized that we have to stand up for ourselves," he said, noting that much of the support in behalf of low and moderate-income housing had not been by Mexican Americans until a year ago.

Last summer, Munoz was one of 50 persons who participated in the march that started at Queen of the Rosary Catholic Church in Elk Grove Village. By the time the marchers finished the crowd reached 100 at a rally at the Arlington High School football field.

THERE, REP. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, said the Mexican-American population must make its problems visible in order to receive help.

Munoz said Mrs. Chapman was the only elected official who joined in the march and that she is the only representative that has stood up for the rights of the Mexican-American. At times, Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, has, he said, but not as much.

Local officials have not been responsive to the needs of the Mexican-American, Munoz said, predicting that the chances of low and moderate-income housing being built in the near future in the Northwest suburbs are not good.

The Viatorian proposal "doesn't have a chance at all," he said. "Low-income housing will come, he said, but not before a drastic change in local administrations."

Any housing would be for people already in the area, he said. "We're thinking about the people already here," he said.

On the same note, Munoz said there are few real migrant farm workers in the Northwest suburbs anymore. There are some, he said, but that now there are what he termed "industrial migrants" working in factories part of the year.

Mixed in with some of the migrants are illegal immigrants from Mexico, he said, who hurt the migrants from Texas because they are willing to work for low wages.

"They hinder those here legally by taking away wage competition," he said. "Immigrants are transported north of the border by 'coyotes,'" Munoz said, describing them as persons who prey on others. Often times immigrants are crowded into trucks under the worst of conditions, he said.

Most of the agricultural migrants who are here legally work on farms and nurseries, he said, but that many of these jobs have moved further north and west as the Northwest suburbs continue to be developed and the farm work becomes more mechanized, he explained.

WITH THE movement of the farm migrant, Munoz said the Illinois Migrant Council has moved its suburban office from Palatine to Crystal Lake.

Many of the migrants still live in sub-standard housing, though little is in the immediate area, he said.

The Northwest suburbs, however, will continue to see the arrival of more Mexican Americans and other races to work in the industrial parks here, he said.

"It's just a matter of time," Munoz said. "You can see it now on the expressways with many of the Anglos going to work in the city and minority groups coming to the suburbs," he said. "Something has got to give."

Munoz said the school systems here also have not met the needs of the Mexican-American. Many of the children don't know English and need assistance, he said, adding there is a need for bilingual teachers especially in the primary grades. He noted that Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 does have a program for the Spanish-speaking but that it is one of the few that does.

He said the dropout rate of Mexican-Americans from high school is tremendous and that he plans to request a survey to find out specifics of the problem at Palatine High School.

He also said there is a need for more vocational training for adults who are unskilled. Harper College in Palatine offers adult basic education, he said, but there is a need for more such training.

Dead Addict Didn't Want Help, Detective Reveals

by ROGER CAPETTINI

A 25 year old Des Plaines man who died of an apparent overdose of heroin last week once told a Des Plaines policeman there was nothing anyone could do to help him.

The policeman, a detective who prefers to remain anonymous, spoke yesterday of Stephen J. Brennan of 625 Howard St., who died Friday morning. His death was blamed on an overdose of heroin.

According to the detective, Brennan could not be helped because he didn't want to be helped. "He didn't want to get off it," the policeman explained.

"You can't help any of them if they don't want help," another detective added.

The detectives said Brennan, who recently spent 45 days in the House of Correction, let it be known while he was imprisoned that the first thing he would do when he got out was seek more heroin.

"HE WAS DRIED OUT," the policeman said, "but all he could think of was getting back on it. He only got out of there a couple of weeks ago and now he's dead."

Another detective was obviously saddened by the death of the young carpenter.

"I really liked that kid," he said. "In spite of his drug problem he was really a good kid. We wanted to help him, but he wouldn't let us."

The attitude of another young Des Plaines man, also thought to have died as a result of an overdose of heroin, was quite unlike Brennan's, police said, however.

"Kevin Schneider had a completely healthy attitude about getting off drugs," one detective said.

SCHNEIDER, 19, of 2074 Locust St., Des Plaines, died Aug. 28. Police said at the time they thought he died from an overdose of heroin. A spoon, hypodermic needle case and a package of white powder reportedly was found under the mattress of the youth's bed.

Since that time, however, a pathologist's report has indicated Schneider died of natural causes.

"Schneider felt he could get off drugs — that he didn't need drugs any more," the detective said.

"His family was trying to help him. They were severing all their ties in this area and moving to Phoenix. Kevin said when he moved he was going to cut all his relationships with drug users and start over again in Phoenix without drugs," the policeman explained.

Schneider, who was known to associate with Brennan, also was recently released from the House of Correction.

ALTHOUGH THE policemen said Schneider had a "healthy attitude," they expressed some doubt about anyone's ability to kick the heroin habit permanently.

"In the 18 years I've been a policeman, I've yet to see anyone get off heroin permanently," one detective said.

Another detective agreed. "I don't know of anyone who has ever gotten off it permanently," he said. "We believe it's possible, but just don't know of anyone who has ever done it. Some of the Chicago police say no one has ever done it."

The detective said the heroin problem in Des Plaines, "is like the old iceberg. The only part you know about is the small part that sticks up. It's hard to estimate the size of it below the surface."

Mayor Herbert Behrel said he met with Police Chief Arthur Hintz Tuesday morning to discuss the recent deaths and the drug problem in Des Plaines.

BEHREL SAID Hintz does not feel at this time that more money, programs or increased cooperation between Des Plaines and other police departments is necessary in the fight against drugs.

Apparently the youths were long time users, Hintz reportedly told the mayor. He said the police and the families were "well aware" they were addicts, but added, "It's not that easy" to make arrests.

One of the chief's detectives agreed. "We know these kids are using drugs, but it's difficult to prove in a court of law. We have trouble getting witnesses. We have few informants. They're too frightened to tell us anything. Would you allow your child to make a heroin buy for the police and testify in court?" he asked.

He said it is also difficult to infiltrate the drug subculture in an effort to increase arrests.

"They only sell to people they know. None of the police can do it — they recognize all of us. They may be breaking the law, but they're not stupid," he said.

He said the parents of drug users are not much help either.

"THE PARENTS either act as if the problem will go away if they ignore it, or try to solve it themselves. It will never go away and they are often not equipped to handle it themselves. They think they're protecting their kids, but they're not helping them in this case."

The detective said he can understand the feelings of the parents, however. "They're dealing with their most precious possessions," he said. "It's not easy to turn them in to the police, but it's the best thing they can do."

Des Plaines police investigated 24 drug cases in August. Eighteen of those resulted in arrests.

Eight of the arrest followed some kind of drug overdose.

Another overdose resulted in the death of Stephen J. Brennan.

DON WILSON, owner of a service station at Dundee and Arlington Heights road, feeds his pet goat "Nanny."

Grass, Shade? A Nanny Goat's Comment Is Baaa...

Most goats like to graze on grass and shade themselves under trees, but at least one goat prefers cement and a tow truck to a peaceful meadow.

That goat is "Nanny" and she is the pet of Don Wilson, owner of a Union 76 service station at the corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

According to Wilson, Nanny came to the station about a year ago. When her owner discovered where the goat was, Wilson managed to give the owner, who lives "down the street," a large clock in exchange for Nanny.

Visitors Praise Woodfield Stores

by LEA TONKIN

A steady stream of seekers and just plain curious people thronged into Schaumburg's Woodfield center yesterday for the official opening ceremonies and most visitors seemed to find what they were looking for.

Mrs. Gary Blieritz of Hoffman Estates talked of the center as of a long lost friend who has finally appeared. "It's really close," she said. "The parking is good, and I have Marshall Field's."

For Judy Fesus of Bloomingdale, a Harper College student, the center is a great place to look for a job. She came in time to see the opening ceremonies before making job applications.

Standing on their tiptoes to see Vincent Price and Carol Lawrence, several women at the opening ceremonies said they came just to see the celebrities. "She's just beautiful. At least I can say I saw her," said one of Miss Lawrence.

The size of the center and the variety of stores drew praise from many visitors as Mrs. Grace Chien of Palatine, and Woodfieldette Marilyn Miles of Palatine said, "There's any kind of store you could ever ask for here."

THE SEATING provided in the enclosed mall is a definite plus factor according to Mrs. A. Biesack of Racine, Wis. visiting a niece in Schaumburg. Her husband, Al, said, "The best thing here is the sculpture. It's not just beauty but it shows some knowledge of geometrics as well."

"People are especially interested in toys here," said David Silger, a sales manager of the Sears, Roebuck & Co.

store. It has been open a month. "We have a fantastic amount of people coming in here with baby carriages," he noted. They like the wider aisles in the stores. He said many people come to see Vincent Price who has a display of artwork in the store.

To Mrs. Fred Feldman of Arlington Heights the center is a look into the future of retailing. The different levels and carpeting on the ramps in the mall area are an attraction for Mrs. Dale Sloan of Hoffman Estates.

The confusion in getting off Rt. 53 to the center was a criticism of a Chicago visitor who did not want to be identified.

"THE CENTER IS great, but couldn't they make the swimming pool a little deeper?" joked a workman in the mall area, about a fountain pool.

Confronting the expectations of the Woodfield visitors, shopkeepers were busy with customers soon after the opening ceremonies concluded. Ken Soderberg of Rolling Meadows proprietor of the Plum Tree novelty shop appeared stunned at the number of customers.

"It's been a real hustle to get ready for the opening," said Mrs. Joyce Henricks of Des Plaines, saleswoman for the Mirette store on an upper level. She looked at the Fanny May store below. "Yesterday that store wasn't there," she said. "Now they're busy selling candy."

More new stores will open daily for the next several months according to Jerry O'Neil, Woodfield general manager. "It's like one big department store," he said. "There are many boutiques here and the mix of stores is important."

3 Posts To Be Filled

School, Park Board Group May Join Plan Commission

The Village of Buffalo Grove is considering appointing school and park board members to the plan commission in an effort to establish closer communications between the boards.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, who proposed the idea, will meet with Plan Commission Chmn. Merrill Hoyt and Trustee Randall Rahn this week to discuss filling three positions on the commission.

A decision is expected at next Monday's village board meeting.

The plan commission reviews plans for new developments, hears annexation requests and is instrumental in securing land for schools and parks.

ARMSTRONG'S proposal would give school and park board members a vote in deciding the fate of new developments and in obtaining future school and park sites.

At last week's meeting, Hoyt recommended that John Yost and Evan Fader be reappointed to the commission for another year. He also recommended that Burt Harris be appointed to fill a vacancy on the 11-member commission.

However Armstrong delayed the appointments and said he wanted to explore the possibility of putting school or park board members on the plan commission instead.

The question of a possible conflict of interest then arose concerning individuals who would serve on two boards.

Armstrong feels that there would be no conflict of interest and sees nothing wrong with a citizen serving on two boards.

Hoyt is "not certain" whether a conflict would exist, but he did express concern about the amount of time a person could devote to the jobs.

"I AM NOT sure it would be (a conflict of interest) on its face or that one would develop," Hoyt said yesterday.

"I am concerned about the amount of time one would have to spend. I wouldn't have time to serve on a school board and still have enough time to serve on the plan commission also."

Continuing, Hoyt added, "the school board boundaries extend beyond the village and if a school board member were on the plan commission, he would be representing people living beyond the village (boundaries)."

TWO SISTERS were treated and released from Holy Family Hospital yesterday afternoon following this accident on Rte. 83 near Buffalo Grove. Taken to the hospital in a fire department ambulance were Shirley Payne, 18, and her sister Sylvia, 14, of 209 Highmore Ln., Round Lake Park.

Name New Civil Defense Chief To Replace Brooks

The Buffalo Grove Village Board Monday night acknowledged the resignation of the director of the civil defense commission and appointed a new one, amid applause from the audience.

In a letter dated Sept. 2 to the village board, which officials say they never received, Steven Brooks resigned stating he had increased responsibilities at his civilian job. He is also moving to Arlington Heights.

Village officials, who learned of Brooks' resignation through a story in the Herald, were not pleased about receiving the information in that manner.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said, "This represents his kind of action during his tenure." (Brooks had been the director since the commission's inception six months ago.)

TRUSTEE EDWARD Osmen added, "It's typical of him."

Brooks had been a controversial figure because of his vocal criticism of what he felt was lack of support by the village of the civil defense effort.

After saying there was "nothing official" concerning Brooks' resignation Armstrong said, "I take great pleasure in appointing Donald Schindler."

Armstrong described Schindler, a civil defense commissioner, as the person who "has kept the group together the last few months."

Brooks had recommended that Schindler be appointed his successor.

After his appointment, Schindler read a prepared statement which he called a review of "the intent of the civil defense commission."

SCHINDLER SAID it will be the intent of the civil defense effort to "afford our alliance and efforts to the citizens and municipal governmental factions of Buffalo Grove and not to allow ourselves to become alienated from these individuals."

"Furthermore it shall not be our position to place this board (of trustees) in an unfavorable position or make any unrealistic demands or requests for assistance, materials or equipment."

Schindler also said he will not request the purchase of a teletype (one such teletype has been repossessed) or "request costly and elaborate radio equipment when equipment one-third in cost will suffice."

Concluding, Schindler said, "finally it is our sincere desire to be good Americans."

Following his statement, the civil defense members in the audience applauded and the village trustees reacted favorably.

Teachers Still

Without Contract

A wage agreement between the School Dist. 21 teachers and the school board and administration still has not been reached.

A meeting between the school board administration negotiating team and the Dist. 21 faculty council to discuss a contract settlement, scheduled for Wednesday, was not held.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said that the meeting was postponed because a representative from the Illinois Education Association, who is advising the teachers in the negotiations, could not attend.

Gill said the meeting will be rescheduled next week.

Enrollment Gain

Under Prediction

Enrollment grew only slightly in Dist. 21 schools during the past year, according to preliminary enrollment figures compiled by Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill.

Enrollment in the district's 15 schools as of the first day of school Tuesday was 8,156 students, up about 200 students over the sixth-day enrollment figure of 7,954 last fall.

Gill said the enrollment fell below Dist. 21 projections. Estimates were that at least 8,350 students would be attending classes in the district this fall.

"Our projections were accurate in the new areas of the district, but we lost students in the more stable areas," Gill said.

A complete analysis of enrollment in the district will be made in the next few days, Gill said.

Children Need A Good Example

'Adults Must Stop Abusing Drugs'

Adults will have to stop abusing drugs themselves if any drug education program is to work successfully for their children, according to Robert Wilford of the post graduate training center at Forest Hospital in Des Plaines.

Wilford spoke last week to Wheeling-Elmhurst Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 teachers as part of an orientation program to the new drug abuse curriculum for all Dist. 21 students this year.

Wilford said in order to influence children successfully not to abuse drugs, the old adage, "Don't do as I do, do as I say," will have to be abandoned.

The mother who takes a tranquilizer to calm her nerves or the father who uses a cocktail to relax him is a powerful influence on a young child, Wilford said.

"It is giving children the idea to use chemistry to deal with life," he told the audience.

Commercial, with such slogans as, "Better living through chemistry," reinforce this idea, he stated.

"If you're going to change someone else's behavior, you will have to look at yourself first," Wilford said.

"CHILDREN HAVE to know that it's OK to emulate adult behavior."

"Drugs are here to stay," the educator said. "Marijuana will someday be legalized. There are all indications that it is well on its way. And then we will probably stop worrying about it. Alcoholism is our biggest drug problem and no one worries about it, because alcohol is legal.

"Now we're on a crusade to save the children, because we don't want them to become dope addicts. Some will tell them how bad drugs are."

"The truth is," said Wilford, "that a drug experience 90 per cent of the time is a good experience. 'Freaking out' is pretty much a myth. The idea that drugs are a bad, terrible thing is, from the standpoint of the user, most of the time not true."

"And so, fear has not worked. It hasn't deterred one bit the increased use of drugs among young people and adults," he said. Wilford said that drug abuse cannot be stopped simply by giving out information on the effects of drugs.

"You can kid yourself by thinking you can teach drug education by showing a filmstrip or giving out information. But if you want to take it seriously, you must realize that drug education involves feelings."

"THE DECISION to take drugs is an emotional decision. It isn't an intellectual one. If it were an intellectual decision, we wouldn't have one person in the United States using alcohol, for alcohol destroys the system."

"Happy, loving, secure children don't use drugs," Wilford said. "The child who does use drugs feels, 'the only way I can feel important and relieve the pain inside me is by turning on or turning off.'"

Educators have to be therapists if a drug education program is to be successful, according to Wilford.

"You have to attempt to help children change their feelings. How do you prepare yourself to teach emotionally? The best answers can be found by looking inside yourself, by understanding yourself as a person."

Former U.S. Atty. Foran Lecture Speaker

The fall lecture series sponsored by the education commission of St. Mary's Church in Buffalo Grove will start Sept. 24 with Thomas Foran, former United States attorney for Northern Illinois, as the guest speaker.

Foran, who prosecuted the "conspiracy seven" on charges resulting from incidents at the 1968 Democratic convention, will speak at 8 p.m. at St.

Mary's school hall. His topic will be "Times of Tension." Tickets are $1 per person.

TWO OTHER lectures are scheduled for the fall series.

On Oct. 17 at 8 p.m., Dr. Richard Westley, of the philosophy department at Loyola University, will speak. Dr. Westley was a speaker in last year's series. His subject has not been announced.

On Nov. 21 at 8 p.m., Sister Gabrielle Corbally of Sacred Heart School in Rolling Meadows will speak on "People, Movies, and Communications."

St. Mary's school hall is located adjacent to the church on Buffalo Grove Road, about a mile north of Dundee Road.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon has ruled out any extension of his wage-price freeze past Nov. 12, but promised a long-range program of economic stabilization afterward to make sure "America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation." He also announced he would propose major, unspecified tax reforms next year to help create 20 million new jobs in the coming decade and to meet worldwide economic challenges to America's postwar supremacy.

The Army rested its case against Capt. Ernest L. Medina after calling a lie detector expert in the Ft. McPherson, Ga., court marshal, who testified that Medina told him he had lost control of his troops at My Lai.

He also threatened to "clean the plow" of a reporter who investigated and revealed the matter. Paul Powell and other persons with state government ties also held stock in the trust.

The California Supreme Court decision outlawing the real estate and personal property tax as a criterion for educational support "clearly should be applicable to the Illinois situation," Lt. Gov. Paul Simon told the Springfield chapter of the American Business Club.

The Illinois Board of Regents, governing body for Illinois State University, Normal, and Sangamon State University, Springfield, has approved a $29.50 per semester tuition increase and a 4.1 per cent faculty and administrative pay hike.

A British army explosives expert was killed when he triggered a booby trap bomb in Belfast, Northern Ireland. In London, Prime Minister Edward Heath summoned the British Parliament into special session later this month to deal with the province's troubles.

Ambassador William J. Porter took over as chief U.S. negotiator at Vietnam peace talks in Paris and proposed that the four sides engage in secret negotiations. The Communists rejected the idea as they had two months earlier.

One Year After The March

No Low-Cost Housing Breakthrough

There is no sign of a breakthrough in housing more than a year since a march for low and moderate-income housing took place in the Northwest suburbs, according to one official who works with Mexican Americans.

Robert Munoz, director of the Illinois Migrant Council, said there has been no change in the status of housing for low and moderate income groups since the march in Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights.

"Things are the same," said Munoz, a resident of Palatine. "The need is still there but the opposition has grown."

The homeowners are much more organized than they were a year ago, he said in reference to the proposal to build low and moderate-income housing on the Viatorian property in Arlington Heights.

A former migrant worker who came to the area 11 years ago from Mercedes, Tex., Munoz was interviewed recently and asked to comment on the housing issue since the march last July 12.

"The march was a success in that it helped to bring the need for housing out into the open," he said. "It also demonstrated that we (the Mexican-American) are concerned about housing."

"We realized that we have to stand up for ourselves," he said, noting that much of the support in behalf of low and moderate-income housing had not been by Mexican Americans until a year ago.

Last summer, Munoz was one of 50 persons who participated in the march that started at Queen of the Rosar, Catholic Church in Elk Grove Village. By the time the marchers finished the crowd reached 100 at a rally at the Arlington High School football field.

THERE, REP. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, said the Mexican-American population must make its problems visible in order to receive help.

Munoz said Mrs. Chapman was the only elected official who joined in the march and that she is the only representative that has stood up for the rights of the Mexican-American at times, Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, has, he said, but not as much.

Local officials have not been responsive to the needs of the Mexican-American, Munoz said, predicting that the chances of low and moderate-income housing being built in the near future in the Northwest suburbs are not good.

The Viatorian proposal "doesn't have a chance at all," he said. "Low-income housing will come, he said, but not before a drastic change in local administrations."

Any housing would be for people already in the area, he said. "We're thinking about the people already here," he said.

On the same note, Munoz said there are few real migrant farm workers in the Northwest suburbs anymore. There are some, he said, but that now there are what he termed "industrial migrants" working in factories part of the year.

Mixed in with some of the migrants are illegal immigrants from Mexico, he said, who hurt the migrants from Texas because they are willing to work for low wages.

"They hinder those here legally by taking away wage competition," he said. "Immigrants are transported north of the border by 'coyotes,'" Munoz said, describing them as persons who prey on others. Often times immigrants are crowded into trucks under the worst of conditions, he said.

Most of the agricultural migrants who are here legally work on farms and nurseries, he said, but that many of these jobs have moved further north and west as the Northwest suburbs continue to be developed and the farm work becomes more mechanized, he explained.

WITH THE movement of the farm migrant, Munoz said the Illinois Migrant Council has moved its suburban office from Palatine to Crystal Lake.

Many of the migrants still live in sub-standard housing, though little is in the immediate area, he said.

The Northwest suburbs, however, will continue to see the arrival of more Mexican Americans and other races to work in the industrial parks here, he said.

"It's just a matter of time," Munoz said. "You can see it now on the expressways with many of the Anglos going to work in the city and minority groups coming to the suburbs," he said. "Something has got to give."

Munoz said the school systems here also have not met the needs of the Mexican-American. Many of the children don't know English and need assistance, he said, adding there is a need for bilingual teachers especially in the primary grades. He noted that Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 50 does have a program for the Spanish-speaking but that it is one of the few that does.

He said the dropout rate of Mexican-Americans from high school is tremendous and that he plans to request a survey to find out specifics of the problem at Palatine High School.

He also said there is a need for more vocational training for adults who are unskilled. Harper College in Palatine offers adult basic education, he said, but there is a need for more such training.

Dead Addict Didn't Want Help, Detective Reveals

by ROGER CAPETTINI

A 25 year old Des Plaines man, who died of an apparent overdose of heroin last week once told a Des Plaines policeman there was nothing anyone could do to help him.

The policeman, a detective who prefers to remain anonymous, spoke yesterday of Stephen J. Brennan of 625 Howard St., who died Friday morning. His death was blamed on an overdose of heroin.

According to the detective, Brennan could not be helped because he didn't want to be helped. "He didn't want to get off it," the policeman explained.

"You can't help any of them if they don't want help," another detective added.

The detectives said Brennan, who recently spent 45 days in the House of Correction, let it be known while he was imprisoned that the first thing he would do when he got out was seek more heroin.

"HE WAS DRIED out," the policeman said, "but all he could think of was getting back on it. He only got out of there a couple of weeks ago and now he's dead."

Another detective was obviously saddened by the death of the young carpenter.

"I really liked that kid," he said. "In spite of his drug problem he was really a good kid. We wanted to help him, but he wouldn't let us."

The attitude of another young Des Plaines man, also thought to have died as a result of an overdose of heroin, was quite unlike Brennan's, police said, however.

"Kevin Schneider had a completely healthy attitude about getting off drugs," one detective said.

SCHNEIDER, 19, of 2074 Locust St., Des Plaines, died Aug. 28. Police said at the time they thought he died from an overdose of heroin. A spoon, hypodermic needle case and a package of white powder reportedly was found under the mattress of the youth's bed.

Since that time, however, a pathologist's report has indicated Schneider died of natural causes.

"Schneider felt he could get off drugs — that he didn't need drugs any more," the detective said.

"His family was trying to help him. They were severing all their ties in this area and moving to Phoenix. Kevin said when he moved he was going to cut all his relationships with drug users and start over again in Phoenix without drugs," the policeman explained.

Schneider, who was known to associate with Brennan, also was recently released from the House of Correction.

ALTHOUGH the policeman said Schneider had a "healthy attitude," they expressed some doubt about anyone's ability to kick the heroin habit permanently.

"In the 18 years I've been a policeman, I've yet to see anyone get off heroin permanently," one detective said.

Another detective agreed. "I don't know of anyone who has ever gotten off it permanently," he said. "We believe it's possible, but just don't know of anyone who has ever done it. Some of the Chicago police say no one has ever done it."

The detective said the heroin problem in Des Plaines, "is like the old iceberg. The only part you know about is the small part that sticks up. It's hard to estimate the size of it below the surface."

Mayor Herbert Behrel said he met with Police Chief Arthur Hintz Tuesday morning to discuss the recent deaths and the drug problem in Des Plaines.

BEHREL SAID Hintz does not feel at this time that more money, programs or increased cooperation between Des Plaines and other police departments is necessary in the fight against drugs.

Apparently the youths were long time users, Hintz reportedly told the mayor. He said the police and the families were "well aware" they were addicts, but added, "It's not that easy" to make arrests.

One of the chief's detectives agreed. "We know these kids are using drugs, but it's difficult to prove in a court of law. We have trouble getting witnesses. We have few informants. They're too frightened to tell us anything. Would you allow your child to make a heroin buy for the police and testify in court?" he asked.

He said it is also difficult to infiltrate the drug subculture in an effort to increase arrests.

"They only sell to people they know. None of the police can do it — they recognize all of us. They may be breaking the law, but they're not stupid," he said.

He said the parents of drug users are not much help either.

"THE PARENTS either act as if the problem will go away if they ignore it, or try to solve it themselves. It will never go away and they are often not equipped to handle it themselves. They think they're protecting their kids, but they're not helping them in this case."

The detective said he can understand the feelings of the parents, however. "They're dealing with their most precious possessions," he said. "It's not easy to turn them in to the police, but it's the best thing they can do."

Des Plaines police investigated 24 drug cases in August. Eighteen of those resulted in arrests.

Eight of the arrest followed some kind of drug overdose.

Another overdose resulted in the death of Stephen J. Brennan.

DON WILSON, owner of a service station at Dundee and Arlington Heights road, feeds his pet goat "Nanny."

Grass, Shade? A Nanny Goat's Comment Is Baaa...

Most goats like to graze on grass and shade themselves under trees, but at least one goat prefers cement and a tow truck to a peaceful meadow.

That goat is "Nanny" and she is the pet of Don Wilson, owner of a Union 76 service station at the corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

According to Wilson, Nanny came to the station about a year ago. When her owner discovered where the goat was, Wilson managed to give the owner, who lives "down the street," a large clock in exchange for Nanny.

Now the goat is content to spend her time underneath a tow truck that is usually parked in front of the station and eating gifts of candy from children, Wilson said.

$3 Million Referendum Set Oct. 30 For Three Schools

by JOANN VAN WYE

Voters in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will be faced with a building program referendum Oct. 30 for the construction of three schools.

Two separate proposals will appear on the ballot. One will ask voter permission to transfer $1 million currently budgeted for a new elementary school in the southwest section of the district into the Palatine Hills Junior High School building fund.

The other proposal will be a request for authorization to issue between $3.3 and $3.5 million in bonds for construction and/or site acquisition of two elementary schools. One would be located in the western section of the district and scheduled for opening in the fall of 1974 and the other would be planned to open in the fall of 1975 in the northern section of the district.

THE DECISION to hold the referendum and setting the date was made informally at a committee of the whole meeting Wednesday. Formal action will be taken at a regular board meeting next Wednesday night.

Completion of Palatine Hills Junior High School by the fall of 1973 is the immediate concern of the board. Seven bids on the construction of the school were opened Aug. 24 but no action has been taken on the bids yet since they were higher than anticipated.

Kiend Construction Co. of Chicago was the low bidder at $2,927,572. The firm has previously built Lake Louise and Hunting Ridge schools in the district.

The district has an estimated $2,080,000 available for construction of the school. These funds are from the $2 million sale of bonds in 1969 following a successful referendum and investment income accrued since then. The general construction costs were estimated at $1,691,100 with architects fees, equipment costs and landscaping planned to deplete the remaining resources.

William Colburn, business manager, said if the low bid of Kiend was accepted the district would need an additional $1 million.

VOTER APPROVAL of the transfer of approximately $1 million in funds from bonds sold following the 1967 and 1969 referendums for construction of a new elementary school would enable the board to award a contract to Kiend so construction could start without having to wait on the sale of bonds.

The Oct. 30 date was tentatively selected because the board must act on the bid. Richard Donatoni, architect for the school, was directed to contact representatives of Kiend and see if they would sign a contract contingent on a successful referendum or put up a bid bond until

Oct. 30.

Donatoni explained the bids were higher than originally anticipated because the scope of the project had changed, construction costs have increased and because he underestimated his ability to bring the building in on budget.

Palatine Hills Junior High School on Smith Street was originally planned as a duplicate of Carl Sandburg Junior High School in Rolling Meadows. The plans have since been changed to a more modern building to house 968 students with the flexible space concept allowing an interdisciplinary approach to education.

DONATONI SAID there was no "glamour or glitter" to be off out of the building and it would be impossible to defer construction of a wing of the building because "the whole thing is an integral design and functions together."

The board was faced with the choice of altering its goal of developing a junior high program and building a school with less possibilities, redesigning the building or taking the question to the voters in the form of a referendum. Since the school is already behind schedule and the board members agreed the basic concept was sound, they decided on the referendum.

If the referendum is approved, the district would be able to transfer students, releasing 14 classrooms at Winston Park School, 12 classrooms at Gray M. Sanborn School, and 10 classrooms at Stuart Paddock School for elementary classes. All three schools are in Palatine.

This would help overcrowding in 1973 but next year the district is faced with problems. There is already some discussion that classes will have to be moved back to church rooms and classrooms converted for music and library space this year will have to be reconverted.

"If we can get Palatine Hills opened in the fall of 1973, it's necessary to plan on opening another school no later than fall of 1974," said Supt. Frank Whiteley.

AT THIS TIME there is a projected need for a new elementary school in the west section of the district to handle students from Winston Knolls subdivision in Hoffman Estates in 1974.

Whiteley said there was also a "tremendous situation" in the northeast section of the district and opening of a school should be planned for no later than 1975.

A referendum to sell bonds for the construction of the 30-room elementary schools will be taken to the voters in a single package.

If both proposals are passed at the Oct. 30 referendum the district will have nearly depleted its bonding power.

Colburn emphasized passage of the proposals would not necessarily mean a tax rate increase. He explained the tax base was increasing so the bonded indebtedness would be spread across a broader base and other bond debts would be expiring.

NOT KNOWING quite what to expect, Jennifer Lotz, 7, cautiously takes a bite of her hot lunch. Judging by the look on her face, Jennifer Nykiel, 7, is anything but pleased with her home-packed lunch and would gladly swap. Central Road School in Rolling Meadows is one of three elementary schools in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 schools with a hot lunch program this year.

'Palatine Special' Will Greet New Train Station

Palatine will not only be blessed with a new train station when it opens tomorrow, it will also have its own train.

The Palatine Special, the regularly scheduled 10:28 a.m. inbound train, will pull into the new downtown transportation center and depot draped with a banner for the occasion. The "Special" will be the first Chicago and North Western Railway train to make use of the new facility.

The train's arrival will conclude a ceremony beginning at 10 a.m. on the platform to mark the grand opening of the station, and several stores in the center shopping area. Village crews will have the station decorated for the occasion.

Palatine Mayor Jack Moodie will read a proclamation setting tomorrow as Transportation Day, citing the cooperation of the village, railroad officials and developers of the center for getting the depot constructed.

Village officials will also hang a new Palatine sign at the station.

The banner proclaiming the 10:28 train as the "Palatine Special" will remain on the front of the train as it winds through the Northwest suburbs until it reaches its Chicago destination.

Two of the seven stores in the shopping area of the transportation center will also open with the depot, according to

Lew Draper, center developer. Elegance Cleaners and Baker's Card and Gift Shop will open tomorrow, as well as the drive-in facility of the Palatine National Bank on the corner of Smith and Colfax.

The Palatine House Restaurant, operated by the same owners of Arlington Heights Dunton House, is scheduled to open in three weekends, Draper said. Marie's Dress Shop will open Nov. 15 and a barber shop, owned by George Lill, will open in two weeks.

Draper said he is still seeking leases for a liquor store and small food store.

Work first began on the depot last July at an estimated cost of $30,000. The entire transportation center is valued at $1.7 million. The center's opening went through several postponements before tomorrow's grand opening was finally set up.

More than 500 additional parking spaces will be created with the opening. A large commuter parking lot south of the tracks will open tomorrow for permit use. Another lot north of tracks will open later this month with long and short term metered parking.

The shopping center and depot represent Phase One of the total project. Phase Two proposes a four-story building next to the depot, with a lower level used for buses and taxis and the top of the building as a possible heliport.

Tiger's Teeth On A Bun?

by JOANN VAN WYE

Tiger's teeth in a bun? This was Lillie Shoshoo's description of her hot lunch. With all the seriousness her five-year-old face could muster, Lillie said, "It's really good except the inside of the hamburger is funny. Everytime I open it, it looks like tiger's teeth."

Questioned if she had ever seen tiger's teeth, Lillie thought for a minute and said, "No, but that's what it looks like."

It seems that neither Lillie's parents, teachers or friends had explained that although placed on a hamburger bun the sandwich was not a hamburger but hot barbecued beef, which accounts for its strange looks.

Moving on to the dessert, Lillie said it tasted like apple sauce. Actually it was apple crisp. Lillie's only objection to the dessert was that she "used to eat apple sauce when she was a baby" and thought she was a little bit old for it now.

LILLIE IS JUST one of many students at Central Road Elementary School in Rolling Meadows taking advantage of the new hot lunch program.

Central Road School is one of three elementary schools in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 where a pilot hot lunch program is being offered this year. The other two schools are Jonas Salk in Rolling Meadows and Virginia Lake school in Palatine. Both Carl Sandburg Junior High School in Rolling Meadows and Winston Park Junior High School in Palatine offer the lunch also.

Approximately 12 cafeteria workers at the two junior highs prepare and package the food for all the schools. An estimated 1,300 lunches were prepared this week in the two cafeterias, with approximately 600 being shipped to the elementary schools.

A hot pack, which includes the main dish and a vegetable, is placed in an aluminum container and covered with aluminum foil. The food has been cooked prior to being packaged and at the elementary schools it is only necessary to place the hot packs in a warmer oven for 10 to 20 minutes.

There is also a cold pack, which contains dessert and some type of salad or chips.

The students go through the line and pick up a hot and cold pack and a carton of milk. The entire package costs 45 cents. There is no choice, substitutes or extras cutting down on time. The students also pay for their lunch a week in advance which saves time at lunch.

THE PROBLEM OF students dropping their lunch tray is eliminated because if either pack drops the student can just pick it up and walk away because it is packaged so it will not fall apart.

"Like they say, it's hot," said Brian

Harrington, 10. If anything, the students complained that the lunch was too hot.

Michael, 6, who couldn't remember how to spell his last name, and had finished off his dessert first, was all excited when he found some pieces of hard candy in his potato chips. He declined offers from his friend to swap the candy for a homemade cookie.

Asked how she liked her lunch, Ginny Donaghey, 8, said, "It's better than no hot lunch at all."

"Do I have to eat everything or just what I can?" asked Mark Greco, 7, with his big brown eyes bulging out.

Sitting across from Mark was Gretchen Foster, 7, who said she "hated the dessert and candy." She denied being on a diet but could offer no explanation for her lack of a sweet tooth.

Embarrassed when he was caught throwing away his lunch, Craig Agate, 7, explained that barbecued beef was far from his favorite food but that he had eaten his potato chips and peas.

MRS. WALTER SUNDLING, cafeteria supervisor, said she was happy with the way the program has been going and said the response to the lunches has been very favorable.

Our goal is to have one central kitchen at Palatine Hills Junior High School where lunches for the entire school district can be made, packaged and shipped out, she explained.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon has ruled out any extension of his wage-price freeze past Nov. 12, but promised a long-range program of economic stabilization afterward to make sure "America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation." He also announced he would propose major, unspecified tax reforms next year to help create 20 million new jobs in the coming decade and to meet worldwide economic challenges to America's postwar supremacy.

The Army rested its case against Capt. Ernest L. Medina after calling a lie detector expert in the Ft. McPherson, Ga., court marshal, who testified that Medina told him he had lost control of his troops at My Lai.

Hurricane Fern has lost power in a rush toward the Texas coast but gales, rain and high tides at its fringes struck ashore. Tornadoes and flash flooding hit during the night.

The War

South Vietnamese forces have struck the first Communist resistance in their five-day-old push into the country's jungle-steamy northwestern corner. Machine gunners forced down a U.S. helicopter carrying South Vietnamese infantry.

The State

Illinois Secretary of State John Lewis, in an angry statement, has defended but has not explained, his daughter's ownership of stock in a land trust which owns Cahokia Downs Race track. He also threatened to "clean the plow" of a reporter who investigated and revealed the matter. Paul Powell and other persons with state government ties also held stock in the trust.

The California Supreme Court decision outlawing the real estate and personal property tax as a criterion for educational support "clearly should be applicable to the Illinois situation," Lt. Gov. Paul Simon told the Springfield chapter of the American Business Club.

The Illinois Board of Regents, governing body for Illinois State University, Normal, and Sangamon State University, Springfield, has approved a $29.50 per semester tuition increase and a 4.1 per cent faculty and administrative pay hike.

The World

A British army explosives expert was killed when he triggered a booby trap bomb in Belfast, Northern Ireland. In London, Prime Minister Edward Heath summoned the British Parliament into special session later this month to deal with the province's troubles.

Ambassador William J. Porter took over as chief U.S. negotiator at Vietnam peace talks in Paris and proposed that the four sides engage in secret negotiations. The Communists rejected the idea as they had two months earlier.

Opinion Mixed On Cycle Races

Tonight's Yamaha Gold Cup motorcycle race at Arlington Park Race Track is viewed with mixed emotions by residents of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine. A random survey yesterday showed some residents of the communities, which surround the track, support the first motorcycle meet in the track's history, while others violently oppose it.

A Palatine resident, Mrs. M. T. Porter, was one of those objecting to the motorcycle meet. "In one word — awful," she commented. She said there is a fear by many residents that the motorcyclists will continue their racing outside the race track oval. "We like our country tranquility here," she added. "We don't want racing in the neighborhood streets."

However, Mrs. Arthur Valentine, 2008 St. James, Rolling Meadows, who lives very near the track, didn't oppose the night racing. "My son is a motorcyclist," she laughed. "And my husband and I used to ride years ago. There are all kinds."

As one of the residents most affected by the lights and traffic, she said, "I'll wait and see how it comes out. I won't make a judgment until I see what happens."

She added that night horse racing was a reality a few years ago and tonight's race won't bother the adjacent residents "because everybody stays up on weekends."

Mrs. Alfred Myles, 1800 N. Vail, Arlington Heights, said motorcyclists need a place to stage a race. "It's a good thing to have an organized race. It would get the racing off the roads and streets."

As an Arlington Heights resident who lives near the track, Mrs. Robert Sherman, 1615 Euclid Ave., said she objects to the noise and traffic. "We've had an extended racing season and we were finally getting used to the peace and quiet," she said. "Additional traffic already is here because of the grand opening of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg. 'This will just make it worse,' she said."

Mrs. Donald Scheve, 2204 Jay Ln., Rolling Meadows, agreed the traffic and lights created by the race would be objectionable. "I don't approve of the lights or the program or the traffic. Something should be done."

Bessie Benson of Arlington Heights suggested the village officials take steps to ban future events of this nature. "I don't feel good about the race. I just don't see any sense in it."

Mrs. Robert Nordstrom, 743 S. Warren, Palatine, pointed to "the pollution" created by the motorcycles. "I imagine it's going to be quite smoky. 'It sounds like it was just cooked up without asking the people. Before long it's going to be just like Chicago here.'"

Mrs. Edward J. Noonan, 16 E. Forest Ln., Palatine, pointed to the bright lights and traffic as undesirable effects of tonight's event. "I feel sorry for the people who live in the immediate area. I oppose all night racing."

A Rolling Meadows resident, Mrs. Edward Vesely, 3505 Mallard Ct., said "I'm no motorcycle fan but I don't think the race should be banned. If they have a place to ride it's fine. It keeps them off the streets."

Mrs. Charles Rohde, 3800 Holly Ln., Rolling Meadows said she sympathizes with the people who live near the track because of the lights and noise during the race. "I'm not directly affected, but I feel it is a shame in the history of Arlington Park Race Track and the sport of kings that we have this come down."

'Smoke Detectors Could Have Saved Some Stores'

by PAUL GREENFIELD
Heat or smoke detectors in Nelson's Floral Shop could have prevented five stores in downtown Palatine from being destroyed or damaged in the Wednesday morning fire that caused an estimated $100,000 damage.

Palatine Fire Chief Orville Helms said Thursday that if the flower shop had had such detectors the fire department would have been alerted to the intense heat which had been building up for hours, and which finally broke out into the huge flames that destroyed two stores at the corner of Brockway and Palatine roads.

The fire destroyed the flower shop, Nelson's Hallmark Card Shop, most of George Lill's Barber Shop, destroyed the inventory of the Your Hang-Up Boutique and damaged Jim Thompson's State Farm Insurance Agency. The only other store under the same roof, Hansen's Hardware Store, was not damaged by the blaze.

Helms said the fire in Nelson's started in the workshop in the west end of the store. The fire traveled above the metal false ceiling and smoldered there for a number of hours, possibly starting around midnight, he said. When the heat in the store grew, it caused the windows to shatter. Once enough oxygen got into the store, the flames quickly spread, he said.

BUT HEAT OR smoke detectors would have detected the smoldering fire long before enough heat had built up to shatter the windows and spread the flames, he said.

Both Helms and Palatine Village Mgr. Berton Braun said they think the best way buildings can be protected against fires is through heat and smoke detectors.

"Older buildings, particularly those built before the National Fire Prevention Code of 1955 was established, are more susceptible to fire," Braun said. "But for these buildings to come into conformity with the present code is usually economically not feasible."

"Besides, I don't think government can tell building owners they must rebuild their buildings every time amendments to the code are made."

Braun said Palatine has adopted the national code for village use, and that the code is complete. "It's a model code, designed by insurance agents, who are basically conservative guys," he said. "After all, everytime there's a fire, they have to pay, too."

"BUT MOST OF the fires in Palatine are not the result of a code violation. You can't code against someone leaving an oven on all night, for example."

But Braun said he still has arguments with builders over the interpretation of certain parts of the building and fire codes. "Everybody's looking to cut corners, because the more rigid the code the more expensive the building. Unfortunately to many of the builders the minimum required by code is the maximum that's built. Apparently their attitude is 'the only crime is getting caught,' he said."

Braun said building inspectors are at construction projects virtually every day, and quite often will require inspection before certain phases of the construction can be completed. "Maybe if we gave builders court citations every time we found a violation instead of just correcting the situation we'd get more cooperation from them," he said.

BRAUN ALSO said the fire department inspects public buildings, such as schools and businesses, about three times a year, but again there is a problem of what changes the fire department can require the property owners to make.

Helms said smoke and heat detectors are relatively inexpensive and easy to install. But it would be up to the village board to decide whether to require buildings to have them, he said.

He also said he will be studying these detectors and will then be speaking to business owners, and possibly the Chamber of Commerce, about installing them on a voluntary basis.

Fall Sports Preview At Fremd Tonight

The annual intersquad football game at Fremd High School will be held tonight.

Football, cross country competition, marching bands and prizes will highlight the opening of the fall sports season.

Several thousand persons attended last year's intersquad game, according to John Miller, president of the Booster Club, which is sponsoring the event. A larger turnout is hoped for this year.

Miller said the added attraction of the cross country team, which will run two mile practice runs, and the first appearance "on the field" by the school band, will boost attendance for the game.

Village Sues Officials In Move To Halt Remap

Secretary of State John W. Lewis, Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, and the Illinois State Electoral Board have all been named as defendants in a suit the Village of Arlington Heights filed in federal court Wednesday in an effort to invalidate a new state legislative redistricting map.

The suit, filed in the name of all village board members and John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights, cites the defendants as being party to a redistricting map which splits the village into four "odd-shaped and gerrymandered districts."

The suit charges the new map "totally ignored" the federal and state constitutional principle of "one-man, one-vote."

Before the map was completed by an eight-member reapportionment committee last month, the village was uniformly within the third district, giving Arlington Heights a strong suburban voice in the General Assembly, the suit said.

The new districting plan, however, was created "to effectively diminish the power of the citizens of Arlington Heights to elect representatives of their choice in the General Assembly," the suit claims.

THE SUIT ALSO charges the reapportionment committee was improperly appointed and lacked representation of the independent voter. The committee, the suit states, was composed entirely of members of the Democratic and Republican parties.

Lewis was named in the suit because he received the map from the committee and published it, according to the copy of the suit filed in the U.S. District Court.

The electoral board was cited for their role in certifying the names of all candidates for the state legislature before those names appear on the primary ballot and for the committee's other "diverse duties" in connection with state representatives and senators.

Scott became party to the suit for initiating the redistricting plan and for failing to challenge its validity in the Illinois Supreme Court. He is also a member of the electoral board.

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel said yesterday the next step in the legal proceedings is for the three defendants to file a response to the charges. He did not indicate how soon this will be.

UNDER THE PREVIOUS apportionment map, Arlington Heights, was wholly within the 3rd Legislative District, which took in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg Townships.

Representing the 3rd district were

Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights; Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; Rep. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect; and Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington.

Under the new plan, Arlington Heights is in the 1st, 3rd, 4th and 32nd districts.

The 32nd District is that part of Arlington Heights within Lake County.

The 1st district is the portion of Arlington Heights south of the Lake County line and north of Palatine Road.

The 4th district is bounded by Gregory to Northwest Highway, to Douglas, to Hawthorne, to Dunton, to Thomas, to Arlington Heights Road to Palatine Road.

The 3rd district takes in all other parts of Arlington Heights.

Dead Addict Didn't Want Help, Detective Reveals

By ROGER CAPETTINI

A 25 year old Des Plaines man who died of an apparent overdose of heroin last week once told a Des Plaines policeman there was nothing anyone could do to help him.

The policeman, a detective who prefers to remain anonymous, spoke yesterday of Stephen J. Brennan of 625 Howard St., who died Friday morning. His death was blamed on an overdose of heroin.

According to the detective, Brennan could not be helped because he didn't want to be helped. "He didn't want to get off it," the policeman explained.

"You can't help any of them if they don't want help," another detective added.

The detectives said Brennan, who recently spent 45 days in the House of Correction, let it be known while he was imprisoned that the first thing he would do when he got out was seek more heroin.

"HE WAS DRIED out," the policeman said, "but all he could think of was getting back on it. He only got out of there a couple of weeks ago and now he's dead."

Another detective was obviously saddened by the death of the young carpenter.

"I really liked that kid," he said. "In spite of his drug problem he was really a good kid. We wanted to help him, but he wouldn't let us."

The attitude of another young Des Plaines man, also thought to have died as a result of an overdose of heroin, was quite unlike Brennan's, police said, however.

"Kevin Schneider had a completely healthy attitude about getting off drugs," one detective said.

SCHNEIDER, 19, of 2074 Locust St., Des Plaines, died Aug. 28. Police said at the time they thought he died from an overdose of heroin. A spoon, hypodermic needle case and a package of white powder reportedly was found under the mattress of the youth's bed.

Since that time, however, a pathologist's report has indicated Schneider died of natural causes.

"Schneider felt he could get off drugs — that he didn't need drugs any more," the detective said.

"His family was trying to help him.

They were severing all their ties in this area and moving to Phoenix. Kevin said when he moved he was going to cut all his relationships with drug users and start over again in Phoenix without drugs," the policeman explained.

Schneider, who was known to associate with Brennan, also was recently released from the House of Correction.

ALTHOUGH THE policeman said Schneider had a "healthy attitude," they expressed some doubt about anyone's ability to kick the heroin habit permanently.

"In the 18 years I've been a policeman, I've yet to see anyone get off heroin permanently," one detective said.

Another detective agreed. "I don't know of anyone who has ever gotten off it permanently," he said. "We believe it's possible, but just don't know of anyone who has ever done it. Some of the Chicago police say no one has ever done it."

The detective said the heroin problem in Des Plaines, "is like the old iceberg. The only part you know about is the small part that sticks up. It's hard to estimate the size of it below the surface."

Mayor Herbert Behrel said he met with Police Chief Arthur Hintz Tuesday morning to discuss the recent deaths and the drug problem in Des Plaines.

BEHREL SAID Hintz does not feel at this time that more money, programs or increased cooperation between Des Plaines and other police departments is necessary in the fight against drugs.

Apparently the youths were long time users, Hintz reportedly told the mayor. He said the police and the families were "well aware" they were addicts, but added, "It's not that easy" to make arrests.

One of the chief's detectives agreed. "We know these kids are using drugs, but it's difficult to prove in a court of law. We have trouble getting witnesses. We have few informants. They're too frightened to tell us anything. Would you allow your child to make a heroin buy for the police and testify in court?" he asked.

He said it is also difficult to infiltrate the drug subculture in an effort to increase arrests.

"They only sell to people they know. None of the police can do it — they recognize all of us. They may be breaking the law, but they're not stupid," he said.

He said the parents of drug users are not much help either.

"THE PARENTS either act as if the problem will go away if they ignore it, or try to solve it themselves. It will never go away and they are often not equipped to handle it themselves. They think they're protecting their kids, but they're not helping them in this case."

The detective said he can understand the feelings of the parents, however. "They're dealing with their most precious possessions," he said. "It's not easy to turn them in to the police, but it's the best thing they can do."

Des Plaines police investigated 24 drug cases in August. Eighteen of those resulted in arrests.

Eight of the arrest followed some kind of drug overdose.

Another overdose resulted in the death of Stephen J. Brennan.

Rule Death Due To Natural Cause

The death of a 19-year-old Des Plaines man last week, originally thought to have been the result of an overdose of heroin, was classified Wednesday as a result of natural causes.

A spokesman at the Cook County Coroner's office said Kevin R. Schneider, 19, of 2074 Locust St., Des Plaines, died from congestive heart failure and not an overdose of heroin.

Schneider was found unconscious on the floor of his bedroom Aug. 28 by his father, Henry.

He was pronounced dead at 10:45 a.m., at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

Police said they found a spoon, hypodermic needle case and three packages of white powder, believed to be heroin, under the mattress of the youth's bed. Needle marks reportedly were found on Schneider's right arm, stomach and toes.

The spokesman at the county morgue, Jerry Shea, said a pathologist's report indicated only a small amount of narcotics was found in the organs examined, according to Des Plaines police.

$3 Million Referendum Set Oct. 30 For Three Schools

by JOANN VAN WYE

Voters in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will be faced with a building program referendum Oct. 30 for the construction of three schools.

Two separate proposals will appear on the ballot. One will ask voter permission to transfer $1 million currently budgeted for a new elementary school in the southwest section of the district into the Palatine Hills Junior High School building fund.

The other proposal will be a request for authorization to issue between $3.3 and $3.5 million in bonds for construction and/or site acquisition of two elementary schools. One would be located in the western section of the district and scheduled for opening in the fall of 1974 and the other would be planned to open in the fall of 1975 in the northern section of the district.

THE DECISION to hold the referendum and setting the date was made informally at a committee of the whole meeting Wednesday. Formal action will be taken at a regular board meeting next Wednesday night.

Completion of Palatine Hills Junior High School by the fall of 1973 is the immediate concern of the board. Seven bids on the construction of the school were opened Aug. 24 but no action has been taken on the bids yet since they were higher than anticipated.

Kiendl Construction Co. of Chicago was the low bidder at $2,827,672. The firm has previously built Lake Louise and Hunting Ridge schools in the district.

The district has an estimated $2,000,000 available for construction of the school. These funds are from the $2 million sale of bonds in 1969 following a successful referendum and investment income accrued since then. The general construction costs were estimated at $1,001,100 with architects fees, equipment costs and landscaping planned to deplete the remaining resources.

William Colburn, business manager, said if the low bid of Kiendl was accepted the district would need an additional $1 million.

VOTER APPROVAL of the transfer of approximately $1 million in funds from bonds sold following the 1967 and 1969 referendums for construction of a new elementary school would enable the board to award a contract to Kiendl so construction could start without having to wait on the sale of bonds.

The Oct. 30 date was tentatively selected because the board must act on the bid. Richard Donatoni, architect for the school, was directed to contact representatives of Kiendl and see if they would sign a contract contingent on a successful referendum or put up a bid bond until

Oct. 30.

Donatoni explained the bids were higher than originally anticipated because the scope of the project had changed, construction costs have increased and because he underestimated his ability to bring the building in on budget.

Palatine Hills Junior High School on Smith Street was originally planned as a duplicate of Carl Sandburg Junior High School in Rolling Meadows. The plans have since been changed to a more modern building to house 900 students with the flexible space concept allowing an interdisciplinary approach to education.

DONATONI SAID there was no "glamour or glitter" to be cut out of the building and it would be impossible to defer construction of a wing of the building because "the whole thing is an integral design and functions together."

The board was faced with the choice of altering its goal of developing a junior high program and building a school with less possibilities, redesigning the building or taking the question to the voters in the form of a referendum. Since the school is already behind schedule and the board members agreed the basic concept was sound, they decided on the referendum.

If the referendum is approved, the district would be able to transfer students, releasing 14 classrooms at Winston Park School, 12 classrooms at Gray M. Sanborn School, and 10 classrooms at Stuart Paddock School for elementary classes. All three schools are in Palatine.

This would help overcrowding in 1973 but next year the district is faced with problems. There is already some discussion that classes will have to be moved back to church rooms and classrooms converted for music and library space this year will have to be reconverted.

"If we can get Palatine Hills opened in the fall of 1973, it's necessary to plan on opening another school no later than fall of 1974," said Supt. Frank Whiteley.

AT THIS TIME there is a projected need for a new elementary school in the west section of the district to handle students from Winston Knolls subdivision in Hoffman Estates in 1974.

Whiteley said there was also a "tremulous situation" in the northeast section of the district and opening of a school should be planned for no later than 1975.

A referendum to sell bonds for the construction of the 30-room elementary schools will be taken to the voters in a single package.

If both proposals are passed at the Oct. 30 referendum the district will have nearly depleted its bonding power.

Colburn emphasized passage of the proposals would not necessarily mean a tax rate increase. He explained the tax base was increasing as the bonded indebtedness would be spread across a broader base and other bond debts would be expiring.

WARMING UP FOR Saturday's preseason scrimmage are these Rolling Meadows High School football players. Play between the lower level teams will begin at 10 a.m. with the junior varsity headliner scheduled for 11:30. The Mustang coaches will be introduced by Tom O'Driscoll, athletic director. Parents will be able to meet the coaches of their boys after each scrimmage. (Photo by Jay Needleman)

Village Officials Eye High-Rise Ordinance

Rolling Meadows officials are considering a high-rise ordinance to place more stringent building requirements on structures over three stories high.

City council committees have been discussing the ordinance, designed by Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty, and may pass the bill this month.

The ordinance will amend the present Rolling Meadows building codes, which some builders believe already restrictive. "I expect to hear a lot of feedback from builders in regard to the ordinance," Fogarty said yesterday.

City building codes require any multi-story structure to be of solid-masonry construction and outlaw wood-framed construction in apartment buildings. There are also some specific material requirements for new buildings within the city.

The high-rise ordinance requires additional sprinkler systems and elevators on emergency power. "One of the biggest problems in large building fires is the evacuation of people," said Fogarty. "The elevators and other requirements will help the problem."

ALTHOUGH THERE are no four-story buildings in Rolling Meadows, the ordinance is in advance of the 12 level structure planned in the south industrial park by Gould Inc. Gould is also considering a shopping plaza as well as the office complex.

"It is also a matter of manpower," Fogarty added. "What can three men do at a high rise fire?" The Rolling Meadows fire department has three full-time men on duty and the chief and the building inspector during the day. There are 28 volunteer firemen.

FOGARTY SAID the more stringent building requirements will contain the fire so it will not spread to other sections of the structure.

"MOST CITIES consider the high-rise anything above their highest piece of equipment," Fogarty added. In most instances it would be about eight stories or higher, he said. "But we can't do that here because of the manpower."

The Rolling Meadows high-rise ordinance is patterned after similar codes used by the City of Chicago. The high-rise ordinance will supplement the widely used Building Officials Conference of America (BOCA) code. It is a performance code, which specifies the qualities of building materials rather than naming specific building products. However, several specific building products are named in multi-family buildings constructed in Rolling Meadows.

Ladies Day Movie Set

A free ladies day movie will be shown at the Meadows Theatre at 9:45 a.m. Tuesday.

Sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center the event will be followed by a hunt for prizes in the shopping center. Roses will be given to women traveling long distances, those with zany hair styles and others celebrating birthdays and anniversaries.

Shrugs Off County Idea

Cook County Board President George Dunne gave the proposal for a new county in the Northwest suburbs only a shrug of his shoulders before a meeting of the Palatine Township Democratic Organization.

"What proposals?" he asked Tuesday night when questioned about his reaction to the proposed Lincoln County. "I thought they only had the name," he said.

Mrs. Ninnemann Is Shopping Center Head

Mrs. Blanche Ninnemann of the Duchess Beauty Salon has been named president of the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Association.

She had been vice president and was appointed to head the group after the resignation of former president Mike Sica. Sica resigned to take a position with another firm not associated with the shopping center.

Bill Glasgow, president of the Bank of Rolling Meadows, was named treasurer of the association. He replaces former secretary John Woods.

The proposal for Lincoln County calls for secession of six Northwest suburban townships from Cook County and the formation of a new county. Palatine trustees Merwin Soper and Wendell Jones, originators of the idea, said the new county would be among the five largest counties in the state.

DUNNE ALSO told the Democratic workers that voter participation must increase in the suburbs if the Democratic party is to gain more electoral strength.

"This increased participation must come primarily from the young voters," he said. "And in asking them to participate, I always remind them if they don't, government will be what other people want it to be."

DUNNE SAID 79.5 per cent of the registered voters in Palatine Township voted in the 1970 elections, while an average of only 74.5 per cent of the registered voters voted in suburban Cook County townships.

"But we can do better," he said. "Adlai Stevenson drew about 43 per cent of the vote here, Michael Bakalis got about 41 per cent and yours truly got about 40 per cent, but with increased participation we can get more Democratic voters in the future."

"And don't let anyone worry you about whether the young voters will vote Democratic or Republican. If you extend a friendly hand, the new voters will reply in kind," he said.

"Then it's up to the party leadership to make sure our relationship with the young voters is a lasting one."

Dunne said he feels the issues on the state level will be the same as national campaign issues, the state of the economy. But he also said that, unlike others, he did feel the Vietnam War would continue to be an issue in the 1972 campaign.

DUNNE ALSO began to gear the Democratic organization for what he feels will be a tough campaign. "Even if the popularity polls say President Nixon is not popular, he will run a tough campaign in 1972," he said. "Nixon has great determination, and I think that determination will be evident in the kind of campaign he will run."

Dunne's speech coincided with a voter registration drive to be conducted by the Democratic party in the voting precincts. The drive, to be run by Richard Chierico, places the highest priority on registering new voters in the 18-21 age group.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon has ruled out any extension of his wage-price freeze past Nov. 12, but promised a long-range program of economic stabilization afterward to make sure "America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation." He also announced he would propose major, unspecified tax reforms next year to help create 20 million new jobs in the coming decade and to meet worldwide economic challenges to America's postwar supremacy.

The Army rested its case against Capt. Ernest L. Medina after calling a lie detector expert in the Ft. McPherson, Ga., court marshal, who testified that Medina told him he had lost control of his troops at My Lai.

Hurricane Fern has lost power in rush toward the Texas coast but gales, rain and high tides at its fringes struck ashore. Tornadoes and flash flooding hit during the night.

In a blunt face-to-face meeting, Secretary of State William P. Rogers asked Foreign Minister Takao Fukuda of Japan for a reevaluation of the yen and for elimination of import restrictions against U.S. products.

The War

South Vietnamese forces have struck the first Communist resistance in their five-day-old push into the country's jungle-steamy northwestern corner. Machine gunners forced down a U.S. helicopter carrying South Vietnamese infantry.

The State

Illinois Secretary of State John Lewis, in an angry statement, has defended but has not explained, his daughter's ownership of stock in a land trust which owns Cahokia Downs Race track. He also threatened to "clean the plow" of a reporter who investigated and revealed the matter. Paul Powell and other persons with state government ties also held stock in the trust.

The California Supreme Court decision outlawing the real estate and personal property tax as a criterion for educational support "clearly should be applicable to the Illinois situation," Lt. Gov. Paul Simon told the Springfield chapter of the American Business Club.

The Illinois Board of Regents, governing body for Illinois State University, Normal, and Sangamon State University, Springfield, has approved a $29.50 per semester tuition increase and a 4.1 per cent faculty and administrative pay hike.

The World

A British army explosives expert was killed when he triggered a booby trap bomb in Belfast, Northern Ireland. In London, Prime Minister Edward Heath summoned the British Parliament into special session later this month to deal with the province's troubles.

Ambassador William J. Porter took over as chief U.S. negotiator at Vietnam peace talks in Paris and proposed that the four sides engage in secret negotiations. The Communists rejected the idea as they had two months earlier.

Opinions

Opinion Mixed On Cycle Races

Tonight's Yamaha Gold Cup motorcycle race at Arlington Park Race Track is viewed with mixed emotions by residents of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine. A random survey yesterday showed some residents of the communities, which surround the track, support the first motorcycle meet in the track's history, while others violently oppose it.

A Palatine resident, Mrs. M. T. Porter, was one of those objecting to the motorcycle meet. "In one word — awful," she commented. She said there is a fear by many residents that the motorcycle race will continue their racing outside the race track oval. "We like our country tranquility here," she added. "We don't want racing in the neighborhood streets."

However, Mrs. Arthur Valentine, 2008 St. James, Rolling Meadows, who lives very near the track, didn't oppose the night racing. "My son is a motorcyclist," she laughed. "And my husband and I used to ride years ago. There are all kinds."

As one of the residents most affected by the lights and traffic, she said, "I'll wait and see how it comes out. I won't make a judgment until I see what happens."

She added that night horse racing was a reality a few years ago and tonight's race won't bother the adjacent residents "because everybody stays up on weekends."

Mrs. Alfred Myles, 1808 N. Vail, Arlington Heights, said motorcyclists need a place to stage a race. "It's a good thing to have an organized race. It would get the racing off the roads and streets."

As an Arlington Heights resident who lives near the track, Mrs. Robert Sherman, 1616 Euclid Ave., said she objects to the noise and traffic. "We've had an extended racing season and we were finally getting used to the peace and quiet." She said additional traffic already is here because of the grand opening of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg. "This will just make it worse," she said.

Mrs. Donald Scheve, 2204 Jay Ln., Rolling Meadows, agreed the traffic and lights created by the race would be objectionable. "I don't approve of the lights or the program or the traffic. Something should be done."

Bessie Bensen of Arlington Heights suggested the village officials take steps to ban future events of this nature. "I don't feel good about the race. I just don't see any sense in it."

Mrs. Robert Nordstrom, 743 S. Warren, Palatine, pointed to "the pollution" created by the motorcycles. "I imagine it's going to be quite smoky. It sounds like it was just cooked up without asking the people. Before long it's going to be just like Chicago here."

Mrs. Edward J. Noonan, 16 E. Forest Ln., Palatine, pointed to the bright lights and traffic as undesirable effects of tonight's event. "I feel sorry for the people who live in the immediate area. I oppose all night racing."

A Rolling Meadows resident, Mrs. Edward Vesely, 3505 Mallard Ct., said "I'm no motorcycle fan but I don't think the race should be banned. If they have a place to ride it's fine. It keeps them off the streets."

Mrs. Charles Rohde, 3800 Holly Ln., Rolling Meadows said she sympathizes with the people who live near the track because of the lights and noise during the race. "I'm not directly affected, but I feel it is a shame in the history of Arlington Park Race Track and the sport of kings that we have this come down."

'Palatine Special' Will Greet New Train Station

Palatine will not only be blessed with a new train station when it opens tomorrow, it will also have its own train.

The Palatine Special, the regularly scheduled 10:28 a.m. inbound train, will pull into the new downtown transportation center and depot draped with a banner for the occasion. The "Special" will be the first Chicago and North Western Railway train to make use of the new facility.

The train's arrival will conclude a ceremony beginning at 10 a.m. on the platform to mark the grand opening of the station, and several stores in the center shopping area. Village crews will have the station decorated for the occasion.

Palatine Mayor Jack Moodie will read a proclamation setting tomorrow as Transportation Day, citing the cooperation of the village, railroad officials and developers of the center for getting the depot constructed.

Village officials will also hang a new Palatine sign at the station.

The banner proclaiming the 10:28 train as the "Palatine Special" will remain on the front of the train as it winds through the Northwest suburbs until it reaches its Chicago destination.

Two of the seven stores in the shopping area of the transportation center will also open with the depot, according to Lew Draper, center developer. Elegance Cleaners and Baker's Card and Gift Shop will open tomorrow, as well as the drive-in facility of the Palatine National Bank on the corner of Smith and Colfax.

The Palatine House Restaurant, operated by the same owners of Arlington Heights Dunton House, is scheduled to open in three weeks, Draper said. Marie's Dress Shop will open Nov. 15 and a barber shop, owned by George Lill, will open in two weeks.

Draper said he is still seeking leases for a liquor store and small food store.

Work first began on the depot last July at an estimated cost of $30,000. The entire transportation center is valued at $1.7 million. The center's opening went through several postponements before tomorrow's grand opening was finally set up.

More than 500 additional parking spaces will be created with the opening. A large commuter parking lot south of the tracks will open tomorrow for permit use. Another lot north of tracks will open later this month with long and short term metered parking.

The shopping center and depot represent Phase One of the total project. Phase Two proposes a four-story building next to the depot, with a lower level used for buses and taxis and the top of the building as a possible heliport.

Chamber Seeks Oldest Resident

Palatine's oldest old-timer is being sought by the Palatine Chamber of Commerce.

As part of a brochure being compiled to describe and advertise the town, the Chamber of Commerce would like to include a section on the person who has lived in Palatine the longest.

Because the brochure is tentatively scheduled to be issued Nov. 1, the chamber would like to locate the oldest resident as quickly as possible. Anyone having information that could help identify this resident should contact the chamber office at 358-3327.

MacArthur High Nearly Complete

Construction of the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School addition is expected to be completed by Dec. 31, 1971.

Architect Ross De Young told the school board Wednesday "We are going to give it a big push. We should have everything under one roof by the end of the month."

The first area to be completed will be four classrooms on the south end of addition. They include the band room, the chorus room, the physical education room and a science laboratory. However these rooms will not be used until the heating system in the addition is ready for operation.

Until the new classrooms are available, the district is using a contingency plan at the junior high school, located at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads. The construction area is sealed off to prevent students from wandering into hazardous areas. Room assignments have been switched, using areas such as the cafeteria and the study hall as temporary classrooms.

The project includes construction of a new gymnasium, a theater and four new classrooms. The former gymnasium is being converted into a library with a second floor of classrooms.

According to school officials, the construction was not completed by the opening of school, as originally planned, because corrections had to be made in architect's plans. The board has approved a series of revisions in the plans during the past months. The firm that made the errors, Architectural Management, Inc., was fired by the board earlier in the summer. The firm of Healy Moore and Associates was hired to complete the project.

GIANT WOODEN BEAMS will radiate from the altar area of the new sanctuary at Trinity United Methodist Church, 605 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect. The construction project, costing about

$375,000, is expected to be completed by Feb. 1. New facilities include the sanctuary and surrounding offices as well as a separate office wing. To congregation includes about 1,000 members from Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

Law Creating Mental Health Panel May Come Sept. 21

Final passage of an ordinance creating a community service and mental health commission (CSMH) may come Sept. 21 when the village board is scheduled to vote on the matter.

However, at least one trustee has voiced concern that CSMH may be too broad in scope and therefore ineffective. At Tuesday night's village board meeting, Trustee Donald B. Furst said the commission "seems very broad. We may be biting off more than we can chew."

The ordinance was given a first reading Tuesday. "Where will we find people with interest to serve on the 11-man commission," Furst asked the board. "We have the Community Action Plan (CAP) which shows need of interest. Where are these interested people now when we already have a program in operation? It seems we will be creating a commission where we'll end up with the same problems as today but on a much broader scale."

TRUSTEE KENNETH V. Scholten, who drew up the ordinance which would create CSMH and who had the original idea for the commission, countered by saying, "Right now we don't know what the needs of the community are. I felt a board or commission could investigate areas such as mental health facilities for us."

Scholten sees the commission, which in effect would replace the present youth commission, as a research committee to be used by the village board.

Furst said he read the proposal as saying the "people involved will have to be professionally trained." "I feel this proposed ordinance is not definite enough," he said. "I look on this as the creation of a professional commission."

Trustee Richard H. Monroe disagreed. He said he felt membership on the proposed commission should not be defined in the ordinance.

"I THINK IT is the wrong approach to set up certain things, like drug abuse, to be attacked by the commission," he said. "Leave it be fairly broad. Let people bring up problems the commission should look at. We won't know what these will be until the commission studies these things."

The new commission is designed to correlate existing programs, such as the youth commission and CAP, and eliminate overlap. It also is designed to allow investigation of problems now not touched on by the village board or any of its commissions.

The executive board of CAP has come out in favor of the new commission. Under the present plans two of CAP's programs, the Pump House Hotline and the ICE House counseling center, will go under the commission's administration.

The move to put the programs under the commission's control came in response to the financial and organizational difficulties CAP had been encountering of late.

School-Park Purchase 'Economical'

The purchase of two School Dist. 57 properties by the Mount Prospect Park District appears to be "economically feasible," according to Robert Jackson, president of the park district board.

Jackson said yesterday the park board will decide at its meeting Monday whether it plans to continue its attempts to buy the sites.

The two properties in question are the 11-acre East or Sunrise Park site at Golf and Mount Prospect roads and an 8-acre tract along Rand Road that is part of the Gregory School site.

Earlier this summer the school district indicated it wanted to sell the East Park site. The park district indicated it wanted not only the East Park site, but also part of the Gregory site.

Jackson said yesterday that after meeting with Dist. 57 School Supt. Eric Sahlberg, he concluded the East Park site would be worth from $150,000 to $180,000. The Gregory site would be worth about $16,000 an acre, or a total of about $132,000. The Gregory estimate is based on the price the school district paid for the site 12 years ago.

A PLAN UNDER which the park district would pay a total of about $330,000 for the two sites over a 10-year period would be feasible, Jackson said.

He pointed out the park district might be able to speed the payments if it were

Police Department Bicycle Auction Set

The annual Mount Prospect Police Department bicycle auction will be held at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the public works garage, 11 S. Pine St.

The bikes to be auctioned, about 50, have been found or turned in to the police since last November, the time of the last auction. Proceeds from the auction go to the police pension fund.

to receive a Department of Housing and Urban Development grant, something the district is preparing to apply for. However, he cautioned that it would take more than a year to get any HUD money.

Sahlberg, in reporting to the school board Tuesday on the results of his meeting with Jackson, said the plan calling for 10-year payments "was not very enticing."

Some board members indicated they felt the park district's tentative estimate of the worth of the Gregory site was too low. One estimate put the value of the land at over $200,000. Sahlberg pointed out the land might be worth $50,000 to $80,000 an acre when considering the potential (commercial) zoning. The land is not now zoned for business, however.

Currently the park district is seeking appraisals on both sides. Jackson emphasized the two current estimates are only tentative.

'Cat Band To Play For Bears, N.U.

Two performances are on the agenda for the Wheeling High School "Wildcat" marching band this weekend.

Tomorrow, the band will perform during the half-time period of the Northwestern University-University of Michigan football game, to be held at Dwyer Stadium in Evanston. It will be the second year in a row that the band will play at a Northwestern University football game.

Sunday the Wheeling High School Band will play during the pre-game and half-time period of the Chicago Bears-Denver Broncos football game at Soldier Field in Chicago.

During the pre-game show the band will participate in the rededication ceremonies for the newly-remodeled Soldier Field. Color guards from the U.S. Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force and Coast Guard will assist in the rededication ceremonies.

THE BAND'S half-time show will be entitled "War and Peace," and will be dedicated to those who have served in the armed services.

The band will play a variety of patriotic tunes, as well as the theme from the motion picture, "Patton," "My Kind of Town," "Chicago," and "Bear Down, Chicago Bears."

The performance Sunday will be the sixth time the Wildcat band has played during a Chicago Bears game. No other area high school band has been invited so many times to play at a Bears football game, according to Wildcat band director Irwin Brick.

The marching band includes 144 pieces, as well as a 24-member color guard and flag corps.

The new assistant band director at Wheeling High School this year is Jack Williamson. Williamson has come to Wheeling High from Maine East High School in Park Ridge, where he was assistant band director. Prior to that, Williamson taught music for six years in Lockport. He received degrees from DePaul University and Vander Cook College in Chicago.

The Wheeling High School band was named championship high school band of the Minneapolis Aquatennial in 1965 and grand champion of the aquatennial in 1968.

In 1968 the band was voted parade champion at the Virginia Beach Music Festival in Virginia Beach, Va. The band has also greeted the U. S. astronauts from Apollo missions 12 and 14 when they arrived in Chicago. Most recently the Wheeling High School band won the outstanding parade band trophy at the 1971 Virginia Beach Music Festival.

Charge 2 With Theft

Two persons were arrested on shoplifting charges in separate incidents last weekend at the Randhurst Shopping Center.

Thomas A. Priehs, 18, of 17 Wing, Arlington Heights, was arrested Saturday on a complaint signed by an official at Wieboldts Department Store. He was charged with the attempted theft of clothing worth $7. He will appear in court Sept. 23.

In a second incident, William Metcalf Jr., 20, of 349 Cedar Ln. in Elk Grove Village, was arrested on a complaint signed by an official at the Montgomery Ward and Co. department store. He is charged with attempting to steal sporting clothes and equipment worth a total of about $51. Like Priehs, he will appear in court Sept. 23.

Both Priehs and Metcalf were released on $100 bond.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon has ruled out any extension of his wage-price freeze past Nov. 12, but promised a long-range program of economic stabilization afterward to make sure "America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation." He also announced he would propose major, unspecified tax reforms next year to help create 20 million new jobs in the coming decade and to meet worldwide economic challenges to America's postwar supremacy.

The Army rested its case against Capt. Ernest L. Medina after calling a lie detector expert in the Ft. McPherson, Ga., court marshal, who testified that Medina told him he had lost control of his troops at My Lai.

Hurricane Fern has lost power in a rush toward the Texas coast but gales, rain and high tides at its fringes struck ashore. Tornadoes and flash flooding hit during the night.

The War

South Vietnamese forces have struck the first Communist resistance in their five-day-old push into the country's jungle-steamy northeastern corner. Machine gunners forced down a U.S. helicopter carrying South Vietnamese infantry.

The State

Illinois Secretary of State John Lewis, in an angry statement, has defended but has not explained, his daughter's ownership of stock in a land trust which owns Cahokia Downs Race track. He also threatened to "clean the plow" of a reporter who investigated and revealed the matter. Paul Powell and other persons with state government ties also held stock in the trust.

The California Supreme Court decision outlawing the real estate and personal property tax as a criterion for educational support "clearly should be applicable to the Illinois situation," Lt. Gov. Paul Simon told the Springfield chapter of the American Business Club.

The Illinois Board of Regents, governing body for Illinois State University, Normal, and Sangamon State University, Springfield, has approved a $29.50 per semester tuition increase and a 4.1 per cent faculty and administrative pay hike.

The World

A British army explosives expert was killed when he triggered a booby trap bomb in Belfast, Northern Ireland. In London, Prime Minister Edward Heath summoned the British Parliament into special session later this month to deal with the province's troubles.

Ambassador William J. Porter took over as chief U.S. negotiator at Vietnam peace talks in Paris and proposed that the four sides engage in secret negotiations. The Communists rejected the idea as they had two months earlier.

Playing a bit part as a bar maid in "Alfie" and serving as "dresser" for actor David McCallum were two of the interesting experiences Donna Hutchings had this summer. She has just completed an eight-week apprenticeship at Pheasant Run Theatre. Last summer this young actress was also an apprentice — with the Little Theatre on the Square in Sullivan, Ill. Although apprentices do not receive salary, they do get credit toward an actor's equity card.

Donna worked backstage at Pheasant Run during "Play It Again, Sam," starring Eric James and Bob Belaban, and "Alfie," with David McCallum. As his "dresser," she assisted with quick costume changes. An especially valuable phase of her summer's work were the "Saturday scenes," prepared and presented by the theatre's five apprentices. Producer Carl Stohn, Jr., viewed the scenes, then offered criticism.

"Really nice" is the way Donna describes David McCallum. She found him to be quiet, serious, and very intelligent. When someone excitedly pointed him out offstage as the show's star, he commented, "I'm not a star — I'm an actor."

Soon Donna will return to classes at Northwestern University, where she is a junior theater major. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Hutchings, 1002 W. Gregory St.

ARE YOU interested in "the hobby of kings and the king of hobbies" — stamp collecting? If so, the fledgling Northwest Junior Stamp Club is interested in you. It now has five members and "is trying to grow," according to Carl Uth, club leader.

On Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. the group will hold a garage and toy sale at 510 Prospect Manor. Proceeds will go to buy stamps. Any youngster at least 12 years old is welcome to join Jim Dattilo, Larry Johnson, Dan Page, Mike Schmaus, and Charles Uth as club members.

The young philatelists meet twice a month at 510 Prospect Manor. Anyone interested is invited to the next meeting at 7:15 p.m. Friday, Sept. 17. For information call Carl Uth at 255-8333.

This is School Supply Scramble Week — in honor of parents of school age children. The game begins when each child arrives home bearing a long list of "needed supplies." At this point, the scramble part begins, as parents scurry around collecting such items as "two red pencils SHARPENED PLEASE, a box of flat toothpicks, and pencil sharpener (closed so sharpenings don't fall)." One of this year's unusual "needs": "two babies full of pond water." (This was our sixth graders special shorthand for two baby bottles filled with water from Well-er Creek, needed for a forthcoming science project.)

A cast on one arm doesn't stop this fella.

School Discipline Called 'Lenient'

Parents interviewed by the School Community Council last spring believe by an overwhelming margin that discipline is too lenient in Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59.

Parents also indicated disapproval of the district's lunch program, playgrounds, transition between fifth and sixth grades, and experimental educational programs, in interviews conducted by council members.

However, the same parents indicated strong approval of the district's principals, teachers, reputation, learning centers, and sex education program.

A report on the survey, includes recommendations that the district meet criticisms by improving discipline, providing hot lunch facilities and better playground facilities, working to ease the transition between elementary and junior high schools and by retaining traditional educational programs rather than innovations.

School Community Council, an organization of parents, conducted the survey last spring at the request of the board.

Volunteers from the council conducted unstructured interviews with five families from each of the district's 20 schools and recorded their favorable and unfavorable responses to various school activities.

From the interviews, the interviewers recorded 625 separate responses, of which 363, or 58 per cent, were favorable.

HOWEVER, OF the 64 persons who mentioned discipline, 49, or more than 75 per cent, said district schools were too lenient.

The district has begun action on two of the areas of concern mentioned by parents. Work has been proceeding this summer on improving playgrounds and new playground equipment will be installed sometime this year.

In addition, a restructured sixth grade will be instituted at Dempster Junior High School this fall in an effort to ease the transition between fifth and sixth grades.

Other areas coming in for praise by parents interviewed were communications, community education, summer school, administration, grading, and the music, health and safety programs.

Those interviewed also indicated, by smaller margins, discontent with the district's drug program, bus transportation, homework and the parent-teacher conference policy.

To counteract these complaints, council members recommended that drug programs be expanded, more lenient boundaries be established, punitive homework be eliminated and other homework be kept to a minimum and planned conferences be held between parents and teachers.

Board Disappointed With Survey

Members of the Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 expressed disappointment Tuesday night with the outcome of a survey of 100 families in the district.

The survey, conducted by the School Community Council, showed that the overwhelming majority of those interviewed felt discipline in the district schools was too lenient.

Other areas of concern included the district's lunch program, playground facilities, transition between fifth and sixth grades and experimental educational programs.

The parents interviewed praised, among other things, principals, teachers, and the district's music, learning center and sex education programs.

The survey, conducted by 20 persons operating in teams of two, was conducted by "just sitting and listening" to the remarks of the parents, selected at random from the 20 school attendance areas,

Nita Stamm, the council's school board representative, said.

AFTER RECEIVING the survey, board member Sharrie Hildebrandt said, "It disappoints me that so few of the points were really about our educational goals. Most of these things are matters of convenience to parents."

Board Pres. Harold Harvey thanked the council for conducting the survey for the board and said "It is up to us to do something about it."

In order to begin work to find out more about the concerns, the board members agreed to meet informally with the interviewers Monday night to discuss the interviews.

The survey, Supt. James Erviti told the board, is only a starting point.

"You have too little data here to decide anything. The people who have the data are the members of the committee who did the survey. When you find out more, if you see a topic you think is worthy of study, it would have to be studied."

Kopp Pool Swimmers Victors In Meet

The Kopp Pool swimmers triumphed over their rivals from two other swimming pools in the Mount Prospect Park District at the district's third annual novice swim meet recently at Lions Pool.

In winning the meet, Kopp's swimmers snapped a two-year winning streak held by Lions. Final point total showed Kopp with 162, Lions with 144 and Meadows with 124.

The meet was open to park district children 16 and under who had not previously won a competitive swimming award in their age group. In all, 248 youngsters from the three pools competed in the event.

AT THE OUTSET Kopp led by 12 points after winning five of the ten 100-yard freestyle races. At one point, the Meadows swimmers led, but Kopp overcame them.

Most of the children participating were students in the park district's swimming classes conducted this summer at the three pools.

Gil Fennie, park district aquatics director, lauded Mark Durlache, Mike Burrell and Ed Fitzsimons, the coaching staff for the Kopp team. Fennie pointed out the Kopp Pool has the smallest residential area of the three pools from which to draw potential team members.

The results of the events follow. In the relays, Kopp won in the 15 and 16-year-old girls' division, the 13 and 14-year-old girls' division, the 11 and 12-year-old girls' division, the 9 and 10-year-old boys' division and the 8-and-under girls' division.

Lions relay swimmers won in the 15 and 16-year-old boys' division, 9 and 10-year-old girls' division and the 8-and-under boys' division. Meadows won relays in the 13 and 14-year-old boys' division and the 11 and 12-year-old boys' division.

WINNERS IN individual events are as follows:

—25-yard freestyle for youths 16 and over: girls' winner, Jackie Wanland of Meadows; boys' winner, Bob Arko of Lions and Stan Deloid of Meadows (tied).

—25-yard freestyle for youths 15-years-old: girls' winner, Peggy Russo, Meadows; boys', Joel Oliver, Lions.

—24-yard freestyle, for 14-year-olds: girls', Erin Woolfitt, Kopp; boys', Bob Fitzpatrick, Kopp.

Kindergarten Means Tears, Wide Eyes

by WANDALYN RICE

The first day of kindergarten means many things.

It means wide eyes, some verging on tears, that follow the teacher around as she explains, "We'll raise our hands and that will do our talking for us today."

It means learning funny songs about wiggling your fingers, toes and nose until you have no wiggles left at all.

It means the sound of dozens of feet practicing a march around the room.

And, for one little boy at Salt Creek School, it meant missing the march while he was washing his hands because he was afraid they were dirty.

For the children in Zoe Anne Recknagle's class and for more than 1,000 other children in Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59, the first day of kindergarten meant the beginning of an education that for most will continue until they are more than three times as old as they were Wednesday.

THEY HAD all been in the school before with their mothers and arrived armed with their favorite toys for Show-and-Tell.

Some of them laughed and interrupted when the teacher talked. Some were shy — a little bit afraid.

One boy, his hair cropped into a short crew-cut, was happiest just wandering around the room alone, looking at everything. The teacher put her arm around him and had him sit by her. He smiled because the seat was specially for him.

For Carl, the wait for his turn at Show-and-Tell was agonizing. He had acorns he had collected on his vacation.

But when he finally got his turn he forgot what they were and called them eggshells. Suddenly shy, he told the teacher, "I hafta sit down."

The room was comfortable enough at first, but the day promised to be hot and sticky and the room got warmer and warmer for those who wore their new fall clothes for the first day of school.

"When can we go home?" the little girl with pigtails asked. It was only 10 a.m. and there was an hour and a half left — an eternity if you're five years old.

"But we have lots of things to do and it will go fast," the teacher assured her. And it did.

Dover Inn Nearer Liquor License

The Dover Inn, 1701 Algonquin Rd., near Busse Road, is one step closer to acquiring a liquor license. At Tuesday night's board meeting, the rules were waived at the request of finance committee chairman Trustee Donald B. Furst, and an ordinance creating the additional liquor license had its first reading.

The new restaurant's liquor license request had not been on the meeting's agenda. Trustee Daniel J. Ahern expressed surprise at the request for waiver of the rules.

The Dover Inn is seeking a class B license which permits the holder to serve liquor at tables and a bar. There are presently seven such licenses in Mount Prospect.

Ahern said, "I feel we shouldn't discuss this tonight," pointing out that residents from Lake Briarwood present at the last discussion had voiced some reservations about granting the license. He also said he felt a liquor license policy should come first before the board began discussing liquor license requests one at a time.

FURST COUNTERED by saying the matter had been discussed by the board and there was "no indication in the minutes that the Briarwood people wanted to be notified if this was brought up again."

Ahern has previously failed to get the board to act on establishing a liquor license policy. Once again Tuesday night, a motion by Ahern that the board do so failed for lack of a second.

A motion that the committee's recommendation (that the license for Dover Inn be created) was approved with V. Scholten seconding the motion. Ahern casting the only dissenting vote. A second reading of the ordinance will be Sept. 21, at the next regular board meeting.

Trustee George B. Anderson said he was voting for the motion because "this is a unique area." He cited the large amount of parking, more, than required, and the separate area for bar services which the restaurant will have as a reason for calling it "unique."

AHERN POINTED out that one-fourth of the building was set up as a lounge area, "presumably to sell alcohol, on the assumption this board's lack of policy (on liquor licenses) can be read like a crystal ball. I don't think we need any more liquor licenses."

Although he agreed the board lacked a clear policy, Trustee Richard H. Monroe was in favor of creating a license for Dover Inn. "I think the policy we've had in the past is that if you're in need of money, or if you're a nice guy and we like you or if you have never been raided or anything, we will give you a license. I think it is foolish to tell a guy to go ahead and operate for a couple of years and show us you can run a business. Then we might give you something extra (a liquor license)."

He said if it looked like a good establishment, why not give the liquor license from the outset.

The finance committee had three other liquor license requests pending at the time the Dover Inn request was pulled from committee. The Dover Inn request was given to the finance committee May 18, 1971.

The other three requests with the dates of their being given to the finance committee are: Evans Restaurant license change, Dec. 1, 1970; Carl's Pizza for a liquor license, March 16, 1971; and National Food Store for a liquor license, July 6, 1971.

Some seven weeks ago the Carl's Pizza request was discussed by the village board and sent back into committee. No final action has been taken on this request.

Village Sues Officials In Move To Halt Remap

Secretary of State John W. Lewis, Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, and the Illinois State Electoral Board have all been named as defendants in a suit the Village of Arlington Heights filed in federal court Wednesday in an effort to invalidate a new state legislative redistricting map.

The suit, filed in the name of all village board members and John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights, cites the defendants as being party to a redistricting map which splits the village into four "odd-shaped and gerrymandered districts."

The suit charges the new map "totally ignored" the federal and state constitutional principle of "one-man, one-vote."

Before the map was completed by an eight-member reapportionment committee last month, the village was uniformly within the third district, giving Arlington Heights a strong suburban voice in the General Assembly, the suit said.

The new districting plan, however, was created "to effectively diminish the power of the citizens of Arlington Heights to elect representatives of their choice in the General Assembly," the suit claims.

THE SUIT ALSO charges the reapportionment committee was improperly appointed and lacked representation of the independent voter. The committee, the suit states, was composed entirely of members of the Democratic and Republican parties.

Lewis was named in the suit because he received the map from the committee and published it, according to the copy of the suit filed in the U.S. District Court.

The electoral board was cited for their role in certifying the names of all candidates for the state legislature before those names appear on the primary ballot and for the committee's other "diverse duties" in connection with state representatives and senators.

Scott became party to the suit for initiating the redistricting plan and for failing to challenge its validity in the Illinois Supreme Court. He is also a member of the electoral board.

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel said yesterday the next step in the legal proceedings is for the three defendants to file a response to the charges. He did not indicate how soon this will be.

UNDER THE PREVIOUS apportionment map, Arlington Heights, was wholly within the 3rd Legislative District, which took in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg Townships.

Representing the 3rd district were Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights; Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; Rep. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect; and Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington.

Under the new plan, Arlington Heights is in the 1st, 3rd, 4th and 32nd districts.

The 32nd District is that part of Arlington Heights within Lake County.

The 1st district is the portion of Arlington Heights south of the Lake County line and north of Palatine Road.

The 4th district is bounded by Gregory to Northwest Highway, to Douglas, to Hawthorne, to Dunton, to Thomas, to Arlington Heights Road to Palatine Road.

The 3rd district takes in all other parts of Arlington Heights.

Under the new map, Graham no longer represents Arlington Heights. Schlickman is in the 4th district and Chapman and Regner are in the 3rd district.

Dunne Shrugs Off Proposal For Lincoln County

Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne gave the proposal for a new county in the Northwest suburbs only a shrug of his shoulders before a meeting Tuesday night of the Palatine Township Democratic Organization.

"What proposals?" he asked when questioned about his reaction to the proposed Lincoln County. "I thought they only had the name."

The proposal for Lincoln County calls for secession of six Northwest suburban townships from Cook County and the formation of a new county. Palatine trustees Merwin Soper and Wendell Jones, originators of the idea, said the new county would be among the five largest counties in the state.

DUNNE ALSO told the Democratic workers that voter participation must increase in the suburbs if the Democratic party is to gain more electoral strength.

"This increased participation must come primarily from the young voters," he said. "And in asking them to participate, I always remind them if they don't, government will be what other people want it to be."

Rule Death Due To Natural Cause

The death of a 19-year-old Des Plaines man last week, originally thought to have been the result of an overdose of heroin, was classified Wednesday as a result of natural causes.

A spokesman at the Cook County Coroner's office said Kevin R. Schneider, 19, of 2074 Locust St., Des Plaines, died from congestive heart failure and not an overdose of heroin.

Schneider was found unconscious on the floor of his bedroom Aug. 28 by his father, Henry.

He was pronounced dead at 10:45 a.m., at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

Police said they found a spoon, hypodermic needle case and three packages of white powder, believed to be heroin, under the mattress of the youth's bed. Needle marks reportedly were found on Schneider's right arm, stomach and toes.

The spokesman at the county morgue, Jerry Shea, said a pathologist's report indicated only a small amount of narcotics was found in the organs examined according to Des Plaines police.

Resolution Notes Death Of Busse

A resolution noting the death of Edwin L. Busse, for 22 years a village clerk and treasurer for Mount Prospect, was passed by the village board at Tuesday's regular board meeting.

Busse also was a volunteer fireman for 43 years in the village.

A copy of the resolution is to be presented to the Busse family.

The board also approved the Prospect Bike Shop's request for resubdivision. The request was made necessary by the subdivision ordinance which went into effect after the shop had been built. A number of smaller lots will now be consolidated into one lot.

The board is requiring the owner of the shop to share in the cost of improving the public alley behind the lot, which is at 506 E. Northwest Hwy. Mayor Robert D. Teichert said such a requirement is the normal procedure for the board when properties along Northwest Highway come in for resubdivision.

A second reading of the revised storm sewer and detention ordinance prepared by Trustee George B. Anderson was postponed to the next regular board meeting. The board wants to check specifications with the requirements of the Metropolitan Sanitary District before enacting the ordinance.

School-Park Purchase Called 'Economical'

The purchase of two School Dist. 57 properties by the Mount Prospect Park District appears to be "economically feasible," according to Robert Jackson, president of the park district board.

Jackson said yesterday the park board will decide at its meeting Monday whether it plans to continue its attempts to buy the sites.

The two properties in question are the 11-acre East or Sunrise Park site at Golf and Mount Prospect roads and an 8-acre tract along Rand Road that is part of the Gregory School site.

Earlier this summer the school district indicated it wanted to sell the East Park site. The park district indicated it wanted not only the East Park site, but also part of the Gregory site.

Jackson said yesterday that after meeting with Dist. 57 School Supt. Eric Sahlberg, he concluded the East Park site would be worth from $150,000 to $180,000. The Gregory site would be worth about $18,000 an acre, or a total of about $132,000. The Gregory estimate is based on the price the school district paid for the site 12 years ago.

A PLAN UNDER which the park district would pay a total of about $330,000 for the two sites over a 10-year period would be feasible, Jackson said.

He pointed out the park district might be able to speed the payments if it were to receive a Department of Housing and Urban Development grant, something the district is preparing to apply for. However, he cautioned that it would take more than a year to get any HUD money.

Sahlberg, in reporting to the school board Tuesday on the results of his meeting with Jackson, said the plan calling for 10-year payments "was not very enticing."

Some board members indicated they felt the park district's tentative estimate of the worth of the Gregory site was too low. One estimate put the value of the land at over $200,000. Sahlberg pointed out the land might be worth $80,000 to $80,000 an acre when considering the potential (commercial) zoning. The land is not now zoned for business, however.

Currently the park district is seeking appraisals on both sides. Jackson emphasized the two current estimates are only tentative.

The school district at first considered seeking its own appraisals Tuesday, but after learning they would cost several thousand dollars, decided instead to compute the current value of the sites based on an annual increase of worth of about 6 per cent.

Village To Let New Bids For Lincoln Street

The Village of Mount Prospect has had to readvertise for bids for the improvement of Lincoln Street between Can-Dota and See-Gwan avenues. The new bids will be opened at 10 a.m. Sept. 16 in the village manager's office.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppey yesterday said Mayor Robert D. Teichert will then call a special board meeting to award a contract.

On Aug. 10, the village board had approved setting aside an additional $22,000 in Motor Fuel Tax (MFT) funds for the improvement. This money was to go with $54,000 in MFT funds which became available when the low bid for the village's 1971 MFT resurfacing project came in under the village engineering department's project cost estimate. The major savings came through a reduction in the price of asphalt.

The state refused to go along with the additional improvement, however. "It was the feeling of the Illinois Division of Highways this additional project put us too much over the original estimate," Eppey told the village board at Tuesday's board meeting. The additional $22,000 approved brought the project cost 37 per cent over the original estimate for the resurfacing project.

THE CURRENT PROJECT provides for the improvement and resurfacing of 13 portions of village streets. The proposed Lincoln Street improvement lies along the south side of Lincoln Junior High School. The street will be widened to 36 feet along the two-block stretch.

Eppey sought approval for a readvertising of the Lincoln Street improvement as a separate project at Tuesday's board meeting. He said the state told him to handle it this way. Such a motion was approved by the board, 4-2, with Trustees George B. Anderson and Donald B. Furst voting against the readvertising.

Under current prices the work on Lincoln Street will cost about $76,000, Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann said. He said it would normally cost about $100,000. The village hopes to get the same type of low bid the second time around as the rest of the resurfacing project received earlier.

The engineering department has estimated it would cost about $800,000 to improve all of Lincoln Street. Teichert has indicated it is best to approach the improvements on a piecemeal basis.

The original decision to improve Lincoln Street was passed in a 1958 board resolution.

GIANT WOODEN BEAMS will radiate from the altar area of the new sanctuary at Trinity United Methodist Church, 605 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect. The construction project, costing about

$375,000, is expected to be completed by Feb. 1. New facilities include the sanctuary and surrounding offices as well as a separate office wing. To congregation includes about 1,000 members from Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

Law Creating Health Panel OK Seen

Final passage of an ordinance creating a community service and mental health commission (CSMH) may come Sept. 21 when the village board is scheduled to vote on the matter.

However, at least one trustee has voiced concern that CSMH may be too broad in scope and therefore ineffective. At Tuesday night's village board meeting, Trustee Donald B. Furst said the commission "seems very broad. We may be biting off more than we can chew."

The ordinance was given a first reading Tuesday.

"Where will we find people with interest to serve on the 11-man commission," Furst asked the board. "We have the Community Action Plan (CAP) which shows need of interest. Where are these interested people now when we already have a program in operation? It seems we will be creating a commission where we'll end up with the same problems as today but on a much broader scale."

TRUSTEE KENNETH V. Scholten, who drew up the ordinance which would create CSMH and who had the original idea for the commission, countered by saying, "Right now we don't know what the needs of the community are. I felt a board or commission could investigate areas such as mental health facilities for us."

Scholten sees the commission, which in effect would replace the present youth commission, as a research committee to be used by the village board.

Furst said he read the proposal as saying the "people involved will have to be professionally trained." "I feel this proposed ordinance is not definite enough," he said. "I look on this as the creation of a professional commission."

Trustee Richard H. Monroe disagreed. He said he felt membership on the proposed commission should not be defined in the ordinance.

"I THINK IT is the wrong approach to set up certain things, like drug abuse, to be attacked by the commission," he said. "Leave it be fairly broad. Let people bring up problems the commission should look at. We won't know what these will be until the commission studies these things."

The new commission is designed to correlate existing programs, such as the youth commission and CAP, and eliminate overlap. It also is designed to allow investigation of problems now not touched on by the village board or any of its commissions.

The executive board of CAP has come out in favor of the new commission. Under the present plans two of CAP's programs, the Pump House Hotline and the ICE House counseling center, will go under the commission's administration.

The move to put the programs under the commission's control came in response to the financial and organizational difficulties CAP had been encountering of late.

New Rent Contract For Maryville Being Studied

A new contract for the rental by River Trails School Dist. 26 of the River Road School, at Maryville Academy, is currently being studied by district and Maryville officials.

Late last month, representatives from Dist. 26 and Maryville decided to draw up a new contract that will be in effect only until the national wage-price freeze ends. Another contract may be negotiated later to cover the remainder of the school year.

The new contract, written by the Dist. 26 attorney, follows a proposal made by the Rev. John Smith, superintendent at Maryville. It provides for carrying over last year's rent of $5,000 and transferring the responsibility of general maintenance and repair to the school district.

At a meeting Tuesday, the Dist. 26 School Board directed Supt. Tom Warden to cut back the duration of the lease from one year.

Board Pres. Harold Haney said, "We may consider alternatives to the Maryville site before accepting expensive repairs."

"We can't bring the River Road School up to the requirements of the Illinois School Code," added Warden. "If the lease is accepted, we should set our priorities and then accept bids for the repairs."

WARDEN SAID the district's alternatives include "leaving the students at River Road School, moving the students to portable classrooms, or moving the students to other district schools, which will disrupt our scheduling."

Currently about 125 Maryville students are attending district schools outside of the academy, while 150 are attending the River Road School at Maryville. The district hopes to have enough classroom space eventually to accommodate all of the Maryville children at outside district schools. Warden said he plans to continue the district's past efforts to secure state funds to pay for additional classrooms.

A new contract was proposed after Father Smith raised the rent for the River Road School from $5,000 to $17,000. After meeting with district officials, the rent was lowered to $14,500, which included $2,500 for repairs.

Father Smith said Maryville cannot pay the cost of maintaining the school with $5,000. He estimated general maintenance and utilities cost about $12,000 annually. Repairs proposed for the coming year could total $21,000.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon has ruled out any extension of his wage-price freeze past Nov. 12, but promised a long-range program of economic stabilization afterward to make sure "America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation." He also announced he would propose major, unspecified tax reforms next year to help create 20 million new jobs in the coming decade and to meet worldwide economic challenges to America's postwar supremacy.

The Army rested its case against Capt. Ernest L. Medina after calling a lie detector expert in the Ft. McPherson, Ga., court marshal, who testified that Medina told him he had lost control of his troops at My Lai.

Hurricane Fern has lost power in a rush toward the Texas coast but gales, rain and high tides at its fringes struck ashore. Tornadoes and flash flooding hit during the night.

The War

South Vietnamese forces have struck the first Communist resistance in their five-day-old push into the country's jungle-steamy northeastern corner. Machine gunners forced down a U.S. helicopter carrying South Vietnamese infantry.

The State

Illinois Secretary of State John Lewis, in an angry statement, has defended but has not explained, his daughter's ownership of stock in a land trust which owns Cahokia Downs Race track. He also threatened to "clean the plow" of a reporter who investigated and revealed the matter. Paul Powell and other persons with state government ties also held stock in the trust.

The California Supreme Court decision outlawing the real estate and personal property tax as a criterion for educational support "clearly should be applicable to the Illinois situation," Lt. Gov. Paul Simon told the Springfield chapter of the American Business Club.

The Illinois Board of Regents, governing body for Illinois State University, Normal, and Sangamon State University, Springfield, has approved a $29.50 per semester tuition increase and a 4.1 per cent faculty and administrative pay hike.

The World

A British army explosives expert was killed when he triggered a booby trap bomb in Belfast, Northern Ireland. In London, Prime Minister Edward Heath summoned the British Parliament into special session later this month to deal with the province's troubles.

Ambassador William J. Porter took over as chief U.S. negotiator at Vietnam peace talks in Paris and proposed that the four sides engage in secret negotiations. The Communists rejected the idea as they had two months earlier.

Marilyn Hallman

Playing a bit part as a bar maid in "Alfie" and serving as "dresser" for actor David McCallum were two of the interesting experiences Donna Hutchings had this summer. She has just completed an eight-week apprenticeship at Pheasant Run Theatre. Last summer this young actress was also an apprentice — with the Little Theatre on the Square in Sullivan, Ill. Although apprentices do not receive salary, they do get credit toward an actor's equity card.

Donna worked backstage at Pheasant Run during "Play It Again, Sam," starring Eric James and Bob Balaban, and "Alfie," with David McCallum. As his "dresser," she assisted with quick costume changes. An especially valuable phase of her summer's work were the "Saturday scenes," prepared and presented by the theatre's five apprentices. Producer Carl Stohn, Jr., viewed the scenes, then offered criticism.

"Really nice" is the way Donna describes David McCallum. She found him to be quiet, serious, and very intelligent. When someone excitedly pointed him out offstage as the show's star, he commented, "I'm not a star — I'm an actor."

Soon Donna will return to classes at Northwestern University, where she is a junior theater major. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Hutchings, 1002 W. Gregory St.

ARE YOU interested in "the hobby of kings and the king of hobbies" — stamp collecting? If so, the fledgling Northwest Junior Stamp Club is interested in you. It now has five members and "is trying to grow," according to Carl Uth, club leader.

On Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. the group will hold a garage and toy sale at 510 Prospect Manor. Proceeds will go to buy stamps. Any youngster at least 12 years old is welcome to join Jim Dattilo, Larry Johnson, Dan Page, Mike Schmaus, and Charles Uth as club members.

The young philatelists meet twice a month at 510 Prospect Manor. Anyone interested is invited to the next meeting at 7:15 p.m. Friday, Sept. 17. For information call Carl Uth at 255-8333.

This is School Supply Scramble Week — in honor of parents of school age children. The game begins when each child arrives home bearing a long list of "needed supplies." At this point, the scramble part begins, as parents scurry around collecting such items as "two red pencils SHARPENED PLEASE, a box of flat toothpicks, and pencil sharpener (closed so sharpenings don't fall)." One of this year's unusual "needs": "two babies full of pond water." (This was our sixth graders special shorthand for two baby bottles filled with water from Well-er Creek, needed for a forthcoming science project.)

School Discipline Called 'Lenient'

Parents interviewed by the School Community Council last spring believe by an overwhelming margin that discipline is too lenient in Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59.

Parents also indicated disapproval of the district's lunch program, playgrounds, transition between fifth and sixth grades, and experimental educational programs. In interviews conducted by council members.

However, the same parents indicated strong approval of the district's principals, teachers, reputation, learning centers, and sex education program.

A report on the survey, includes recommendations that the district meet criticisms by improving discipline, providing hot lunch facilities and better playground facilities, working to ease the transition between elementary and junior high schools and by retaining traditional educational programs rather than innovations.

School Community Council, an organization of parents, conducted the survey last spring at the request of the board.

Volunteers from the council conducted unstructured interviews with five families from each of the district's 20 schools and recorded their favorable and unfavorable responses to various school activities.

From the interviews, the interviewers recorded 625 separate responses, of which 363, or 58 per cent, were favorable.

HOWEVER, OF the 64 persons who mentioned discipline, 49, or more than 75 per cent, said district schools were too lenient.

The district has begun action on two of the areas of concern mentioned by parents. Work has been proceeding this summer on improving playgrounds and new playground equipment will be installed sometime this year.

In addition, a restructured sixth grade will be instituted at Dempster Junior High School this fall in an effort to ease the transition between fifth and sixth grades.

Other areas coming in for praise by parents interviewed were communications, community education, summer

Lincoln Jr. High PTA To Meet Thursday

A discussion session on "Exploring Parent Education" will be the theme of the new school year's first PTA meeting at Lincoln Junior High School in Mount Prospect. The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday at the school, 700 W. Lincoln St.

In addition to the discussion session, parents will also have an opportunity to meet the Lincoln faculty and the new PTA officers and board.

Kindergarten Means Tears, Wide Eyes

by WANDALYN RICE

The first day of kindergarten means many things.

It means wide eyes, some verging on tears, that follow the teacher around as she explains, "We'll raise our hands and that will do our talking for us today."

It means learning funny songs about wiggling your fingers, toes and nose until you have no wiggles left at all.

It means the sound of dozens of feet practicing a march around the room.

And, for one little boy at Salt Creek School, it meant missing the march while he was washing his hands because he was afraid they were dirty.

For the children in Zoe Anne Reck-nagle's class and for more than 1,000 other children in Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59, the first day of kindergarten meant the beginning of an education that for most will continue until they are more than three times as old as they were Wednesday.

THEY HAD all been in the school before with their mothers and arrived armed with their favorite toys for Show-and-Tell.

Some of them laughed and interrupted when the teacher talked. Some were shy — a little bit afraid.

One boy, his hair cropped into a short crew-cut, was happiest just wandering around the room alone, looking at everything. The teacher put her arm around him and had him sit by her. He smiled because the seat was specially for him.

For Carl, the wait for his turn at Show-and-Tell was agonizing. He had acorns he had collected on his vacation.

But when he finally got his turn he forgot what they were and called them eggshells. Suddenly shy, he told the teacher, "I hafta sit down."

The room was comfortable enough at first, but the day promised to be hot and sticky and the room got warmer and warmer for those who wore their new fall clothes for the first day of school.

"When can we go home?" the little girl with pigtails asked. It was only 10 a.m. and there was an hour and a half left — an eternity if you're five years old.

"But we have lots of things to do and it will go fast," the teacher assured her. And it did.

River Trails To Hold Preschool Play Signups

The River Trails Park District will hold registration Sept. 23 for its preschool play program.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. at the park district office, 303 Lee St. in Prospect Heights. Proof must be submitted at that time that the registrant will be four years old no later than Dec. 1, 1971. The registration fee for the 10-week session is $18 per child.

The first session of the program will begin the first week of October. Each class is limited to 20 children who attend class two times a week. Participants' mothers must assist in the class twice during the 10-week session.

Classes will be held at the community building and at the Grace Lutheran Church, Euclid and Wolf roads in Prospect Heights. At the community building, classes will be held Mondays and Thursday or Tuesdays and Fridays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. or from 1 to 3 p.m. Classes at the church will be held only during the morning hours on Mondays and Thursdays or Tuesdays and Fridays.

According to park district officials, the program is designed to give four-year-old children the experience of working and playing with others their own age before entering kindergarten. Children participate in such group activities as games, show-and-tell, free-play, storytelling, craft projects, science projects, and number and letter concepts. All activities are led by qualified teachers.

Non-district residents will be accepted in the fall session of the program if there are any openings after the Sept. 23 registration. They should call the park district office at 298-4445. Other sessions of the play program will begin the week of Jan. 3 and March 20.

school, administration, grading, and the music, health and safety programs.

Those interviewed also indicated, by smaller margins, discontent with the district's drug program, bus transportation, homework and the parent-teacher conference policy.

To counteract these complaints, council members recommended that drug programs be expanded, more lenient boundaries be established, punitive homework be eliminated and other homework be kept to a minimum and planned conferences be held between parents and teachers.

Kopp Pool Swimmers Victors In Meet

The Kopp Pool swimmers triumphed over their rivals from two other swimming pools in the Mount Prospect Park District at the district's third annual novice swim meet recently at Lions Pool.

In winning the meet, Kopp's swimmers snapped a two-year winning streak held by Lions. Final point total showed Kopp with 162, Lions with 144 and Meadows with 124.

The meet was open to park district children 16 and under who had not previously won a competitive swimming award in their age group. In all, 248 youngsters from the three pools competed in the event.

AT THE OUTSET Kopp led by 12 points after winning five of the ten 100-yard freestyle races. At one point, the Meadows swimmers led, but Kopp overcame them.

Most of the children participating were students in the park district's swimming classes conducted this summer at the three pools.

Gil Fennie, park district aquatics director, lauded Mark Durlache, Mike Burrell and Ed Fitzsimons, the coaching staff for the Kopp team. Fennie pointed out the Kopp Pool has the smallest residential area of the three pools from which to draw potential team members.

The results of the events follow. In the relays, Kopp won in the 15 and 16-year-old girls' division, the 13 and 14-year-old girls' division, the 11 and 12-year-old girls' division, the 9 and 10-year-old boys' division and the 8-and-under girls' division.

Board Disappointed With Survey

Members of the Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 expressed disappointment Tuesday night with the outcome of a survey of 100 families in the district.

The survey, conducted by the School Community Council, showed that the overwhelming majority of those interviewed felt discipline in the district schools was too lenient.

Other areas of concern included the district's lunch program, playground facilities, transition between fifth and sixth grades and experimental educational programs.

The parents interviewed praised, among other things, principals, teachers, and the district's music, learning center and sex education programs.

The survey, conducted by 20 persons operating in teams of two, was conducted by "just sitting and listening" to the remarks of the parents, selected at random from the 20 school attendance areas.

Nita Stamm, the council's school board representative, said.

AFTER RECEIVING the survey, board member Sharrie Hildebrandt said, "It disappoints me that so few of the points were really about our educational goals. Most of these things are matters of convenience to parents."

Board Pres. Harold Harvey thanked the council for conducting the survey for the board and said "It is up to us to do something about it."

In order to begin work to find out more about the concerns, the board members agreed to meet informally with the interviewers Monday night to discuss the interviews.

The survey, Supt. James Ertvi told the board, is only a starting point.

"You have too little data here to decide anything. The people who have the data are the members of the committee who did the survey. When you find out more, if you see a topic you think is worthy of study, it would have to be studied."

sion.

Lions relay swimmers won in the 15 and 16-year-old boys' division, 9 and 10-year-old girls' division and the 8-and-under boys' division. Meadows won relays in the 13 and 14-year-old boys' division and the 11 and 12-year-old boys' division.

WINNERS in individual events are as follows:

—25-yard freestyle for youths 16 and over: girls' winner, Jackie Wanland of Meadows; boys' winner, Bob Arko of Lions and Stan Deloid of Meadows (tied).

—25-yard freestyle for youths 15-years-old: girls' winner, Peggy Russo, Meadows; boys', Joel Oliver, Lions.

24-yard freestyle, for 14-year-olds: girls', Erin Woolfitt, Kopp; boys', Bob Fitzpatrick, Kopp.

Planners Accept Rand Road Plan, Urge Village OK

With compliments for the work done by Village Planner Joseph Kessler, the Arlington Heights Plan Commission Wednesday night accepted the Rand Road Area Study with the recommendation that it be incorporated in the new master plan for the village.

The study makes nine recommendations on the future development of Rand Road between Ill. Rte. 53 and Euclid Avenue. The commission agreed that it would use the study as a guideline "with variation only for planning reasons that would benefit everyone in the village."

The study proposes:

—The elimination of single family residences along Rand Road except where good quality housing and proper subdivision of land exists.

—An extensive increase in land designated for commercial use.

—Proposed multifamily development of the land adjoining John Hersey High School.

—REPLANNING, resubdividing and redeveloping areas where such action is necessary.

—Improvement of traffic circulation through new street construction and minor adjustments of existing streets.

—Flood control.

—Designation of the Rolling Green Country Club, upon annexation, as a permanent open space or recreational area.

Several residents expressed concern at Wednesday night's meeting about whether the Rand Road proposals might, if realized, have a deleterious effect on surrounding residential property.

John Henning, 1223 E. Olive St., said he was worried about what the paving and developing of the Rand Road area would do to water drainage and runoff.

Kessler said that seven detention basins have been planned for the area and added that each new development would have to provide a solution to its own drainage problems before it could be approved by the plan commission.

Another resident, Robert Koch, 410 E. Maude Ave., said he thought the study went too far and covered too large an area.

"THIS IS REALLY more than a Rand Road study," Koch said. "It is a study encompassing much of Arlington Heights and I think it is in error in going this deep."

He also expressed concern over some of the projected zoning areas detailed in the study, particularly that south of Palatine, west of Rand and east of Arlington Heights roads.

Commission counsel John Langhenry said that the Rand Road Area Study neither establishes nor changes existing zoning, but rather will act as a guide for the commission in its evaluation of future development proposals.

Slate Public Workshop On Handicrafts

A public workshop with $1 admission including demonstrations of four types of handicrafts will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at Frontier Park, Kennicott Drive and Palatine Road, Arlington Heights.

Sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park district, the event will include separate demonstrations of various handicraft projects, allowing residents to view the making of various art projects.

The crafts will include Vue O'Optique, a handicraft using cut-outs from identical pictures to make three-dimensional projects. Other demonstrations will show people the making of ceramic and metallic projects, papier mache objects and knot-tying to form belts and other items in the art known as macramé.

The workshop is sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

VUE D'OPTIQUE will be demonstrated by Mrs. Louis Lischko during Saturday's open house craft workshop at Frontier Park, Kennicott Drive and Palatine Road, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Lischko will be creating three-dimensional art projects by using cut-outs from pictures. The workshop will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and will include demonstrations in ceramics and metallics, papier mache and macramé. The event is sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

HE HAD TO BE KIDDING: At the opening of the low and moderate-income housing committee meeting last week, chairman William Hanson said the hearing was called specifically to hear the views of opponents of such housing, but everyone would be allowed to speak. He said the hearing was called because the committee wanted to hear from proponents of such housing, but had not heard from opponents. He added, "We've heard very little from them — maybe there are none."

WHY NOT TRY IT? One opponent to low and moderate-income housing was saying at Thursday's meeting that everyone would like to live close to where they work. The man, who was obviously a commuter, then said "It would be nice to move the old split level out to Jackson and State, but it's just not economically feasible."

AS THE CHANNEL 5 television cameras were grinding away at Tuesday's Village Board meeting during the discussion of today's motorcycle race at Arlington Park Race Track, Village Manager L. A. Hanson asked a citizen to come up to the TV microphone to speak. Village Pres. Jack Walsh asked Hanson, "When did you get on the TV payroll?"

SPEAK FOR YOURSELF, DWIGHT: During Tuesday's Village Board meeting, William Moore was asking for a sign height variation for the McDonald's restaurant on north Arlington Heights Road. After he made a few comments, he said he wouldn't waste anymore of the board's time or make any foolish comments. Trustee Dwight Walton graciously said, "I've never known Moore to make a foolish comment." Village Pres. Jack Walsh quickly quipped, "I wish I could say that."

Bike Rides Set This Weekend

The Arlington Heights Park District Bicycling Association will sponsor two bike rides this weekend.

Tomorrow, the association will tour the Bemis Woods bicycle path just north of Western Springs. Riders will meet at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St., at 7:30 a.m. Cyclists must provide their own automobile transportation to Bemis Woods where the group will then mount their bicycles and take the path through a forest preserve.

Sunday, the association will provide a tour of the new 24-mile Arlington bicycle route. The ride will begin at noon and is open to any adult. Children younger than 12 years old must be accompanied by an adult.

The bicycle path was mapped out along streets throughout the village and connects various parks. Throughout the ride, the group will pick up new riders by stopping at local parks.

The schedule calls for the group to leave Recreation Park at about noon; Camelot Park, Brighton Place and Euclid Drive, at 12:35; Frontier Park, Kennicott Drive and Palatine Road, at 1:30; and Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave., at 2:05.

Village Charges Gerrymandering In Suit

Secretary of State John W. Lewis, Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, and the Illinois State Electoral Board have all been named as defendants in a suit the Village of Arlington Heights filed in federal court Wednesday in an effort to invalidate a new state legislative redistricting map.

The suit, filed in the name of all village board members and John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights, cites the defendants as being party to a redistricting map which splits the village into four "odd-shaped and gerrymandered districts."

The suit charges the new map "totally ignored" the federal and state constitutional principal of "one-man, one-vote."

Before the map was completed by an eight-member reapportionment committee last month, the village was uniformly within the third district, giving Arlington Heights a strong suburban voice in the General Assembly, the suit said.

The new districting plan, however, was created "to effectively diminish the power of the citizens of Arlington Heights to elect representatives of their choice in the General Assembly," the suit claims.

THE SUIT ALSO charges the reapportionment committee was improperly appointed and lacked representation of the independent voter. The committee, the suit states, was composed entirely of members of the Democratic and Republican parties.

Lewis was named in the suit because he received the map from the committee and published it, according to the copy of the suit filed in the U.S. District Court.

The electoral board was cited for their role in certifying the names of all candidates for the state legislature before those names appear on the primary ballot and for the committee's other "diverse duties" in connection with state representatives and senators.

Scott became party to the suit for initiating the redistricting plan and for failing to challenge its validity in the Illinois

Supreme Court. He is also a member of the electoral board.

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel said yesterday the next step in the legal proceedings is for the three defendants to file a response to the charges. He did not indicate how soon this will be.

UNDER THE PREVIOUS apportionment map, Arlington Heights, was wholly within the 3rd Legislative District, which took in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg Townships.

Representing the 3rd district were Rep. Eugene Schickman, R-Arlington Heights; Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; Rep. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect; and Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington.

Under the new plan, Arlington Heights is in the 1st, 3rd, 4th and 32nd districts.

The 32nd district is that part of Arlington Heights within Lake County.

The 1st district is the portion of Arlington Heights south of the Lake County line and north of Palatine Road.

The 4th district is bounded by Gregory to Northwest Highway, to Douglas, to Hawthorne, to Duntos, to Thomas, to Arlington Heights Road to Palatine Road.

The 3rd district takes in all other parts of Arlington Heights.

Under the new map, Graham no longer represents Arlington Heights. Schickman is in the 4th district and Chapman and Regner are in the 3rd district.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon has ruled out any extension of his wage-price freeze past Nov. 12, but promised a long-range program of economic stabilization afterward to make sure "America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation." He also announced he would propose major, unspecified tax reforms next year to help create 20 million new jobs in the coming decade and to meet worldwide economic challenges to America's postwar supremacy.

The Army rested its case against Capt. Ernest L. Medina after calling a lie detector expert in the Ft. McPherson, Ga., court martial, who testified that Medina told him he had lost control of his troops at My Lai.

Hurricane Fern has lost power in rush toward the Texas coast but gales, rain and high tides at its fringes struck ashore. Tornadoes and flash flooding hit during the night.

In a blunt face-to-face meeting, Secretary of State William P. Rogers asked Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda of Japan for a reevaluation of the yen and for elimination of import restrictions against U.S. products.

The War

South Vietnamese forces have struck the first Communist resistance in their five-day-old push into the country's jungle-steamy northwestern corner. Machine gunners forced down a U.S. helicopter carrying South Vietnamese infantry.

The State

Illinois Secretary of State John Lewis, in an angry statement, has defended but has not explained, his daughter's ownership of stock in a land trust which owns Cahokia Downs Race track. He also threatened to "clean the plot" of a reporter who investigated and revealed the matter. Paul Powell and other persons with state government ties also held stock in the trust.

The California Supreme Court decision outlawing the real estate and personal property tax as a criterion for educational support "clearly should be applicable to the Illinois situation," Lt. Gov. Paul Simon told the Springfield chapter of the American Business Club.

The Illinois Board of Regents, governing body for Illinois State University, Normal, and Sangamon State University, Springfield, has approved a $25.50 per semester tuition increase and a 4.1 per cent faculty and administrative pay hike.

The World

A British army explosives expert was killed when he triggered a booby trap bomb in Belfast, Northern Ireland. In London, Prime Minister Edward Heath summoned the British Parliament into special session later this month to deal with the province's troubles.

Ambassador William J. Porter took over as chief U.S. negotiator at Vietnam peace talks in Paris and proposed that the four sides engage in secret negotiations. The Communists rejected the idea as they had two months earlier.

The market turned lower as it digested some of the gains accumulated over the last four weeks. On the New York Exchange, the Dow Jones Average dropped 5.04 to 915.89. Declines topped advances, 826 to 575. Turnover was 15,790,000 shares, up from 14,230,000. Prices eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Opinion Mixed On Cycle Races

Tonight's Yamaha Gold Cup motorcycle race at Arlington Park Race Track is viewed with mixed emotions by residents of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine. A random survey yesterday showed some residents of the communities, which surround the track, support the first motorcycle meet in the track's history, while others violently oppose it.

A Palatine resident, Mrs. M. T. Porter, was one of those objecting to the motorcycle meet. "In one word — awful," she commented. She said there is a fear by many residents that the motorcyclists will continue their racing outside the race track oval. "We like our country tranquility here," she added. "We don't want racing in the neighborhood streets."

However, Mrs. Arthur Valentine, 2008 St. James, Rolling Meadows, who lives very near the track, didn't oppose the night racing. "My son is a motorcyclist," she laughed. "And my husband and I used to ride years ago. There are all kinds."

As one of the residents most affected by the lights and traffic, she said, "I'll wait and see how it comes out. I won't make a judgment until I see what happens."

She added that night horse racing was a reality a few years ago and tonight's race won't bother the adjacent residents "because everybody stays up on weekends."

Mrs. Alfred Myles, 1800 N. Vall, Arlington Heights, said motorcyclists need a place to stage a race. "It's a good thing to have an organized race. It would get the racing off the roads and streets."

As an Arlington Heights resident who lives near the track, Mrs. Robert Sherman, 1615 Euclid Ave., said she objects to the noise and traffic. "We've had an extended racing season and we were finally getting used to the peace and quiet." She said additional traffic already is here because of the grand opening of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg. "This will just make it worse," she said.

Mrs. Donald Scheve, 2204 Jay Ln., Rolling Meadows, agreed the traffic and lights created by the race would be objectionable. "I don't approve of the lights or the program or the traffic. Something should be done."

Bessie Bensen of Arlington Heights suggested the village officials take steps to ban future events of this nature. "I don't feel good about the race. I just don't see any sense in it."

Mrs. Robert Nordstrom, 743 S. Warren, Palatine, pointed to "the pollution" created by the motorcycles. "I imagine it's going to be quite smoky. It sounds like it was just cooked up without asking the people. Before long it's going to be just like Chicago here."

Mrs. Edward J. Noonan, 18 E. Forest Ln., Palatine, pointed to the bright lights and traffic as undesirable effects of tonight's event. "I feel sorry for the people who live in the immediate area. I oppose all night racing."

A Rolling Meadows resident, Mrs. Edward Vesely, 3506 Mallard Ct., said "I'm no motorcycle fan but I don't think the race should be banned. If they have a place to ride it's fine. It keeps them off the streets."

Mrs. Charles Rohde, 3800 Holly Ln., Rolling Meadows said she sympathizes with the people who live near the track because of the lights and noise during the race. "I'm not directly affected, but I feel it is a shame in the history of Arlington Park Race Track and the sport of kings that we have this come down."

Tell Recycling Locations

Ten thousand fliers are being distributed this week in Arlington Heights to publicize the village's two recycling drop-off locations.

Imprinted with a reproduction of the ecology flag, the fliers include the slogan, "Ecology is our concern, make it yours."

Two types of fliers were printed, with 5,000 listing the address of the recycling location at the south fire station, 2000 S. Arlington Heights Rd., and the other half listing the address of the new north fire station, 3030 N. Arlington Heights Rd. Fliers listing the location of the southern drop-off point will be distributed in the village south of the railroad tracks while the others will be distributed north of the tracks.

The fliers also provide general information such as the drop-off locations being open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Bins at the two locations are provided for white glass, brown glass, other colored glass and metal cans, either tin or aluminum. Residents have been asked to remove caps and metal rings from bottles before depositing them in the appropriately marked bins.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS have also asked for residents to cut the tops and bottoms out of cans and then smash the cans flat. This compacts the cans and eliminates the frequent emptying of the bins.

When the bins at either location are filled, they are emptied by village public works employees and taken to recycling plants. The income from the recycling is put into a special village fund for future ecological projects.

The first recycling drop-off location was established in mid-June at the south fire station on the west side of Arlington Heights Road between Golf and Algonquin roads. The popularity of this location prompted the August opening of the second drop-off site at the new north side station. The north station is also on the west side of Arlington Heights Road, about a half mile south of Dundee Road.

A third location in the central portion of the village may be established later after an evaluation is made of the use of the two existing locations.

Feed a hungry lawn this Fall!

To fertilize your lawn this Fall we recommend Scott's TURF BUILDER. It is the prolonged-release fertilizer that gives up its nutrients only as the grass needs them. So there's no spindly surge growth to cause extra mowing. Instead, TURF BUILDER makes your lawn grow thicker, greener and sturdier. TURF BUILDER is a pleasure to use — it's clean, odorless and light in weight. This week end would be a great time.

Dead Addict Didn't Want Help, Detective Reveals

by ROGER CAPETTINI
A 25 year old Des Plaines man who died of an apparent overdose of heroin last week once told a Des Plaines policeman there was nothing anyone could do to help him.

The policeman, a detective who prefers to remain anonymous, spoke yesterday of Stephen J. Brennan of 625 Howard St., who died Friday morning. His death was blamed on an overdose of heroin.

Solicitor Ordinance Is Deferred To Oct.

An ordinance to regulate solicitors, scheduled to be discussed at Tuesday's meeting of the Arlington Heights Village Board, has been deferred until Oct. 4.

Action on the ordinance was delayed at the request of Trustee James T. Ryan who is out of town. Ryan is chairman of the board's legal committee which was recommending approval of the ordinance.

In asking for the board to delay action, Trustee Frank Palmatier said Ryan wanted action deferred until Ryan could attend the meeting. Palmatier's suggestion the ordinance be deferred until the first week of October was approved by the board.

Car Fire Blamed On Arsonists

Arsonists have been blamed for a car fire about midnight Tuesday near the rear of Hansen Realtors, 518 E. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect. Mount Prospect Police said when they arrived on the scene the whole interior was in flames and the gas cap was on the trunk lid.

The Mount Prospect Fire Department extinguished the blaze in the 1963 Pontiac convertible which belonged to Donald M. Hansen, of 221 S. Waterman, Arlington Heights.

Board Disappointed With Survey

Members of the Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 expressed disappointment Tuesday night with the outcome of a survey of 100 families in the district.

The survey, conducted by the School Community Council, showed that the overwhelming majority of those interviewed felt discipline in the district schools was too lenient.

Other areas of concern included the district's lunch program, playground facilities, transition between fifth and sixth grades and experimental educational programs.

The parents interviewed praised, among other things, principals, teachers, and the district's music, learning center and sex education programs.

The survey, conducted by 20 persons operating in teams of two, was conducted by "just sitting and listening" to the remarks of the parents, selected at random from the 20 school attendance areas, could not be helped because he didn't want to be helped. "He didn't want to get off it," the policeman explained.

"You can't help any of them if they don't want help," another detective added.

The detectives said Brennan, who recently spent 45 days in the House of Correction, let it be known while he was imprisoned that the first thing he would do when he got out was seek more heroin.

"HE WAS DRIED out," the policeman said, "but all he could think of was getting back on it. He only got out of there a couple of weeks ago and now he's dead."

Another detective was obviously saddened by the death of the young carpenter.

"I really liked that kid," he said. "In spite of his drug problem he was really a good kid. We wanted to help him, but he wouldn't let us."

The attitude of another young Des Plaines man, also thought to have died as a result of an overdose of heroin, was quite unlike Brennan's, police said, however.

"Kevin Schneider had a completely healthy attitude about getting off drugs," one detective said.

SCHNEIDER, 19, of 2074 Locust St., Des Plaines, died Aug. 28. Police said at the time they thought he died from an overdose of heroin. A spoon, hypodermic needle case and a package of white powder reportedly was found under the mattress of the youth's bed.

Since that time, however, a pathologist's report has indicated Schneider died of natural causes.

"Schneider felt he could get off drugs — that he didn't need drugs any more," the detective said.

"His family was trying to help him. They were severing all their ties in this area and moving to Phoenix. Kevin said when he moved he was going to cut all his relationships with drug users and start over again in Phoenix without drugs," the policeman explained.

Schneider, who was known to associate with Brennan, also was recently released from the House of Correction.

ALTHOUGH THE policemen said Schneider had a "healthy attitude," they expressed some doubt about anyone's ability to kick the heroin habit permanently.

"In the 18 years I've been a policeman, I've yet to see anyone get off heroin permanently," one detective said.

Another detective agreed. "I don't know of anyone who has ever gotten off it permanently," he said. "We believe it's possible, but just don't know of anyone who has ever done it. Some of the Chicago police say no one has ever done it."

The detective said the heroin problem in Des Plaines, "is like the old iceberg. The only part you know about is the small part that sticks up. It's hard to estimate the size of it below the surface."

Mayor Herbert Behrel said he met with Police Chief Arthur Hintz Tuesday morning to discuss the recent deaths and the drug problem in Des Plaines.

BEHREL SAID Hintz does not feel at this time that more money, programs or increased cooperation between Des Plaines and other police departments is necessary in the fight against drugs.

Apparently the youths were long time users, Hintz reportedly told the mayor. He said the police and the families were "well aware" they were addicts, but added, "It's not that easy" to make arrests.

One of the chief's detectives agreed. "We know these kids are using drugs, but it's difficult to prove in a court of law. We have trouble getting witnesses. We have few informants. They're too frightened to tell us anything. Would you allow your child to make a heroin buy for the police and testify in court?" he asked.

He said it is also difficult to infiltrate the drug subculture in an effort to increase arrests.

"They only sell to people they know. None of the police can do it — they recognize all of us. They may be breaking the law, but they're not stupid," he said.

He said the parents of drug users are not much help either.

"THE PARENTS either act as if the problem will go away if they ignore it, or try to solve it themselves. It will never go away and they are often not equipped to handle it themselves. They think they're protecting their kids, but they're not helping them in this case."

Council To Study New Regulations For Swim Pools

New safety regulations for swimming pools will be studied by Des Plaines City Council committees to prevent accidents like the recent drowning death of a 6-year-old Des Plaines youth.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel this week referred suggestions about swimming pool ordinances to the council's building control and license committees for study and recommendations for council action.

Mayor Behrel acted on the suggestion of Ald. Alan Abrams (8th) who said city building and safety codes could be revised. Ald. Abrams also said pool owners should be licensed by the city and pools should be inspected regularly.

Abrams told the Herald the city now has little control over pools after they are constructed and that licensing would allow the city to fine those who don't comply quickly with safety and health rules.

ABRAMS is alderman of the ward in which Massimo Rossato, 6, son of Mrs. Luigi Rossato, 256 Dover Ln., drowned last month.

The boy was found dead in a pool behind apartments at 230 Dover Lane.

He apparently fell into the pool, which contained about five feet of rain water and seepage, when he tried to retrieve a baseball that had been thrown into the pool area.

Police said the pool was surrounded by a six-foot stockade fence, but a section of the fence at the southeast corner of the pool had been "pulled back" and allowed "easy access" to the pool area. The gate at the pool's entrance was not capable of being locked, police said.

Before the child's body was found, police said, the pool had to be pumped out by the Des Plaines Fire Department because police could not see through the dirty water. Police said the pool contained boards, sections of fence, bricks, various cans, dirt and leaves.

ABRAMS SAID that city building codes about pools "are not clear" and that more frequent inspections and stronger city control over pools might have prevented the death.

Des Plaines ordinances now require all private pools 18 or more inches deep to be enclosed by a building, fence or other structure at least five feet high. Self-latching gates, with the latches at least four feet above the ground also are required.

The city inspects all private pools when they are constructed, but does not check the pools after they have been completed and are in use, according to Alfred Prickett, Des Plaines building commissioner.

Abrams said the city can take court action if a pool becomes a public nuisance. But this means of regulating the safety of pools wastes too much time, he said.

UNDER THE CITY home-rule powers granted by the new state constitution, Des Plaines could license pool owners and require them to follow regulations, he said. Pools could be inspected regularly and owners could be fined if they violate the rules.

City codes could be revised to require greater safety conditions, he said.

"At present, the pool owner files for a city construction permit, and provides a drawing of the site and the pool plans. When the pool is completed a city building inspector examines the pool to determine if it follows city codes," Abrams said.

Earlier this summer, the council passed an amendment to the building code which required that electrical connections, such as light sockets, be kept at least 10 feet from the pool.

Abrams, and the council's city code and judiciary committee, which he heads, recommended the change. Before this ordinance amendment was passed the city had no regulation about electrical connections and pools, he said.

MILITARY BRASS WAS much in evidence yesterday at the official opening of Air Force, Army, Navy and Marine Corps recruiting offices at 800 Lee St. in Des Plaines. Also attending the opening of the new offices, which will serve the northwest suburbs, was Des Plaines

City Police Department Part Of Study

An in-depth management study of the Des Plaines Police Department is being conducted as part of an overall study of every police agency in Cook County.

The study is being made by the management consultant firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget Inc., and is funded by a $30,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

John S. Smock of the consulting firm said Des Plaines was one of nine Cook County municipalities selected for the in-depth study.

Smock said the nine were chosen from the 124 municipal police agencies in the county on the basis of several factors, including population, geographical location, size, growth rate, department size and type and socio-economic ratio.

POLICE DEPARTMENTS expressing an interest in the study were given prime consideration, he added.

"The better police departments are usually the ones that request assistance," Smock said. "In the past five years they have recognized the need for management assistance. The Des Plaines department is one of those."

Police departments in Evanston, Chicago Heights, Bridgeview and Markham are among the others scheduled for the in-depth study.

"We're doing an in-depth study of the management operations of all the departments within each agency to improve those departments," Smock said. "Although we're working for the Cook County Committee on Criminal Justice, we feel we're doing it for the municipality because the results of the study will be beneficial to the city."

SMOCK SAID he expects a written report on the study will be completed in two to three weeks.

He added, "We're not going to hit them over the head with this report when we're finished, however. We will discuss our findings with the police as we go along and give oral presentations throughout the study. They'll know what will be in the report before it's published."

Smock said the study of the Des Plaines department is being done by him and William Evans, another member of the firm.

As part of a six-man study team, they first sent questionnaires to all police agencies in the county, then visited each agency to verify the information they received.

"The third phase of the six-month project is the in-depth study of the nine departments," he said.

"We're trying to determine how the department is organized — what are the provisions for supervision, what are the policy provisions, how are complaints handled," he said. "We don't consider ourselves police trainers."

SMOCK SAID he and Evans have been interviewing key personnel and supervisors in the departments as well as individual patrolmen.

"Sometimes they know we're going to meet with them, sometimes they don't," he said. "We also have been reviewing the records to see who gets a report of what and why."

Smock said they have also been riding in squad cars with patrolmen on all three shifts to view operations first-hand and to get candid opinions from the patrolmen.

"But we're not amateur police," he said. "We don't want to be in on the action and we stay out of the way of police operations."

Survey Disappoints Board

Members of the Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 expressed disappointment Tuesday night with the outcome of a survey of 100 families in the district.

The survey, conducted by the School Community Council, showed that the overwhelming majority of those interviewed felt discipline in the district schools was too lenient.

Other areas of concern included the district's lunch program, playground facilities, transition between fifth and sixth grades and experimental educational programs.

The parents interviewed praised, among other things, principals, teachers, and the district's music, learning center and sex education programs.

The survey, conducted by 20 persons operating in teams of two, was conducted by "just sitting and listening" to the remarks of the parents, selected at random from the 20 school attendance areas, Nita Stamm, the council's school board representative, said.

AFTER RECEIVING the survey, board member Sharrie Hildebrandt said, "It disappoints me that so few of the points were really about our educational goals. Most of these things are matters of convenience to parents."

Board Pres. Harold Harvey thanked the council for conducting the survey for the board and said "It is up to us to do something about it."

In order to begin work to find out more about the concerns, the board members agreed to meet informally with the interviewers Monday night to discuss the interviews.

The survey, Supt. James Erviti told the board, is only a starting point.

"You have too little data here to decide anything. The people who have the data are the members of the committee who did the survey. When you find out more, if you see a topic you think is worthy of study, it would have to be studied."

Jewish Congregation Sets Selichot Night

A Selichot Night dance-social will inaugurate the new season this Saturday at Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines. The Bob Allen orchestra will provide dance music beginning at 9 p.m. Refreshments will be served and admission is free.

Following the social, the traditional Selichot penitential service will be recited by Rabbi Jay Karzen and Cantor Harry Solowinshik. This special service — the only midnight service in Jewish tradition — will commence at 11:30 p.m., and sets the mood and atmosphere for the forthcoming Jewish High Holy Days.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon has ruled out any extension of his wage-price freeze past Nov. 12, but promised a long-range program of economic stabilization afterward to make sure "America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation." He also announced he would propose major, unspecified tax reforms next year to help create 20 million new jobs in the coming decade and to meet worldwide economic challenges to America's postwar supremacy.

The Army rested its case against Capt. Ernest L. Medina after calling a lie detector expert in the Ft. McPherson, Ga., court marshal, who testified that Medina told him he had lost control of his troops at My Lai.

Hurricane Fern has lost power in a rush toward the Texas coast but gales, rain and high tides at its fringes struck ashore. Tornadoes and flash flooding hit during the night.

In a blunt face-to-face meeting, Secretary of State William P. Rogers asked Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda of Japan for a reevaluation of the yen and for elimination of import restrictions against U.S. products.

The War

South Vietnamese forces have struck the first Communist resistance in their five-day-old push into the country's jungle-steamy northeastern corner. Machine gunners forced down a U.S. helicopter carrying South Vietnamese infantry.

The State

Illinois Secretary of State John Lewis, in an angry statement, has defended but has not explained, his daughter's ownership of stock in a land trust which owns Cahokia Downs Race track. He also threatened to "clean the plow" of a reporter who investigated and revealed the matter. Paul Powell and other persons with state government ties also held stock in the trust.

The California Supreme Court decision outlawing the real estate and personal property tax as a criterion for educational support "clearly should be applicable to the Illinois situation," Lt. Gov. Paul Simon told the Springfield chapter of the American Business Club.

The Illinois Board of Regents, governing body for Illinois State University, Normal, and Sangamon State University, Springfield, has approved a $39.50 per semester tuition increase and a 4.1 per cent faculty and administrative pay hike.

Ambassador William J. Porter took over as chief U.S. negotiator at Vietnam peace talks in Paris and proposed that the four sides engage in secret negotiations. The Communists rejected the idea as they had two months earlier.

High School Teachers OK 8% Salary Raise

by JUDY NAJOLIA

Teachers in High School Dist. 214 have ratified a salary package which will give them an 8 per cent average salary increase this year once the wage-price freeze is lifted.

Teacher association members voted Wednesday 327 to 108 to accept the package. The matter must now go to the board of education for approval before it can go into effect.

Starting salary for beginning teachers with a bachelor's degree will be $8,300, a 3.75 per cent increase over last year's beginning salary of $8,000. The new beginning salary is the same given to High School Dist. 211 teachers earlier this summer.

Both administrators and teachers praised the "high professional tone" of negotiations this year.

RICHARD CHERICO, education assn. president, called the negotiations a good example for other districts throughout the state to follow: "It was a difficult time to be negotiating, but I think the interest of all parties prevailed, including the public."

Cherico said he would have a statement after the board considers the package Monday night.

Steve Berry, assistant to the superintendent who has worked on negotiations, said he was pleased with the teachers' association efforts to stay at the negotiating table until a package was acceptable.

"We were not under any type of threat of strike and I was very pleased with the way negotiations went," Berry said.

THE PACKAGE the teachers approved includes a 3.75 per cent increase in stipends for extra-curricular work, an improved insurance package with optional life insurance and comprehensive coverage for dental care, and a sick leave bank.

With the sick leave bank, teachers will receive 14 sick days, one less day than last year with the extra day being put into a bank. Any teacher who uses up his sick leave can draw on the bank for extra days.

With more than 1,000 employees, the sick leave bank will start out with 1,000 sick days. Another 1,000 will be added each year for three years, and the bank will be maintained at 3,000 days after that.

Teachers new to the district will get 10 years credit for previous experience if the board approves the package. Last year they received nine. The experience level will increase one year each year until an incoming teacher with experience can get 15 years credit for experience outside the district.

Another educational level has been added to the salary scale for teachers with a master's degree plus 80 hours. Before, the educational level stopped at a master's degree plus 30 hours of credit.

THOUGH DISTRICT administrators have not yet determined the exact cost of the 1971-72 teacher salary package, Robert Weber, assistant superintendent for business services, estimated the salary package will increase the teacher payroll by about five per cent.

"It appears that we will be within our budget with the package, but it is hard to determine what the actual cost will be," Weber said.

An $11.6 million teacher salary budget has been set up for the 1971-72 school year. Last year $10.6 million was budgeted, giving the district a total teacher salary increase of about 14 per cent. Nine per cent is for growth in the number of teachers in the district.

Teachers are the first group of Dist. 214 employees to settle negotiations. Custodians and clerical workers are also negotiating for pay raises this year.

How things have changed since I was a kid. I was reminded of this Thursday afternoon at 2 p.m. when the air-raid siren in downtown Des Plaines short circuited and blasted away for five minutes.

It reminded me of a lovely spring day in 1952 when I was in second grade. We were out on the playground and I'd wandered away from my friends to lie in the field and just look up at the sky. Suddenly the siren on top of our school short circuited and at the same time a formation of planes from someplace flew overhead.

I ran screaming into the building — sure that this was the end... that the bomb I'd been taught about and had prepared for had finally been dropped. It took the principal, my teacher, the nurse and my mother to calm me down and convince me World War III had not yet started.

THOSE WERE the days when a bomb scare didn't involve a homemade job that someone deposited in a public place. The only bomb that was on our minds was the big one. Air raid drills were ritual with somber students filing quietly into the basement corridors, crouching on the floor with their hands clasped over their heads.

Those were the days of the "cold war." When we were seven we knew all about the dirty Russians and the Communist takeover and that the Reds were probably under every bed.

It's been written and rewritten that the trouble with my generation was in being brought up with the threat of A-bomb and H-bomb warfare. The reason for our "live for today and the hell with tomorrow" attitude is that we dearly believed there may be no tomorrow. That the reason we buy now and pay and pay and pay later is because we believe we might as well have what we want and when that baby explodes, the credit companies will be the real losers.

REMEMBER When people were building bomb shelters. That was really the thing in the 50's I can recall numerous articles on do-it-yourself shelters, how to stock your shelter, what to do in the first 24-hours after the bomb is dropped, the effects of fallout, and how to evacuate your city.

My nightmares included scenes of horrible, deformed creatures trying to get into my shelter or being separated from my family when the holocaust began. Those are vivid memories — probably because I was so young and so scared.

And today? My 8-year-old knows nothing of the "big" bomb. Russia to him is a country far away where people talk differently, live pretty much the same and like a lot of the things we like. The only Communism he has heard about is in Vietnam and he really knows little even of this.

AIR RAID SHELTERS? He's never seen one much less thought about living in one while the world disintegrates outside.

Air raid sirens? When the siren went off yesterday afternoon nobody ran for cover. Most of the people walking down the street simply covered their ears and grimaced at the disturbance.

It seems the fear of the great attack has faded — or at least been replaced by other fears. But the propaganda that was used to create that fear won't be forgotten. At least not by me

Enrollment Under Guess

Final enrollment may not reach the expected level in Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 this year.

In a report to the board Tuesday, Supt. James Erviti said a first day head-count made by administrators showed 11,497 students in attendance, an increase of 197 over last year.

However, Erviti said, enrollments in the middle grades (third, fourth, fifth and sixth), have not been as high as the district projected, and as a result, the district may not have the increase of 400 students as originally planned.

Last year the district had a total enrollment of about 11,600. District officials had been counting on an enrollment of nearly 12,000 this year.

The projections seem to be off in the middle grades "for no good reason," Erviti said.

THE DISTRICT must show an enrollment growth rate of at least two per cent in order to qualify for extra state aid received under an amended state aid claim. The district has already budgeted for the money, amounting to about $250,000.

The district will learn whether it will qualify for the claim as soon as the average daily attendance for the month of September is figured, according to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration.

Erviti also reported on the opening of school in general, saying, although there was some mix-up on buses, "it was a picture of routine, and that's good."

In other action, the board agreed building-use fees will now be charged, based on the rates from last year, $4 per hour on weekdays and $6 per hour on weekends.

The rates will be assessed under the board's new building use policy, which provides that groups making a profit, and those that meet on weekends and after 10 p.m. will be charged.

Two Charged For Marijuana

Two 20-year-old Mount Prospect men were arrested by Des Plaines police late Monday night and charged with possession of marijuana.

Arrested were Gregg J. Barsanti of 1188 Wheeling Rd., and Robert W. Montgomery of 58 N. Albert St., both of Mount Prospect.

Des Plaines Patrolman Stanley Stack said he originally stopped a car driven by Barsanti for an alleged minor traffic violation at Graceland Avenue and Rand Road.

Stack said as Barsanti was getting out of the car he saw an empty beer can on the back of the car. The Patrolman said Montgomery, when told to stand in front of the car, fled south on Graceland Avenue, but was apprehended by another policeman.

Stack said a search of the car produced a marijuana cigarette and a burned piece of a cardboard coat hanger, bent into the shape of a pipe.

In addition to the charge of possession of marijuana, Barsanti was charged with driving while his license is suspended and driving without a headlight.

Both men are scheduled to appear Oct. 22 in the Des Plaines branch of the county circuit court.

New Science Study Method

only one book is needed for the program. We would have had to replace our other textbooks anyway. Not only were they outdated, they were also completely used," he said.

THE SEVENTH GRADERS in the three Des Plaines junior high schools are beginning with the matter and energy phase of the program and the eighth graders are tackling men and his biosphere.

The textbook for the earth and science part, Butkiewicz said, has not quite been completed by the National Science Foundation. "Since the books are not complete, we were able to purchase what is complete at a low cost," he said, so the eighth graders will also work on the earth and science part.

"No one program covers everything," Butkiewicz said, "so we'll also be using supplementary materials."

"For many years we've been borrowing from programs all over the country. Now we'll have our own coordinated program to work from," he said.

Science teachers report "interest is more noticeable" in their students as a result of the new program, Butkiewicz said.

Participating in the program are teachers Gene Richards, Richard Mann, Charles Aguila, Jean Evans, Ray Davis and Mary Anne Kearney from Algonquin Junior High; Roger Nelson, James Huffman and Ray Gunn from Chippewa High; and Don Kessel, Warren Pietsch, Mary Huff and Butkiewicz from Iroquois Junior High.

"IT'S PART OF MAKING our overall program up-to-date," he said. "One of the requirements for the new junior high program was that it include a study of ecology, another effort to keep up-to-date to relate to the youngsters how they can take care of their own environment."

Butkiewicz said often science experiments in the junior high labs carry over from one day to the next. Then conclusions are reached and new questions or problems are presented to the students.

"The labs are busy places. It makes for a noisier type of situation," he said, "but it's a learning noise."

His Talents Are Many

Personable Vincent Price

by GENIE CAMPBELL

While most people work all their lives to excel in just one area, there are a lucky few who become masters in many. Vincent Price is one.

His interests and knowledge span a broad range of subjects. He is a distinguished actor, an authority on art, a gourmet cook, lecturer, writer and author. And what Price has going for him even more is that, with his credits, he remains still so personable and unassuming.

"I love acting," he said during a recent press conference at his suite in the Arlington Park Hotel. He is in the area to help institute several new home decorating courses being opened by Sears, Roebuck and Co. They will be available at the new Sears store in Woodfield. "But, one must have outside interests, too," he continued.

"Actors can serve in other ways. After all acting is a great art form related to all other art forms."

PRICE WAS STUDYING art when the opportunity to go into acting reared up quite by accident.

Working toward his master's degree in art at the University of London after completing his undergraduate work at Yale University, Price won the role of a Chicago policeman in a London stage production.

Live theater gradually led him into a career of motion pictures and television. "Dr. Phibes," now playing locally, marks his 100th movie. It, like many of his most memorable pictures, is a horror film. Does he resent being frequently cast as a monster? Not at all. "Only the makeup now and then stings," he complained.

Throughout his acting, however, Price's interest in art has never subsided. When Sears decided to merchandise fine art in 1962, Price was asked to take charge of the program. Permanent galleries were opened, the largest of which is the Sears Vincent Price Gallery in Chicago.

A GREAT ART HISTORIAN, having written and lectured much on the subject, Price admits to no one favorite period of art. "It all depends upon what I'm into at the time," he laughed. "Right now, I'm taken with American contemporary art. It is the art of our time."

"Through posters and lithographs everyone can experience contemporary art without spending a lot of money," he continued. "However, you really can't know what you like until you know something. Money isn't everything. A very expensively furnished house can still be terribly cold," he added.

"Art can define a person. I trust people by their choice of art... what originals or reproductions they choose depending upon what they can afford. Art is much more than a canvas and oil. It has a great deal to do with design and taste," said Price.

"THE REVIVAL OF handicrafts is marvelous. Our educational system is a bore. It doesn't teach us how to live," he continued. "We need more education in training us how to utilize our leisure time. Handicrafts is all a part of this."

Price was an adviser to Mrs. Jackie Kennedy Onassis when she worked to historically restore the White House. As chairman of the Indian Arts and Crafts Board of the U.S. Department of Interior, he was contacted by the former Mrs. Kennedy about Indian art she wanted hung in the White House. Price has been genuinely concerned with getting Indian art significantly recognized.

Price has a great heritage of his own, descendants on his father's side having come over on the Mayflower.

"MY ONLY REGRET is that no one in my family ever married an Indian," he said. "I would love to be half Pottawatomi."

Price has one other love, the kitchen. A gourmet cook, he with his wife, has written a number of cook books.

"I learned to cook from my mother," he said. "She was of French extraction and an excellent cook. It was a great privilege for us kids to take turns cooking for the family. I guess it was good we all had iron stomachs," he smiled.

Vincent Price lives in Los Angeles with his wife, Mary, and nine-year-old daughter. He also has a son, 31. He too, once in a while catches his old flicks on TV.

"I was watching one film until I realized everyone in it but me was dead now. I turned it off, had three scotches and went to bed."

AN AUTHORITY ON ALMOST every facet of the arts, Vincent Price feels that young couples today should have a knowledge of what kind of art and furnishings they like before making large decisions.

Beat Changes But Goes On

Rock Music Enters A New Phase

by TONY VELLELA

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The closing of the Electric Circus, on the heels of the Fillmore East and West shutdowns, points up the continuing state of change now present in the rock music world.

"The sole incentive of too many groups has simply become money," stated Bill Graham, in ending the era of the Fillmore. Graham, who opened the San Francisco Fillmore Auditorium in 1965, and the New York version three years later, has retired himself from the music scene.

Outdoor rock festivals have also been noticeably absent from the lineup of entertainment this summer, with only the ill-fated Southern Festival of Life even attempted. That event ended in three deaths, and a cancellation.

Money — the desire to make lots of it and the unwillingness to spend it — are the basic reasons behind the failure of the once-flourishing live rock entertainment scene. "They can't do it unless they spend the money," explained Lillian Roxon, author of The Rock Encyclopedia. "And they won't spend it. I think the result will be smaller, more local festivals."

ONE-NIGHT INDOOR festivals are indeed part of the new emergence. Arenas like Madison Square Garden are regularly filled for once-only performances, most recently for Stephen Stills and for the star-studded extravaganza with George Harrison, Ravi Shankar, Ringo Starr and Bob Dylan, all for the East Pakistani Bengla Des Relief Fund.

But these events, with rare exception, are no match for the small-auditorium concerts that were their predecessors. Sound quality and sightlines are diminished as the hall grows in size. Graham commented: "I deplore the exploitation of the gigantic hall concerts."

The Fillmore East staff often was praised for its efficiency, professionalism and creativity. The light show — a Fillmore innovation — was encouraged by Graham, and Joshua White, founder of the theater's original Joshua Light Show, openly acknowledges Graham's patronage as one of the reasons the new art form flourished as it did.

THE ELECTRIC CIRCUS, the other East Village music spot, was noted more for its environment than its music, although many major acts appeared in the three-story building, painted alternately black and in day-glo murals. Financial troubles were also cited as its main reason for shutting down.

But the end of the rock palace as a showcase for music does not signal the end of rock. In fact, says Jeff Samuels, former rock critic for Variety, and now on the staff of Warner Bros. Records, "Business is as good as ever, if not better."

"Even though financially things are bad in the country, people still like to spend money on entertainment. The present situation hits the live entertainment field much harder, because they've got a staff to pay and a place to maintain, along with high salaries for the groups to contend with. At a record company, you have a continuing operation where one good-selling album covers the cost of other slow ones."

THE NEED TO HEAR music will be satisfied, at home through an album or in a mass-audience one-night festival.

"There'll always be music," says Miss Roxon, reflecting at the Fillmore East closing night party. "Of course, the music scene is going through changes. But it always has, and it always will, as long as someone wants to play music and someone wants to hear it."

Burt Reynolds' Other Side

He's Really A Funny Man

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Burt Reynolds is a man on the move. His recent explosion of popularity that has giggly-faced girls and mature women, too, in flirtatious lines seeking his autograph is the byproduct of a natural combination of good looks and wit.

Reynolds' numerous television roles have succeeded in giving him a name. But his personal and talk show appearances have given him his identity. Burt Reynolds is naturally funny, and it must be nice for an actor to know he is liked for what he is and not whom he plays on TV.

"I know this is a fair weather thing," said the celebrity, currently starring at Arlington Park Theatre in "The Tender Trap."

"IT COULD BE over tomorrow. I know that too. But I'm still flattered. I really like people and I think it's terrific," he continued about his stage door followings. "It's nice to know it's because of you being you and not the parts you play."

"I used to do a play a summer, but I haven't been on live stage in the last seven years," he said. "I've been able to get back into the right comedy timing through my appearances on the talk shows."

Reynolds is quick in giving credit to the talk shows for the "show biz" doors that are now opening to him.

"This is the first time that I am being submitted to exciting things," he said. "No one knew I could even do comedy at all. It's usually a shock to people that I can come on so funny. They think they have discovered me after 13 years in the business. But the truth is, that I used to do a lot of comedy."

REYNOLDS WILL BE hosting the Johnny Carson Show for the second time Monday evening.

"Hosting the show was the longest 90 minutes of my life," he said looking back at his first time. "Why I'm doing it again, I don't know," he laughed. "I said 'yes' before I even thought about it."

Having appeared on almost all the shows as a guest, Reynolds enjoys working with Carson the most.

"Carson is marvelous," he said. "He picks on me a little bit and then I'm ready to nail him. He couldn't anticipate more what I want to do when I want to do it. As far as I'm concerned, he's the greatest guy in the world."

Yet his compliments do not extend to Dick Cavett. "Picking on him is like picking on one of the seven dwarfs. The audience sits there and boos."

A GRADUATE OF Florida State College where he was a star halfback, Reynolds originally started out to play professional football, having signed with the Baltimore Colts. However, a serious automobile accident prevented him from ever playing.

He studied acting for a time, did local live theater and landed a number of small parts in motion pictures and television.

"I entered show business as a stunt man," said Reynolds. "I've done really everything... one liners, two liners, rolling down stairs. I didn't think I would go into acting seriously until the series 'Hawk' opened."

Reynolds is best remembered now for his title role in the television series, "Dan August." Immediately before opening here, he finished up the picture, "Deliverance," in which he stars with Jon Voight.

WHAT ARE HIS future aspirations? "I would like to get in a position to handle movie scripts that don't have the fingerprints of either Donald Sutherland, Steve McQueen or Robert Redford all over them," he laughed. "Redford is locked into movies for the next three years," he continued. "He only picks the best."

Reynolds' home in Jupiter, Fla., a 130-acre ranch, is a retreat to which he tries to return after every engagement or commitment. When at home, he undergoes a rigid physical workout.

"I have a very strange physical program," he said. "Before working on a movie I'll undergo a crash program like training for the Olympics. I'll run three or four miles a day and work out in the gym at my house. I'll be in tremendous shape to begin a movie, but by the end of shooting it, I'm in terrible shape."

FOLLOWING NO SPECIAL diet, Reynolds admits to sometimes starving himself several days only to go wild and eat everything in sight over the weekend. "It usually balances out," he smiled.

But contrary to usual practice, there will be no time for Reynolds to shape up following his run at Arlington Park Theatre. Upon the completion of "The Tender Trap," Reynolds, after a guest appearance on "Laugh-In" and a couple weeks with "Hollywood Squares," will begin working on his next picture, "Fuzz," with Raquel Welch and Yul Brynner.

But, before Reynolds gets away, you have to ask him what kind of women he finds attractive, because that, probably above all else, is what female fans are most interested in anyhow.

"I LOOK FOR A sense of humor first in a woman," said Reynolds. "That really attracts me. I like a professional woman who is sure of herself but not sure of me... who looks like a lady but is not totally a lady in all departments."

What about women's liberation? "I just don't think about it at all. Women are underpaid and I totally agree that they should receive the same amount of money for the same amount of work. But while I believe in causes, I'm not much for marching up and down. I'm not sure what it even accomplishes. It's more a token attempt at grandstand play."

Van Johnson Next At Arlington

Van Johnson will star in Arlington Park Theatre's fourth production, "There's A Girl In My Soup," by Terence Frisby and co-starring Peter Pagan. Also being directed by Peter Pagan, the comedy will open Thursday, Sept. 23, and run four weeks through Sunday, Oct. 17.

"There's A Girl In My Soup" is a comedy about a newspaper food-and-wine connoisseur who dabbles in female delectations as well.

Following this comedy, Donald O'Connor will star in "The Seven Year

Itch," a play by George Axelrod. It deals with a man whose seven-year marriage is put to the true test when his wife spends a summer in the country and he finds himself living a bachelor existence in New York.

William Tregoe will direct "The Seven Year Itch." He is returning for his second time at the theater, having recently directed Ann Sothern and Ray Rayner in "Personal Appearance." The comedy will open Oct. 31 and play through Sunday, Nov. 14.

"The Tender Trap" with Burt Reynolds will continue through Sept. 19.

BURT REYNOLDS AND James Hampton discover an unexpected house guest, Joe Graco, following a wild party in a scene from "The Tender Trap," currently playing at Arlington Park Theatre. Reynolds stars in a comedy role in contrast to his recent part as Dan August.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Is there any way to get stamps apart after they have gotten wet and are stuck together? —Imogene Brewer

Stamps stuck together are one of life's minor frustrations. You can get them apart, but the stickum is gone and you have to use a dab of glue or cement. Anyway, just pour some boiling water into a clean coffee can, then spill it out so that the can is dry but hot. Put the stamps in and very swiftly you can separate them with no effort. Some readers have written to say that putting stuck-together stamps in the freezer will separate them. There must be something else to the trick. It hasn't worked for me.

Dear Dorothy: My grandchild painted a pretty picture for me — with red crayon on the painted wall of a bedroom. One can't get angry at such gestures, but it sure would be nice to get it off. How do I do it? —Mrs. Frederick Jarecki.

Red is the hardest color to get off — no matter what it's on. You might try trichloroethane or any of the strong liquid cleaners — especially the one which contains ammonia or the one that has a grease-cutting solvent in it. (Trichloroethane: Nonflammable Emergine (there are two kinds); the ammonia product: Ajax; the grease-cutting solvent product: Lestoil).

Dear Dorothy: Did you know that spraying the children's white tennis shoes with hair spray will keep the dirt and dust from collecting on them? —Julia G.

Never heard of this one but it sounds feasible — if you get enough spray on to make a seal on the shoes.

TIP TO BRIDES: If you and your guy are spaghetti buffs, you might like to know how good cooks keep the spaghetti in such long strands. When the water comes to a rolling boil, grab the bunch of spaghetti planned for use and push one end down into the water. As it softens, keep pressing until the whole lot is in the boiling water. It's always watched as good spaghetti shouldn't be permitted to get too soft. It's so much better in the "al dente" (chewy) stage.

Had some delectable potato salad recently and couldn't resist asking the hostess how she had made it. She had tried a new method — a mixture of French dressing, mayonnaise and sour cream — then had marinated the cubed potatoes in it before adding the rest of the ingredients. Delish!

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

NORMAN RICE stars in "The Paisley Convertible," a play which opened this week at the Country Club Theatre in Mount Prospect.

Next Tuesday the Cathedral Shelter, a member agency of Episcopal Charities, will hold a theater benefit at Mill Run Theatre. Appearing that night will be Robert Goulet and Carol Lawrence. Tickets, 666-3645.

Wayne Newton is giving a benefit performance for the Aid to Indigent Jockeys Sunday, Sept. 19, in the Arie Crown Theatre in McCormick Place. Curtain is 7:30 p.m. Tickets, 791-6500.

Bathe After Swim

When washing beach togs after a day in the water and sun, don't forget yourself. A swim is not a bath. That same salt, chlorine, sun lotion and perspiration that collects on your suit will clog the pores of your skin, produce blemishes and dull your hair if they're not washed away.

Sweet Talk

Cologne doused on a cotton ball makes an excellent cleaner for the telephone receiver. The cologne leaves the surface fragrant and shiny and the alcohol in it acts as an antiseptic, say homemaking consultants of National Family Opinion Inc., a consumer market research firm. (UPI)

'Low-Cost Housing Needed To Grow'

by SANDRA J. BROWNING

Low and moderate-income housing is a "requirement" for the growth of Arlington Heights, according to an unexpected stand taken by the president of the village's Chamber of Commerce.

Edward "Bud" Mills told members of a low and moderate-income housing study committee last week the attraction of more industry to the village and the availability of a wide cost range of housing are directly related.

Developments for low and moderate-income families will help to attract more industry and office buildings which will "help everyone's tax bills," the Chamber president said.

Mills' speech marked the first time the local group of businessmen have taken any public comments on the housing issue which has been boiling in Arlington Heights for almost 16 months.

The needs which are not being met presently in the village include housing for newly married couples, senior citizens and blue collar workers, Mills commented. Developments can be properly planned so that "we don't have shacks."

The housing is needed "if you want the workers to come in here and build up your industrial tax base," Mills said.

In answering a question, Mills said that housing is needed for not only moderate-income families but also low-income families.

Committee member Alice Harms, who is also on the Arlington Heights Village Board, said she knew the Chamber of Commerce was interested in a healthy economic attitude in the village and asked Mills if low and moderate-income housing might help some of the local businesses.

"It would probably help a great number of them," Mills said and then commented he didn't think the village has lost any business because of a lack of employees. "But we haven't gained many either," he added.

Committee member David Patterson asked if there wasn't enough housing available in areas around Arlington Heights for low and moderate-income housing.

Mills said the lack of housing close to where people work was not a "major" problem but availability of more housing would be helpful to present and future businesses.

Mills was one of about 15 representatives of Arlington Heights groups who spoke at last week's hearing called specifically to judge local attitudes towards the possibility of building low and moderate-income housing. The study committee was formed early this year to study the need for such housing and, if a need exists, recommend to the village board the best way to fulfill the need.

The committee includes members of the village board and plan commission. A deadline for the committee's report on the study of the housing issue has been set for Oct. 15.

In addition to Mills, a few other representatives of groups urged the building of low and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights. Included among the advocates was Jeannie Christopher, housing counselor for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

However, most of the other speakers in one way or another said their groups were opposed to low and moderate-income housing developments which might be built in the village.

"THESE TWO YOUNGSTERS joined in the fun last week three-day festival, held on the church grounds on end at St. John the Baptist Greek Orthodox Church's Dempster Street at the Tri-State Tollway in Des Plaines.

Grading Much Same Under Mod System

In only two subject areas — physical education and science — did students at Wheeling High School receive fewer "A" grades under a new modular scheduling system than under the traditional schedule.

In physical education, 21.1 per cent of all students received "A's" in the spring, 1970, traditional program, compared with 18.2 per cent in the spring, 1971, mod program.

In science, 13.5 per cent of all students received "A's" in the spring, 1970, traditional semester, compared with 11.7 per cent in the spring, 1971 mod system.

In all other subject areas, the percentage of "A" grades was higher under the mod system than the traditional.

"This is probably the most surprising thing to come from this report," researcher Donald Ring said. "Everyone was saying that the grades would be lower under modular scheduling. Instead there were more 'A's' in all but two areas."

IN ART, 16 PER CENT of the students received "A's" in the mod semester compared with 15.5 per cent under the traditional semester.

In business education, 11.4 per cent of the students received "A's" under the mod semester, while 6.6 per cent received "A's" under the traditional semester.

In English subjects, 18.5 per cent of Wheeling High students received "A's" in the mod semester, while 11.5 per cent did in the traditional semester.

In foreign languages, 19.7 per cent received "A's" in the mod semester, 15 per cent in the traditional semester.

In home economics, 25.4 per cent received "A's" in the mod semester, 13.2 per cent in the traditional semester.

IN INDUSTRIAL ARTS, the figures were 17 per cent "A's" in the mod semester, 12.2 per cent "A's" in the traditional semester.

In mathematics, the figures were 19.5 per cent "A's" under the mod system, 15.2 per cent "A's" in the traditional.

In music, 59.8 per cent of the students received "A's" under the mod system, and 47.1 per cent did under the traditional.

In social studies subjects, 14.1 per cent received "A's" in the mod system, 11.4 per cent in the traditional.

While the percentage of "A's" was generally higher, the percentage of failing grades under the mod system was also higher in all subject areas with the exception of foreign languages.

IN ART, THE percentage of failing grades was 19.1 per cent in the mod semester, 7.6 per cent in the traditional semester. In business education, the percentages were 8.1 per cent in the mod semester, 5.4 per cent in the traditional. In English they were 6.4 per cent in the mod semester, 3.9 in the traditional.

In foreign languages, the failing grade percentage was 5.1 in the mod semester, 5.2 in the traditional semester. In home economics, the failing percentages were 8.6 in the mod semester, and 7.6 in the traditional. In industrial arts, the failing percentage was 13.3 in the mod semester, and 8.5 in the traditional.

In mathematics 11.7 per cent received failing grades in the mod semester, 5.3 per cent in the traditional. In music, 1.4 per cent received failing grades in the mod system, while 7 per cent did in the traditional. In physical education, 8.6 per cent had failing grades in the mod semester, and 7.1 per cent did in the traditional.

In science, the percentage of failure was 9.8 in the mod semester and 5.1 per cent in the traditional semester. In social studies, the failure rate was 10 per cent in the mod semester, and 4.6 per cent in the traditional semester.

Coverage Costs 'Apparently Won't' Increase

Q. And A. On 'No-Fault' Insurance

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Many Illinois drivers have questions about the limited "no-fault" automobile insurance bill signed into law Thursday by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Here are some questions and answers about the new legislation, provided by the Illinois Department of Insurance and the Illinois Insurance Information Committee.

Q. Will the cost of my automobile insurance increase because of the extra benefits?

A. Apparently not, unless the policyholder elects to receive more than the minimum benefits required of the insurance companies by law. The IIC "knows of no company contemplating increasing rates" for the coverage, according to a spokesman.

Q. What will I have to do to get the new benefits?

A. Nothing. If you currently hold an automobile bodily injury liability policy, you will receive a letter after Jan. 1, 1972, informing you your coverage automatically has been extended to the minimum limits of the new "no-fault" law.

Q. What are those limits?

A. The insurance company will pay within 30 days up to $2,000 to each person injured in a motor vehicle accident for "all reasonable" medical expenses. In addition, it will pay 86 per cent of weekly wages, up to $150 a week, for a period up to a year, for lost income, plus up to $12 per day for "necessary and reasonable expenses" for services normally provided by the injured person.

Q. What if treatment of injuries costs more than those limits?

A. There are two possibilities. First, you will be offered, at the time the "no-fault" provision is added to your policy, the opportunity to purchase extended coverage — for higher amounts and for an additional period up to five years. Second, you retain the right to sue for general damages if injury is caused by another person's negligence.

Q. Is there any limit to the number of people who can claim "no-fault" benefits as a result of one accident?

A. No. Any number of people can claim benefits.

Q. How would I receive benefits under the new plan?

A. If injured while riding in or driving an insured car, you would receive benefits from the company which wrote that insurance policy. If injured as a pedestrian, you would receive benefits from the company insuring the automobile involved.

Q. What if I am injured by a vehicle not insured under the Illinois Plan?

A. You would receive payment from the company which insures your automobile.

Q. Does this mean my company would be "stuck" with paying my medical expenses even if I was not "at fault" in the accident?

A. No. If you were not at fault, your insurance company can recover the benefits it pays you from the insurance company of the person who was "at fault." Disputes between companies thus will be settled after you have received payment and will be handled by binding arbitration outside the court system.

Q. How about property damage?

A. The "Illinois Plan" does not specifically cover property damage. The collision protection of current policies will remain in force. However, the new law does provide that claims for property damage in an amount less than $3,000 may be processed under the arbitration procedure of the new law, relieving a plaintiff of the expense of filing a court suit.

Q. What should I do differently under the new plan if I am involved in an accident?

A. At the time of the accident, you should do exactly what you have always done — exchange information with the other party, including name, address, license numbers and so forth. The you would present your claim to your insurance company.

No-Fault Set For Jan. 1

The property-casualty industry in Illinois announced that it will make basic no-fault injury coverages effective on all automobile liability policies in this state on next New Year's Day rather than await policy renewal dates as permitted under the new Illinois Reparations Law.

An All-Industry Illinois Insurance Information Committee (IIC), speaking for the industry, said that the basic no-fault personal injury coverage is going to be added to existing automobile liability policies.

The industry pledged "its all-out efforts to make the Illinois limited 'no-fault' insurance plan work as a national model as Gov. Ogilvie signed the bill, SB 970, into law." Provisions of the new statute become effective January 1, 1972. The majority of the industry serving this state had given its active support to the Illinois reparations plan in the long legislative struggle that preceded its enactment by the 77th General Assembly.

Thomas F. Reynolds, chairman of the IIC, said that an all-industry committee appointed by Insurance Director James Baylor has been working on implementation of the reparations plan. Reynolds said the committee has agreed:

1—Although the law specified that the new basic injury coverages shall be added to policies written and renewed on or after Jan. 1, the companies have agreed to cooperate by adding the coverage on all policies on the first effective day. This basic protection will automatically apply to all existing liability policies on Jan. 1 and holders of standard auto injury liability policies will be formally advised of the broadened protection by their carriers.

2—Simultaneously, companies doing business in Illinois will inform policyholders that on Jan. 1, 1972, and thereafter they will write extended automobile injury coverage on a no-fault basis with limits running up to $50,000-$100,000 over a five-year protection period. This broadened coverage which will entail an extra premium may be accepted or rejected at the policyholder's option.

3—The basic coverage in which a driver's own company pays without determining who is at fault in an accident, provides medical or funeral expenses immediately up to $2,000, income replacement of 86 per cent of salary up to $150 per week for 52 weeks and expense reimbursement up to $12 per day also for 52 weeks to hire someone to perform services of an injured person, such as a wife. This broadened coverage, applying to every injury liability policy, is apparently going to be "rolled on" without extra cost on New Year's Day.

"THE ILLINOIS Insurance Information Committee knows of no company contemplating increasing rates for this broad addition to policies," Reynolds said. "Failure of the Assembly to enact a continuation of the Illinois competitive ratemaking statute last June has suspended normal activities of rate advisory services, and it is currently impossible to know the intentions of every one of the 152 companies writing private passenger coverage in Illinois. The industry hopes that the legislature will provide it with standard competitive ratemaking tools when it reconvenes in October."

"But the industry has committed itself to make the Illinois Plan work well and every projection indicates that the basic broadened coverage can and will be provided in conjunction with bodily injury policies without increasing the cost of that form of protection."

The IIC chairman noted that the "no-fault" coverage both in the basic protection and optional extended coverage applies to bodily injury only. Claims for automobile property damage will be handled as before through normal collision policies, he said.

"Collision coverage (the standard $50 or $100 deductibles familiar to all drivers) has historically been written on a no-fault basis," Reynolds said. "Drivers for years have collected damages from their own companies for property damage without determination of fault under this coverage."

The information committee emphasized the complex problems entailed in launching limited no-fault personal injury insurance in Illinois.

"In effect, an entire multi-billion dollar industry on Jan. 1, will be cut loose from the records and projections of its actuarial experience and will be afloat in Illinois in claims and loss areas on which it has no statistical experience to predict its immediate future," Reynolds said.

"DESPITE THOSE unknown quantities, the companies, so far, as we can ascertain, are prepared make the broad basic coverage available without a price increase for the injury liability package," he said.

Golf Clubs Stolen

A set of golf clubs valued at $350 was reported stolen from a car parked at a Des Plaines bowling alley sometime Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

Des Plaines police said the golf clubs and bag were taken from the trunk of an auto owned by William Rogers of 5631 Warwick St., Chicago.

Police said the trunk lock of the auto was punched out while the car was parked at the Forest-View Lanes, 2930 Des Plaines Ave.

Mod Schedule Results In

More students received failing grades under a Wheeling High School modular scheduling program than under the traditional scheduling program. However, more students have also received "A's" under the new system.

And with better students getting higher marks and poorer students getting lower ones, average grades for the entire student body stayed at the same level for both the old and new systems.

These are the results of research on the mod vs. the traditional scheduling system conducted by Donald Ring, Ring, formerly head of the math-science department at Wheeling High, was appointed director of research for High School Dist. 214 this summer.

In his recently-completed report, Ring compared the grades received by all Wheeling High School students during the spring, 1971, semester to the grades received in the spring, 1970 semester. The modular schedule was in effect during the spring, 1971 semester, while the traditional schedule was used in the spring, 1970 semester.

UNDER WHEELING High's mod system during the 1970-71 school year, the school day was divided into 20 modules, each 15 minutes long. Classes met from one to six times during a six-day cycle.

Classes were also of varying length, depending on the type of course. Additional feature of the mod system was that much of the students' time, approximately 40 per cent, was unscheduled. He could spend the time in the library, working on an individual project, or socializing in the cafeteria with friends.

Ring concluded that the overall achievement of students under the mod scheduling system was equal to achievement under the traditional system. The average grade under both systems was 3.3 on a five-point scale, with "A" having a value of five points, "B" a value of four points, "C" a value of three points, "D" a value of two points and "F" a value of one point on the scale.

"Generally students who usually did well in school under the traditional system did even better under the modular system, while students who generally did poorly under the traditional system did worse under the modular system," Ring said.

Ring said he feels that extra use of resource rooms and the greater availability of teachers for individual help under the mod system contributed to the higher grades.

THE GREAT number of failing grades resulted from the difficulty some students had in putting their unscheduled time to good use, Ring said.

Ring said he plans no follow-up report to his initial research on modular scheduling, but that the Wheeling High staff may do follow-up investigations.

"If the problems with the lower achieving students could be solved, then I think grades would go higher still under the modular system," Ring said.

The modular scheduling program will be modified during the upcoming school year at Wheeling High. The school day will be divided into 16 mods, each 26 minutes long. Each class will meet from two to four mods each day of a six-day cycle.

In addition, students will have less unscheduled time during the school day.

Ladies' Bowling Gets Rolling

The Wednesday morning ladies bowling league of the Northwest Suburban YMCA got "rolling" this week at Sim's Bowl, 1555 Ellsworth St., Des Plaines. Officers of the league are: Carol Citti, president; Ruth Blietz, vice president; Bernice Sabin, secretary-treasurer; and Arlene Daniels, sergeant-at-arms.

Women interested in joining the league as permanent or substitute bowlers are invited to contact either the YMCA office 296-3376 or Mrs. Citti 296-7231.

Bruning Plant Relocated Here

Some 200 employees of the Bruning Division of the Addressograph Multigraph Corp. (AM Corp.) will be moved from Mount Prospect to new office and laboratory facilities in Des Plaines.

The Bruning Division this week announced its plans to move its headquarters from 1800 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect, to 1555 Times Dr., Des Plaines. They hope to complete the move by Oct. 1.

Currently, Bruning headquarters are sharing facilities in Mount Prospect with the AM Corp. Multigraphics Division. The Bruning Division was the original resident of the Central Road facilities, beginning in early 1968.

THE MOVE to the new Des Plaines facility is another step in the AM Corp. program of decentralization. The Mount Prospect facility, after Oct. 1, will be used exclusively by the Multigraphics Division.

This will mean, a spokesman said, that at least an equal number of employees will be transferred from Cleveland to the Mount Prospect facility. "It will probably be more but the number is flexible and changing every day at this time," he said.

Bruning manufactures reproduction equipment, including copying machines, primarily for the engineering and architectural markets. In addition, the division will concentrate on the development of micrographics equipment. Bruning has manufacturing plants in City of Industry, Calif., Guilford, Conn. and Teterboro, N.J.

The Lighter Side

Ruthie's Hotpants Noncommittal

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a new book called "Figleafing Through History," clothing is classified as an important medium of communication.

According to its thesis, the way people dress tells you more about them than you could learn from seeing them naked.

Well, sure. Everybody knows nudity is unrevealing. Hardly anything is more uninformative than an expanse of blank skin. This is the reason so many summer vacations end up on the rocks.

A good example is Sidney Barnowl, a bachelor friend of mine who took up with a girl named Ruthie while vacationing at the beach this summer.

"I'm in love with her," Sidney told me upon his return.

"DON'T BE silly, Sidney," I replied. "You don't know anything about the girl. You've only seen her in a bikini."

But Sidney was badly smitten and during his first week at home he took Ruthie out on a couple of dates. Both times she wore hot pants, which are pretty noncommittal.

"I have a feeling that Ruthie is keeping something from me," Sidney said when I asked how the affair was going. "There seems to be a wall of secrecy between us. However, this gives her an aura of mystery that is both intriguing and challenging."

On their third date, when Ruthie again wore hot pants, Sidney remarked that he bet she would look good in slacks.

"I like you, Sidney," Ruthie said, "but I don't feel secure enough in our relationship to go out with you in slacks. We aren't ready to communicate on such intimate terms."

ON THEIR fourth date, however, Ruthie wore a mini miniskirt, so Sidney figured he was making progress.

"That mini-skirt tells me she is on the verge of getting personal," Sidney confided.

On their fifth date dimer at her apartment, Ruthie met Sidney at the door in a flimsy negligee. But after one glass of champagne, she said "Pardon me while I slip into something more communicative."

Presently she emerged in a Mother Hubbard. "Now you know the real me," she said. Later that evening they agreed not to see each other again. Sidney said he happened to look inside her clothes closet and discovered that they had a serious personality clash.

Academy Graduate

Two Des Plaines youths graduated from St. John's Military Academy in Delafield, Wis., last month with top honors. Receiving their diplomas from Headmaster William I. West were Cadet Lt. Colonel Robert E. Grossman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Grossman, 929 Timothy Lane, and Cadet Lt. Gary L. Shields, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Shields, 1121-4th Ave.

At graduation exercises Grossman received the highest school honor, the Delafield Medal, after what school officials described as one of the top cadet careers in the 87 year history of the Academy. He has received an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

Shields' father and older brother, Kenneth are both alumni of St. John's. Shields plans to enter Bradley University in the fall.

Motorcycle Spectacular Revving At Arlington Park

by JIM COOK

Wednesday was just a dry run with only four or five machines running in geared-down "feel-it-out" fashion. Tonight will be different. With $15,000 at stake, nothing will be held back.

The scene will be Arlington Park as it adjusts from a horse bettor's paradise to a motorcycle bonanza in a unique feature of nine power-packed, dirt-expelling races.

The program will get underway at 8 p.m. and will include the featured Yamaha Gold Cup with a $4,000 first-prize price tag, the dramatic cycle-jumping exhibitions of Iowa's Steve Droste, the American Motorcycle Association's 1970 Grand National Champion, Gene Romero and the famed Medinah Precision Motorcycle Drill Team.

Wednesday's preliminary display by a handful of eager competitors revealed exactly what kind of entertainment will be on hand tonight. The young daredevils covered the one and one-eighth mile sand-clay track with cruising speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

The only protection and self-assurance the riders have from being covered by a 400-pound iron blanket is a thin steel plate attached to their boot which steadies them through the finely graded banked turns at the culmination of both straightaways.

Once through the turns, the "Iron Horse Derby" jockeys unleash the throttles and bend prone against the handle bars to insure maximum speed against wind resistance.

Having completed the oval excursion a couple of times, Palatine entrant John Lemme drew these conclusions:

"It's a good course with a tricky dip going into the third turn. I believe they'll have to water the track down quite frequently to settle some of the dust. You can go into the turns wide open, but with the loose traction, you don't go anywhere until you straighten up again. I still have to find tires that will grip properly, maybe something cut or with spikes."

All the bikes are modified with frame and engine conversions almost a necessity. The mile-plus circuit will accommodate 750 cc bikes and speeds up to 130 miles per hour. Street machines wouldn't stand a chance.

The starting of each race may supply the most spectacular highlights of the evening. Traditionally, the races are lined up handlebar-to-handlebar, awaiting the green flag. Tonight, however, for probably the first time in the history of the sport, the riders will pop their clutches from inside the confines of the standard starting gates used by the thoroughbreds.

Not only will it be hard to anticipate each other's moves, but occasionally, the front wheel lifts completely off the ground during initial acceleration as the potent engines begin delivering their awesome power.

A frequent spill can almost be expected, especially when a near-ton of steel converges at the slick first turn. Drivers are somewhat protected from surface aspraps by their leather head-toe suits and a mandatory helmet with safety shield to protect the face. It's also an instant steam bath during the heat of the action as pounds literally melt away.

The night-racing aspect offers another challenge for the touring riders who are generally accustomed to racing under Mother Nature's lights. No problems are foreseen, however, as Arlington's night racing lights will illuminate the entire track and pit areas.

The one-night spectacular promises to introduce a new breed of sport into the Northwest suburbs. The trials and shrills of blaring, exploding engines coupled with the skill and precision control by the outstanding riders is a sight to see—a very, very fast sight to see.

Tickets are still available at all Chicago area Ticketron outlets, stores and the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Warriors Open At Crystal Lake

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Saturday's Crystal Lake Invitational begins a long, stiff test for Maine West's cross country team in 1971.

The Crystal Lake meet, which starts at 9:30 a.m., will be one of a string of rugged meets for the Warriors on a schedule which includes the Center Meet, the Waukegan Invitational, the Libertyville Invitational, duals with Conant, Fremd, Forest View and Elk Grove and a Central Suburban League slate which will be tougher than last year.

"We had a real good team last year," said coach Bill Barringer. "We had a great team. You can not expect this year's team to be as good as last year's, but it will be a good one, anyway."

The Warriors posted an 11-9 dual meet record last year, won the Center meet and were second in the Crystal Lake Invitational and the Libertyville Invitational. Included in the season were a Central Suburban League dual meet championship, the CSL overall meet title and a finish in the top three in the district.

Most of the stars from last year's contingent are gone but there is talent returning.

Kevin Wright, a letter winner, was the top Warrior in a time trial last week and should be near the front in most races against other prep foes. Dean Kamin, who broke into the top seven on occasion last season, is another returning letter bearer.

Other varsity lettermen are Dan Long, Steve Farmer, Jon Richards and Tony Winder.

Winder finished second in the Central Suburban League sophomore meet last October. Chip Barbour was fourth in that meet, Scott Sedlack sixth and Brad Frost 14th.

Barringer hopes to gain his team's depth with these underclassmen this fall.

The Central Suburban League will be vastly improved according to the Warrior coach. Maine South, which beat Maine West in a sophomore dual meet last year, has a young team but looks solid on paper. Niles West and New Trier West also loom as possible title threats.

"You'd have to say the conference is very balanced and very equal this year," Barringer said. "It will be much improved over last year."

Bill Barringer

How does Barringer view his team's position in the league?

"We'll have to be respected," he said. "And I'm sure we will. Everyone should be gunning for us after the season we had last year."

WHAT CAN BE DONE?

Dear Sirs:
Everyone says that the Cubs have to make changes to be a contender next year. But after looking over their roster, who are the Cubs going to trade and what can they get in return?

It seems that any trade that the Cubs could make would hurt them in some positions and help them in others. What good would that be?

Stan Church
Buffalo Grove

Dear Sirs:
You guys seem to have all the answers. All you've done is knock the Cubs. Now, how about some constructive words.

If the Cubs are going to help themselves only by trades like you say, what do you have in mind? If you're so smart, you make a pennant winner.

Name Withheld By Request
Elk Grove

Dear Sirs:
It would hardly be the same with players like Santo, Kessinger, Hundley, Williams and others gone from Wrigley Field.

But since it looks like the Cubs are not going to win a pennant, anyway, I guess the trades have to be made. I'd rather see the Cubs try to win the pennant with new faces rather than trying to stay out of fourth place with the same players we have now even though many of them are my favorites.

Patty Berglund
Des Plaines

The first move, as we have mentioned countless times on these pages, is that Leo Durocher has to go.

Everyone says that the Cubs have little talent in Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League yet Tacoma manager Whitey Lockman has the club in first place. Therefore, Whitey Lockman must be a fine manager. We suggest dumping Leo in favor of Lockman for manager.

Though many of the Cubs are heroes to many, changes have to be made and the familiar faces have to be traded — but not without much in return. We suggest:

Trade One — Ken Holtzman for Pittsburgh's Dave Cash. The Pirates do not need both Cash and Reame Stenmet at second base and could easily part with one of them. Holtzman, who has had his problems in Chicago, could find new life in Pittsburgh.

Trade Two: Ron Santo for San Diego's Dave Roberts and Rich Severinsen. Roberts, a lefty, has a 2.04 ERA and Severinsen has been an able relief pitcher. Santo could become expendable because Dave Cash can play third base while Glen Beckert remains at second.

Trade Three — Jim Hickman and Joe Decker and/or Jim Colborn for Boston's Billy Conigliaro. Conigliaro dislikes the Sox management and vice versa. He is a very able outfielder who can hit 230 and 20 homers. Hickman could hit 30 homers in a suitable park like Fenway. Decker and Colborn would help a depleted Boston mound staff.

Trade Four: Bill Hands, Johnny Callison, Juan Pizarro and Chris Callison for Los Angeles' Bill Singer and Duke Sims. Hands and Singer both need new beginnings in new places. Sims would help the Cubs if Randy Hundley cannot come back. The Dodgers are just a couple of players from a pennant and could use a veteran outfielder such as Callison and a veteran pitcher such as Pizarro. Callison would be a throw-in as a backup catcher for the Dodgers.

If these trades were made the Cubs would have Pepton at first base, Beckert at second, Kessinger at short, Cash at third, Williams in left, Conigliaro in center, James and Davis platooned in right and Sims and Hundley behind the plate.

For a pitching staff there would be Jenkins, Roberts, Singer, Pappas and Bart Hosken for starters and Severinsen, Newman (if used properly — as Lockman would) and Regan in the bullpen.

A lineup could have Davis or James leading off, Cash batting second, Beckert third (where he should have been all of 1971), Williams fourth, Pepton fifth, Conigliaro sixth, Sims or Hundley seventh, Kessinger eighth and the pitcher ninth.

Moves such as these could pull the Cubs closer than a dozen games out of first place as they are these days.

STAY HOME CUBBIE FANS

Dear Sirs:
Hey! Hey! Holy Mackerel, the Pirates and Cardinals and Mets are on their way!

OK, Cubbie fans, now is your chance to show that you want some changes made, that you're tired of always getting close and then collapsing.

Stay away during the home stand throughout September. Tell P.K. Wrigley you want a new look. You know if you keep showing up and filling the park, he'll be satisfied. Stay home instead.

Don't go to the upcoming series with the Cardinals and Pirates. Maybe those empty seats will shake up the old men running this decaying organization.

PHILADELPHIA IS 700 miles from Chicago.

Therefore, if Philadelphia's high schools have had to dispose of all sports due to a lack of funds, who cares in Chicago and its surrounding area?

Those persons who believe in the ideals, goals and purposes of high school athletics — those persons EVERYWHERE — should care that Philadelphia has lost its sports programs.

Money is tight everywhere and it is hard to imagine that it is anywhere tighter than in school budgets. Philadelphia is the first big city forced to abandon sports. Others may — yes, will — follow.

Not only have sports been affected, but also other extracurricular activities such as band, chorus, arts and crafts, skilled trades, school newspapers and school yearbooks have felt the money pinch in Philadelphia. All have been cut out at least partially and, in most cases, completely in Philadelphia.

The same could happen in Chicago.

And its suburbs.

Chicago's high schools have cut back each year in its sports budgets. There are fewer coaches and less equipment each year in the city because the school board, which has a lack of funds, has been forced to cut back.

At Riverside-Brookfield High School — a high school in an average suburban community — the sports programs have been cut back in many areas.

Other high school districts in the suburbs have been forced to cut its sports budget in a number of ways.

The tight money pinch is gripping tighter and over a greater area than ever before. And when money is tight, sports, band, art and other extracurricular activities are the first to feel it.

This is the way it should be. If there is a money pinch (and there is). After all, schools exist for the primary purpose of educating the nation's youth. Extracurricular activities are exactly that — extra.

Ironically, there should be no cutback in band, no cutback in art, no cutback in sports. There should be no money pinch whatsoever.

Money, plenty of money, would be available not only to schools, but to the poor, the sick, the elderly, the rotting internal cities — EVERYTHING AND EVERYBODY — if the United States Defense Department had not wasted money so extravagantly over the past two decades.

Take the case of the Nike-X missile system. In the mid-1950's the system had its beginnings. After spending $30 billion, the Pentagon decided that the Nike-X System was obsolete before it was even completed. Most of the system has been scrapped.

The Pentagon spent $2 billion on the F-111 fighter plane. It took $2 billion to discover that the plane would be too heavy for aircraft carriers and would have to be scrapped.

The Pentagon spent $3 billion in missiles in the Terrier, Tartar and Talos systems. The series had nothing but failures and had to be scrapped.

The Pentagon has spent $1 billion on the MBT Sheridan tank — and not a single tank has been built yet.

The Pentagon spent $1 billion on Atlas and Titan I missiles and then scrapped the programs.

The Pentagon exceeded costs for other assorted missiles, bombers, fighter planes, destroyers and the like which totaled another $14 billion.

Add it all up and it comes to around $50 billion.

Now all of this may sound like a bunch of facts and figures which are, understandably, incomprehensible. It can be understood — disturbingly so — when you view $50 billion in this light:

If Philadelphia had $50 billion to spend, it could run its high school sports programs (at the estimated cost of $770,000 per year) for the next 65,000 years!

Of course, this is absurd. I believe in looking ahead, but not for the next 65,000 years.

But, look at $50 billion in this vein:

If every high school in the nation — EVERY high school — had a $50 billion bill from which to run their sports programs, every high school could continue to have sports, band, art, chorus, etc., for the next 265 years!

Of course, this money (if it had not been wasted) could have been disbursed to the poor, the sick, the old, the cancer fund, the muscular dystrophy fund, the fight against birth defects fund and whatever else, including the high schools. The money could even have been used to give taxpayers a break for the next few years.

It costs the United States $28 billion per year to fight the war in Southeast Asia. That breaks down to somewhere around $70 million per day, $3 million per hour and $50,000 per second.

If the United States would stop the spending on the war for just 15 minutes and 15 seconds — about the time it takes one to shower and shave in the morning — Philadelphia's school board could receive enough money to have sports in the high schools this year. For a mere 15 minutes of inactivity in the war, 59,000 high school students in Philadelphia could relish all of the benefits that sports have to offer.

Of course, the $50 billion is long gone and is already wasted. It does not seem that the spending on the war is going to stop for 15 minutes, in time to save Philadelphia's sports.

It makes you stop and wonder about this country's priorities — that this nation can spend all of that money for the Vietnamese, yet cannot set aside a very small portion of the money for 59,000 of its own youth.

If the waste spending does not end, it could happen in your children's time — or, at least, your grandchildren's — that high school athletics could be a thing of the past.

If that should happen, you can take the youth to a local military base and say:

"See that tank, son. It's because of that tank that you can't play football this year."

"But the tank doesn't even run, Dad."

"Yeah, son, but it's a nice looking tank, isn't it?"

Announce Fishing Winners

The fishing contest in Labor Day activities at Lake Opoka was divided into two parts: the person with the largest fish, and the one catching the most fish.

Mike Hardman was the winner of the largest fish with a catch of a 14-inch bass. Other winners were Bill O'Toole, and Kevin Fisher. The winner of the most number of fish caught was Mike Olson, with a total of 36 fish. Pat Frolick was second, and Bill O'Toole third.

PWCTL Opens

The Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League season will open Saturday at Rolling Meadows Bowl at 8 p.m.

Among the local bowlers in the league, which brings together some of the best scratch bowlers in the area, are Marge Lidenberg and Lee Winski of the Franklin-Weber Pontiac squad, Isabel Kool and Marlin Plotekhardt of L-Tran Engineering and Peggy Harris and Jeanne Christensen of Kelle Office Supplies. All of the above mentioned bowlers are from Des Plaines.

Des Plaines Lanes, a local bowling house, will sponsor a team in the eight-team league this season.

The Commissioners Cup Golf Tournament drew the greatest number of participants as 115 men competed in their contest and 18 women in theirs.

In this tournament prizes were awarded to the person with the lowest score, lowest number of putts, and the person coming closest to the pin on the 18th hole.

In the men's event, Gene Zuccarini turned in a score of 49, 5 under par, to win low score. Zuccarini also won the same event in 1964 with 52. Steve Kisten finished second with a 54, and there was a tie for third between John Tennant and Jim Hurlbutt with 55's. Ed Bouchee won first prize in the lowest number of putts recording only 24 putts for the 18 hole course. Closest to the pin was won by George Olen with a very good tee shot which put him 3'4" from the pin.

Darlene Goslee was the first place winner of low score in the women's contest. Mrs. Goslee also won the event in 1969. Mrs. Goslee's score was 61. The other two top finishers were Jennie Teruggi and Eleanor O'Shaughnessy who both shot 67s. Mary Interante used only 29 putts in her round to win the lowest number of putts event. Mrs. Vivian Dobbelaere won closest to the pin award when her ball landed on six feet from the pin.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My husband is on a lactose-free diet. He suffers from chronic diarrhea. Because of this, he has eliminated all foods with milk and also eats only brown bread. Despite this, he still has the old upset because we are not sure what foods contain lactose. Could you prescribe a diet or could we obtain a list of lactose-free foods? Does powdered milk contain lactose?

Dear Reader — This is a good time to clarify this problem. There are a number of people who cannot digest lactose. Lactose is a type of sugar that is found in milk (formed by lactation). The tissue in the breast forms a double sugar which we call a "disaccharide." This double molecule has to be broken up in the intestine to be absorbed. An enzyme called "lactase" makes this possible. If this enzyme is lacking, taking a small amount of lactose will result in diarrhea, expelling the disaccharide with lactic acid. Now, I must point out that rarely some people also have an intolerance to other double sugars, like sucrose (common household sugar) and quite rarely maltose. These conditions are caused by lack of an appropriate enzyme in the intestine also. Lactose intolerance is by far the most common defect.

Lactose is a milk product. It is broken down by "fermentation" or the souring of milk. This means that cheese and buttermilk made from soured milk does not contain lactose. Unless the milk has soured, it will contain lactose — thus in answer to your question, powdered milk does contain lactose.

If you stick to cheese (and I usually recommend uncreamed cottage cheese) or soured milk, you should be able to eat anything else (not made of sweet milk or sweet milk products,) provided that lactose intolerance is the only problem. This means you cannot eat bakery products, including brown bread, if they are made with milk. You should be able to eat vegetables, fruit, fish, cereals, but not with any products made from sweet milk.

FOR THOSE RARE individuals who have an intolerance to sucrose, you need to go a bit farther. You can usually substitute honey for household sugar since it is made up of monosaccharides (one molecule sugars, glucose and fructose).

A number of fruits and vegetables contain sucrose which requires an enzyme action for absorption from the intestine. This has given rise to the thought that honey in some way is better than sugar. This appears to be true only for those rare individuals without the appropriate enzyme in the intestine to split common sugar into its two simple molecules.

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, Wednesday, Aug. 18, 1971

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite President Nixon's order raising import duties, the price of a foreign car is expected to decline slightly, according to an explanation issued Tuesday by the Treasury.

Mr. Nixon announced Sunday that a 10-per cent tariff would be applied to all imported products not exempt by law from duties or covered by statutory quota restrictions.

But since a 3.5-per cent duty already was being charged on foreign cars, the actual increase will be only 6.5 per cent, the Treasury said.

Moreover, Congress is expected to approve Mr. Nixon's request to repeal the 7-per cent excise tax on all cars.

This leaves a difference of one-half of 1 per cent in theoretical savings for the buyer of a foreign car, but the retail dealer is expected to take some of that for an added profit.

Ogilvie Approves Measures For Nursing Home Patients

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has approved legislation (Senate Bill 1014) governing the Department of Mental Health in transferring patients to nursing homes, sheltered care homes or homes for the aged.

The legislation permits the supervisor of the hospital to determine whether patients require further hospitalization and can live independently in the community, or under the supervision of responsible relatives, or require personal care with a "suitable family home or other licensed facility approved by the department."

Patients eligible for transfer are those whose behavior is similar to persons already living in the nursing homes. Persons requiring additional care are to be placed "only in specialized residential care facilities which meet department standards, including restricted admission policy special staffing and programming for social and vocational rehabilitation," in addition to the licensing requirements.

Patients in aftercare facilities must be visited by a representative of the Department of Mental Health once a month, the bill provides, and must be removed immediately if they are being improperly cared for.

THE GOVERNOR also approved

HB328, adding a representative of the County Nursing Home Association of Illinois and a representative of the Sheltered Care Home Association of Illinois to the advisory council on nursing homes, sheltered care homes and homes for the aged. The bill deletes the representative from the Illinois Association of Supervisors and County Commissioners, so that the advisory council now consists of 12 members.

The governor also approved SB 539, providing full retirement benefits to state employees retiring after 35 years of service, regardless of their age, and SB 958, permitting the Department of Revenue to cancel unenforceable debts after ten years. The action must be reported to the auditor general.

Other bills signed by the governor are:

—SB 262, permits dentists to give emergency treatment to minors in need of assistance without first obtaining parental consent if the dentist feels that harm may be done to the patient's health before consent can be gotten.

—HB 880, relieves a person from paying a service charge on a revolving credit account should the lender fail to respond to his billing inquiry within 30 days.

—HB 1124, permits out of state physicians to sign Illinois death certificates.

—HB 1505, authorizes conservation districts to issue and sell 7 per cent bonds to pay for recreational facilities.

—HB 1506, allows conservation districts to lease land and facilities to private individuals for development and maintenance as recreational facilities. In any lease of land prior to this amendment, titles to structures on the leased land which expire will be vested in the conservation district.

HB 1517, amends the Election Code to provide that the board of election commissioners may designate places of registration; such places will not remain open at any time before Tuesday, four weeks prior to the election.

—HB 1637, exempts veterinary hospitals and clinics operated by licensed veterinarians from regulation as a pet shop. It also sets strict deadline dates for the renewal of a pet shop and dog dealer licenses, and provide for increased fees for original and renewal licenses.

—HB 1841, creates the International Trade and Port Promotion Advisory Committee in the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development to supersede four existing advisory committees. It also extends authority of the department to promote seaports to include water ports and existing airport facilities.

—HB 1859, amends an act in relation to oil, gas and other resources by increasing the requirement for blanket bonds from $2,500 to $10,000.

—HB 2427, permits the sale of bonds for dumping and garbage disposal. Interest rates may not exceed 8 per cent.

—HB 2581, increases the period during which a public building commission may lease its property from 20 to 40 years.

—HB 2057, amends the Illinois Insurance Code to make changes in language for the rescheduling of examinations for agents' and brokers' licenses from not more than twice in any fiscal year to not more than twice in any 12 month period. It also raises the examination and rescheduling fee.

—HB 2981, deletes reference to magistrates in the Illinois Governmental Ethics Act.

To date the governor has approved 1,344 bills, vetoed 72, vetoed in part five, reduced appropriations in six, reduced appropriations and vetoed in part four and returned 13 bills.

Only One Bus Company Will Provide Woodfield Service

No public transportation to Woodfield will be available in the foreseeable future, except Schaumburg Transportation Co. (STC) buses now running in Schaumburg Township.

Woodfield, the new 2 million square foot retail center at Rtes. 53 and 58 now has an agreement with STC for a full bus schedule in Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and parts of Roselle, provided for shoppers and employees.

The buses are running on a trial basis and if it works out STC may expand its service. At present there are no plans to go to Arlington Heights or the more distant suburbs, a Woodfield spokesman said.

A bus run to the Chicago and North Western Ry. station in Palatine from the Schaumburg area was discontinued in July because of a lack of passengers, said Del Fiene, of STC.

"We'll consider running it again when we get the local buses filled," he added.

United Motor Coach Co. of Des Plaines doesn't offer any bus service to Woodfield and doesn't plan to offer any, said Elmer Schuennann, vice president and general manager.

Former routes to both Randhurst in Mount Prospect and Old Orchard in Skokie were discontinued because of lack of riders, he added.

One of the insoluble problems for those who use forcing single jump raises is how to handle the jump from one to three in a minor suit. If the user is a writer he says the raise is forcing but is careful to avoid giving any example or specifying whether the bid is a one-round force or a game force.

It is so much easier to use the single jump as a strong invitation and let the opener decide whether to go on.

South opens one club in line with the recognized principle that with 4-3-3-3 distribution you should open one club rather than one spade. North gives a limit jump raise to three clubs.

With 15 high-card points South feels justified in trying three no-trump. He knows that no guarantee goes with that contract but if you wait for guarantees you won't do well in bridge.

South wins the diamond lead in his own hand and has no trouble collecting nine tricks. In fact he will probably come up with 10.

If North and South are using forcing raises, North has no way to respond to the club opening. Two clubs is an underbid — a forcing three clubs an overbid.

If he takes the high road and does bid three clubs he gets to the right spot. If he just bids two clubs a game has been thrown out the window.

While the popular "All in the Family" may tell it like it really is, too many other family-situation programs sugarcoat household life so much that any similarity to our real life family routine is purely coincidental.

There are some programs of this vein, however, that invoke a real feeling of association with one's real life. Perhaps the best example that most of us can "put ourselves into" is "The Courtship of Eddie's Father," which returns for its third year on Wednesday nights.

Every father in this country isn't a magazine editor whose widowed life has left him with a nine-year-old son. But most fathers, I would suspect, can relate to the situations in "Courtship" that comes across with the school boy innocence portrayed by Brandon Cruz.

Cruz (Eddie) simply digs his father, played by Bill Bixby, and the feeling is really mutual. They don't just eat together or play in the back yard occasionally together. They have fun together, in a variety of ways.

Maybe the show's popularity stems from the fact that most persons—mothers, daughters, fathers and sons alike—look upon a relationship like that of Eddie and his father as an ideal one. Perhaps, one that should be the case in real life all too often isn't.

If there is one thing that comes across in "The Courtship of Eddie's Father," it is the verbal rapport shared by father and son. Eddie thinks the kinds of questions that any nine-year-old thinks.

Bill Bixby

But, unlike the many cases in real life where conditions aren't good for a kid to truly express himself, the conditions on "Courtship" are and Eddie is not reluctant to ask his dad those questions.

For those who call the show "heartwarming," I would agree wholeheartedly.

I'm pleased to see the show return for another season. And so are millions of others who enjoy the enjoyable antics of actor and actor, like father and son.

Speaking of life-like situations, plaudits go to Channel 7 and its newsman Frank Mathie for the new "Action Seven" series.

A takeoff on the "Action Line" type of columns in metropolitan newspapers, the show in its early stages has been very good.

Last week's column, you may recall, mentioned the fact that Chicago television journalism has attracted some new, young talent. We pointed out Channel 5's Walter Jacobson, and Mathie is about the same age and has good viewer appeal.

While Jacobson's main thrust has been toward the commentary side of things, it is Mathie who has been more or less a "feature" reporter for WLS-TV. The station made a logical and wise choice in giving Mathie the job as host for the "Action Seven" portion of their news programming.

ON THE COVER: Two-time Academy Award-winner, Anthony Quinn, makes his debut, starring in his first television series when the ABC Television Network's new dramatic series, "The Man and the City" premieres Wednesday, September 15, 9 p.m.

Arlington Heights

Murphy grew up in Hinsdale, Ill., and attended no less than eight colleges, receiving a degree from the University of Illinois and doing graduate work at others.

He has appeared in a number of films, including "The Graduate," and has guest starred in several television programs. He landed a regular role on THE NAME OF THE GAME before his starring role in SMITH AND JONES.

A bachelor, Murphy lives in the San Fernando Valley of California.

I am an 11-year-old girl. I have watched TV for many years. I've seen some kiddie programs come, some go. But I think it is tragic that GILLIGAN'S ISLAND is off the air.

It was a funny, really nice comedy show. How can people take off comedy and replace it with old shows with no real fun-loving meaning?

We want "Gilligan's Gang."
—Linda Haase
Prospect Heights

ANSWER:

Your sentiments have been noted.

***

Diana Rigg is one of my favorite actresses. Are there going to be any new shows on THE AVENGERS? Does she like being an actress?

—M.K.
Des Plaines

ANSWER:

THE AVENGERS was taken out of production a few years ago. There will be no new segments of the series, which is currently being rerun.

I certainly hope Miss Rigg enjoys acting. She's performed on television, in movies and on the stage and shows no sign of stopping.

***

Could you please tell me how old Peter Graves of MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE is and where I could write to him?

—D.G.

I heard that one of the Osmond Brothers is getting married. Is this true? Also, I'd like to know what Donny Osmond's real age is. I've heard many different ages.

—M.K.

There has been talk that Allen, the oldest of the Osmonds, may be planning marriage, but no official word has yet been forthcoming.

Donny Osmond is 13. That's his real age.

***

I love to read Nancy Drew books and enjoy them a lot.

My mother tells me when she was young they had Nancy Drew movies starring Bonita Granville. Is there any chance they will be shown on TV? I know many of my friends would enjoy them.

—Pam M.
Arlington Heights

ANSWER:

Good question. Why don't you try informing the Chicago television stations about your request? One or more of them may just schedule a Nancy Drew movie in their programming. None of them FEATURES some time ago, but you failed to say where you could get it. Do you know?

—Deborah Paddock
Mount Prospect

ANSWER:

The song, "Experiment in Terror" by Henry Mancini, is on an album of the same name. You can no doubt order it through any record store.
